Democrats Sure of 54-42 Majority In Senate

Victors Announce 'No Punishment' Policy in Plans For Reorganization

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A shoe-on-the-other-foot Democratic Senate, assured of a 54-to-42 working majority, last night prepared to reorganize the Senate from top to bottom after January 3.

It will be a new "Truman honeymoon" Senate, if party peacemakers have their way. At the outset, the President will be in the saddle as he never was. Men he trusts will be elected to the leadership on both sides of the Capitol.

An associate said "no punishments" will be meted out. The President is willing to forget party differences. Under obligations to no one, he will strive to repair the splintered legislative branch of his party in a new Democratic unity movement.

Probable Senate Line-Up

At least this was the goal as Democrats in the first magnanimous flush of victory viewed an incoming Senate that looked like this:

	R.	D.
Elected	9	24
Holdovers	33	30
Total new Senate	42	54

To wipe out the present 51 to 45 Republican control and restore a Senate majority almost as large as Franklin Roosevelt bequeathed Harry Truman, the Democrats captured nine Republican seats and lost none of their own.

GOP seats were picked off in these States—Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, West Virginia, Wyoming, Delaware, Oklahoma and Kentucky and Idaho.

The last real contest was settled when Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R.), who had zig-zagged in and out of the lead in the close Idaho race, finally bowed to Bert H. Miller (D.).

Lucas May Succeed Barkley

What Senate Democrats will do with their new-found strength, restored after a two-year Republican interregnum, will be threshed out in party caucuses at the turn of the year.

But the blueprint for the new order looks something like this:

Vice President Alben W. Barkley, Democratic leader of the Senate ever since Franklin Roosevelt picked him for the post in the now famous 1937 "Dear Alben" letter, will simply move up to the Senate rostrum.

From here on out, his job will

Stock Exchange Is Deluged With Selling Orders

Selling orders from large and small investors throughout the country deluged the New York Stock Exchange yesterday in the sharpest market break since September 9, 1946. It was attributed principally to the Democratic election sweep.

Leading issues were knocked down 2 to more than 6 points and, on a basis of the total number of shares listed on the big board, it was estimated that at least three billion dollars in value was wiped out.

Party Gains 70 or More House Seats

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

With a clear gain of at least 70 seats and a strong possibility of picking up 17 more, jubilant Democrats yesterday planned to organize the House of Representatives in the Eighty-first Congress under former Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas.

On the basis of latest returns, with Democrats leading in 17 undecided districts, the new House will have at least 246 Democrats, 171 Republicans and 1 American Labor Party member. If the Democrats should capture all 17 of the undecided seats they will have swept into a landslide victory with 263 seats.

The Eightieth Congress, which President Truman made the prime target of his campaign, was comprised of 243 Republicans, 184 Democrats, 2 American Labor Party members. With the recent death of Representative Milton West (D., Tex.) there were six vacancies.

The staggering Democratic gains so far this year have been exceeded only twice in recent years—once in 1934 when the Democrats gained some 102 seats and

Massenburg Ouster Asked By Whitehead

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—Ouster of G. Alvin Massenburg, chairman of the Virginia Democratic State Central Committee, was called for today on heels of the Truman-Barkley victory.

The demand came from Robert Whitehead, chairman of the Virginia Truman-Barkley straight Democratic ticket committee. Massenburg and the State central committee had recommended and pursued lukewarm neutrality in the presidential campaign, concentrating on winning seven contested House seats and one in the Senate.

"I think the action of the chairman of the Democratic State central committee has been overwhelmingly repudiated by the Democratic voters of Virginia," Whitehead declared in a statement. "His continuance in office would be a distinct disservice to the party.

In 1722 precincts out of 1755 in the State, President Truman received 200,320 votes, to 171,942

Kansas Voting End of 68-Year Bone-Dry Spell

Kansas is going wet, South Carolina apparently ditched its anti-divorce law, and Massachusetts voters refused to authorize doctors to give birth control information to married women in Tuesday's elections.

These were among the first results to emerge from the tabulation of returns on more than 175 special issues put to voters in more than half of the 48 States.

One proposal to outlaw closed and union shops was clearly defeated in Massachusetts, and another was running 5000 votes behind in New Mexico.

D. C. Preparing Ceremony and Parade Starting On 11 A.M. Arrival

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Up to a half-million Greater Washington residents are expected to roar out a welcome to President Truman, the people's choice, when he returns to Washington Friday at 11 a. m.

Plans for a gala homecoming were hurriedly made at a meeting yesterday afternoon of local civic, business, labor, entertainment, press and Government officials in the office of John Russell Young, chairman of the Board of District Commissioners.

The Democratic Central Committee of the District had already begun welcoming preparations in yesterday's wee hours as the fighting candidate's chances became rosier, but later agreed to join the commissioners in a "real civic event for Washington's leading citizen."

Federal and District government workers will be excused starting at 10:30 a. m. for the President's return, but will be expected to return to their posts after the parade.

District public school students will be allowed time to view the ceremony upon presentation of a note from parents covering absence from school during the program. Teachers in schools near the line of march have been authorized to accompany their classes to and from the area. The decision was made by the Board of Education at a meeting yesterday.

The event will start at Union Station with the expected arrival of the President at 11 a. m. He will be welcomed back in brief talks at the Columbus statue in front of the station and then ride, with his party, southwest on Delaware ave. to Constitution ave. where it intersects Pennsylvania ave., then onto Pennsylvania to 15th st. nw., up 15th and then Pennsylvania ave to the White House.

District officials began placing large American flags on street poles along the route yesterday. Representatives of the Marine, Army, Air Force, Metropolitan Police Boys', Metropolitan Police and Redskins' bands will meet in the District Building today at 11 a. m. to arrange for placement of the musical units along the route.

At Post Square, the Fire Department will erect six 100-foot ladders forming an arch with welcoming signs, similar to those posted on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's triumphal return. In addition, merchants are expected to put out display signs in front of establishments.

Three hundred firemen will be assigned along the mile and a half line of march, Chief Clement Murphy announced, and police will patrol the entire route, Maj. Robert J. Barrett said at the arrangements meeting.

The District Commissioners were named honorary chairmen of the affair and Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner Young, and Al Wheeler, chairman

Will Not Try Again, Dewey Announces

New York, Nov. 3 (U.P.)—Stunned but still smiling, Thomas E. Dewey, who tried three time for the highest office in the United States and failed each time, said today he would never try again.

There were tears in the eyes of the women and deep emotion on the faces of men as the defeated Republican presidential candidate said he was proud of his campaign, that he was "as surprised as anybody else" and that he still believed above all in American unity to establish world peace.

Beaten by Wendell Willkie for the GOP nomination in 1940, by Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency in 1944, and now by Harry S. Truman in one of the most spectacular upsets in United States political history, Dewey wrote "finis" to his brilliant political career at the age of 46.

He said he would never seek the presidency again nor would he run for reelection as Governor of New York when his present term expires two years hence.

"I simply have no plans," he said.

Dewey had stayed up until 8:30 a. m., unwilling and unable to believe the returns, but finally caught a two-hour nap. When he awoke, it was obvious that the States of Illinois and Ohio were in the Truman column for keeps. Then he

Truman Vows He'll Do Best For Platform

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Independence, Mo., Nov. 3.—President Harry S. Truman, the candidate who didn't have a chance for election, tonight told a hometown victory celebration that he will do his best "to carry out the Democratic platform.

After an election that amazed political observers, he was honored by thousands of his neighbors gathered around the Jackson County courthouse.

He told them "I want every one of you to help me carry out that tremendous responsibility for the peace and welfare of the world." He said they were celebrating "not my victory—but a victory of the Democratic Party for the people."

With Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret, beside him, Mr. Truman was introduced by Mayor Roger Sermon as a man who had brought honor to his home town.

He said: "I am going to do the very best I can to carry out that Democratic platform as I promised to do in my speeches around the country.

"I have a Congress now and I feel very sure we are going to make some progress in the next four years."

The ceremony was brief. "We have had no time to prepare any fireworks or any spectacular dis-

Split Government Ends

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, once regarded merely as the political heir of Franklin D. Roosevelt, stood before the world yesterday as a popular leader in his own right.

On the basis of latest returns, the 64-year-old Missouri warrior had 28 States with 304 electoral votes. He needed 266 to win a full, four-year term in the Presidency.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee, who was so sure of victory that he was looking around for Cabinet officers, had 16 States with 189 electoral votes.

Party Split Cut Vote

But this didn't tell the whole story. Had it not been for the split in the Democratic Party—the left-wing candidacy of Henry Wallace and the right-wing Dixiecrat movement headed by Gov. J Strom Thurmond of South Carolina— Mr. Truman might have pushed his total electoral vote up to a landslide figure of 397.

In that case, Governor Dewey would have had only 134 electoral votes, two less than John W. Davis got in the Coolidge landslide of 1924.

The voters, in sending Mr. Truman back to the White House and extending Democratic control of that mansion to 20 years, also ended split government in Washington.

They took Congress away from the Republicans and gave the Democrats working majorities in both Senate and House.

It was the most stunning upset in American political history, and one that sent a thrill across the country. Alibis and weighty analyses filled the air in Washington. The man on the street, however, thought the story began and ended with one name—"Harry."

President Truman had done the unprecedented. He had won the election without the 47 electoral votes of New York and without needing the 25 of California. What was more, he had won it despite the fact that two erstwhile regular Democrats had ganged up on him to drive him from the White House.

Thurmond Claims 38

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who turned on Mr. Truman because of the Administration's civil rights program, was claiming 38 electoral votes as the candidate of the States Rights (Dixiecrat) Party.

Chances for New Popular Vote Record Fading

By The Associated Press

Chances for a new record popular vote virtually vanished last night with almost seven eighths of the Nation's precincts reported.

The ballot total was 44,491,891 at 11:45 p. m. (EST). The biggest vote in history was rolled up in 1940—a popular total of 49,815,312, when Franklin D. Roosevelt beat Wendell Willkie.

Associated Press returns from 122,083 of the country's 135,867 voting units showed the popular vote:

Dewey, 20,371,674; Truman, 22,229,400; Wallace, 1,028,391; Thurmond, 862,429.

The precincts which had reported averaged 366 votes each. But the last several thousand precincts which had reported showed only about 210 votes each. The straggling reports, therefore, were expected to add progressively less to the total.

It still was mathematically possible for 1948 to register the second largest vote in history, topping the 1944 total of 47,976,263, but here again, the trend was against it.

106,700 Votes Cast

It Was Neck-and-Neck Race In Greater Washington Area

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Residents of Greater Washington cast slightly more than 106,700 votes in Tuesday's election, and like the rest of the country, the presidential race was neck-and-neck.

In Maryland, where the electoral vote went for Dewey, Truman was the winner in Prince Georges County and Dewey in Montgomery County.

In Virginia, where President Truman won the electoral vote, the President whisked by with a 14-vote margin in Alexandria, but lost to Dewey in Arlington and Fairfax Counties.

Areawise, Dewey had a 12,637 margin over the victorious Truman. He had been expected to carry the northern Virginia area, and to show decisive strength in Montgomery County, Md.

In the Virginia senatorial race, incumbent Senator A. Willis Robertson, seeking his first full term in office, led the party ticket throughout the district. He was never in any danger from his Republican opponent, Robert H. Woods, although on the basis of incomplete return he appeared to have lost one small county.

Political observers attributed part of the heavy Robertson vote to his early announcement, last summer, of support of President Truman's candidacy, and, paradoxically enough, to his also announced opposition to the Truman civil rights stand.

In the House of Representatives race, one of these factors is be-

Capitol Hill 'Housecleaning' May Sweep 1500 GOP Jobs

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

That "housecleaning" we heard so much about during the political campaign will take place on Capitol Hill. It will be the Republican jobholders there who will be fired, and it will be the Democrats who will do the cleaning out. Such a possibility was never even suggested during the campaign.

The ax today hangs over upwards of 1500 jobs in the legislative branch. In fact, the upset election will have an immediate direct bearing on more Capitol Hill jobs than in any other Federal establishment.

The jobs of the several score Republicans of the House and the Senate who were defeated will be wiped out as the new members will choose their own staffs.

The strictly patronage jobs such as elevator operators, policemen, pages, folding room positions and the many others will be turned over to the Democratic patronage committees in both the Senate and the House to dispose of among the Democratic members. The Republicans fired most of the Democratic appointees in these patronage jobs after they took over two years ago.

Top jobs in both the Senate and the House, such as clerk, sergeant-at-arms, doorkeeper, etc., will go to Democratic appointees. Les Biffle, for example, may go back to his old job as Senate secretary. The many jobs with the various committees in the two Houses present another problem—one on which there was a sharply divided opinion yesterday. Under the act that reorganized Congress two years ago, the professional staffs of these committees are supposed to have been selected on a non-partisan career basis.

Unfortunately, some of the staff members were most partisan in their work as they offended the Democratic members by the continual sniping at Federal agencies and employes. Several were disgruntled workers who had been eased out of their jobs in Federal agencies. Unquestionably, they will be replaced.

The reorganization law forbids any professional staff member from taking a job in the executive branch for a year after he leaves Capitol Hill. So anyone in this category who is fired won't be able to go back to his old job in the executive branch anytime soon.

There is no such prohibition on clerical members of the committee staffs who may be replaced.

This was the cry, accompanied by sighs of relief and groans of

Cabinet Changes Likely

Harriman Reported in Line As Successor to Marshall

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

Changes in the Cabinet, from Secretary Marshall down, were expected yesterday in the aftermath of the smashing Truman victory.

Sources close to Secretary Marshall confirmed reports from Paris that he is determined to retire and go back to his farm at Leesburg, Va.

The Secretary is expected home from Paris soon to touch base with the President and the State Department. Whether or not he goes back to Paris for the end of the United Nations Assembly, he probably will ask to be relieved of his post by Inauguration Day on January 20.

He has had no rest from back-breaking burdens since he became Chief of Staff of the Army before the war.

The name of W. Averell Harriman, now special ambassador in Paris, led all others yesterday in speculation about Marshall's successor. Former Undersecretary Dean Acheson, now practicing law in Washington, was another whose name was discussed—one whom the President likes and admires, and in whom he always had complete confidence.

Undersecretary Robert A Lovett has told friends that he, too, intends to quit before January 20 and go back to private banking. The rest of the State Department high command, with the possible exception of Assistant Secretary Charles E. Saltzman, is expected

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

Career of Truman, Farmer, Soldier, Haberdasher Is Typical of America

The incredible career of Harry S. Truman could only happen here in America.

He was a farmer until the age of 33. Then war made him a soldier. He returned to civilian life, married, opened up a haberdashery, and was ruined by the postwar deflation. He obtained a county political job and was still holding on to it at the age of 50.

Of a sudden, by the whim of Boss Pendergast, he was lifted into the Senate; by the will of Franklin Delano Roosevelt elevated to Vice President, and by the hand of fate raised to the White House.

An amazing series of events.

Then there occurred the most wondrous event of them all.

On November 2, 1948, some millions of Americans went to the polls, and without regard to Pendergast, Roosevelt or fate, they sent Harry S. Truman back to the White House.

And everybody was surprised but Harry. He had insisted all along that he understood the mood of the people better than the professional politicians, pollsters, columnists and commentators. He had insisted that he understood people, and that they understood him.

The election proved him right. The election also dramatically demonstrated that the strength of our thirty-second President derives from his being, naturally, a man of the people. He instinctly leads them in the direction they'd like to go under the particular circumstances and conditions.

Criticized For Lacking Vigor

As President, Mr. Truman has been sharply criticized for lacking vigorous leadership—in the grand style of FDR, or in the swashbuckling style of Churchill.

Yet it was this sincerely modest man who instinctively and courageously accepted and pressed forward the Greek-Turkish aid program and Marshal Plan which have formed the base of our postwar world anti-Communist policy. Harry S. Truman just knew it was the right thing to do and that the people would back him up.

General Marshall once remarked that Harry S. Truman is a curious blend of humility and boldness. It's an extraordinarily apt sizing up of our President.

The county officeholder had no pretensions of joining the select Senate Club. He ran as a machine candidate. Yet he proved in 10 years as a Senator that he was no front, no stooge, but a person of principle, patriotism, and independence. His Truman investigating committee made a major contribution to the national defense and war effort.

Willed to Be Senator

Senator Truman had no ambitions to be President, even Vice President. He liked being Senator, and often said so to intimates.

In the summer of 1944, after joining Reporter Barnet Nover in a broadcast, Senator Truman sat down with Barney for a chat on the front steps of The Washington Post Building. The Democratic convention was only 10 days off, so of course they got around to that topic.

Was he going? Nover asked the Senator.

Yes, replied Senator Truman. He was going to Chicago to help give FDR a fourth nomination. Then the Missouri Senator exclaimed: "Just think of anybody wanting that job."

There was some talk around Washington, Nover commented, that the Senator would be nominated for Vice President.

"Thats crazy," retorted the Senator. "I'm perfectly happly where I am. Besides I'm going to Chicago to nominate Jimmy Byrnes for Vice President."

Won Over Byrnes, Wallace

Senator Truman meant it, too. As it turned out, though, the New Dealers who didn't want Byrnes and the Southern Democrats who wouldn't take another dose of Henry Wallace agreed on the affable, likable Senator as FDR's running mate. FDR himself approved the choice, and so told Truman via phone. That did it.

After 83 days of being Vice President, Harry S. Truman abruptly became President on the death of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, April 12, 1945. In a twinkling, he was catapulted into the responsibility of carrying the Nation through the war, of ending it with the atom bomb, of converting the war-distorted economy to peace.

Even before he could become fully aware of the immensity of his responsibility, Harry S. Truman, the "little man," sensed it. Less than 24 hours after assuming the hgihest office in the land, he told a throng of newspapermen:

"If you ever pray, pray for me now.

"I don't know whether you fellows ever had a load of hay fall on you; but when they told me yesterday what had happened, I felt like the moon, the stars and all of the planets had fallen on me.

"I've got the most terribly responsible job a man ever had."

Political "Honeymoon"

A "honeymoon followed for the President-by-destiny. There was at first an acute sense of loss in the death of Roosevelt, but once it appeared that victory in the war was imminent, there was also a great feeling of relief. After more than 12 years, the Nation had grown weary of strong-man leadership, and reveled in the idea of having a man of the people as President.

Then as the Nation went through the painful transition from war to peace, the honeymoon ended and President Truman became, inevitably, target for all grievances, to the left, to the right, and in the middle. He became something of a lightning rod for the vexations and frustrations and the emotions whipped up by the controversial personality of F. D. R. When aroused, he'd fight, and throw his punches without restraint.

So it was that he smashed an incipient railroad strike; that he vainly vetoed the union-opposed Taft-Hartley act.

So it was that he incensed liberal leaders by ignoring their advice on certain iscues; that he incited a party revolt in the South by pressing for a civil rights program.

Loyalty to Old Friends

Yes, Harry S. Truman could be accused of blundering, and fumbling the ball. But he never would be accused of lacking courage.

He displayed a deep streak of loyalty to old friends. He stood by them when they got into trouble. Not even when the Pendergast ship was sinking would Harry Truman desert it. He publicly declared that Boss Pendergast had never asked him to do anything dishonest, and that he, Truman, never had. And when Pendergast died after his conviction, Vice President Truman ignored his critics and flew to the funeral of his onetime benefactor.

This quality of remaining true blue earned President Truman the admiration of many. Harry could do wrong, all right, but it was usually in a way that made folks grin and admire him for his spunk.

He won friends and influenced party leaders by his successful fight for the nomination, after everybody told him that he couldn't make it. He then went out to the hustings and speaking out, without oratorical flourishes, but plainly for all to hear "Pour it on Harry" single-handedly licked the Republican Party in an election "a Chinaman couldn't lose."

President Truman was born May 8, 1884, at Lamar, Mo., a small town on the western fringe of the Ozarks. He grew up and worked for the most part on the family farm a few miles outside of Independence, Mo.

Harry S. Truman has no middle name. The S. is a compromise for Grandfathers Shippe and Solomon. His people had fought on the side of the Confederacy.

The future President began wearing glasses at nine. He still does, even when swimming. He took to studying history, the Bible, and the piano. He keeps up his interest in all three. His piano playing has thrilled the Press Club in Washington, Stalin at Potsdam.

After various and trivial jobs, Harry went back to work the farm 11 years until World War I broke out. Harry became an officer in the Artillery, headed the now famous Battery D in France.

His genuine, genial nature—the same that makes him so many friends as President—earned Captain Truman the affection of his men. They took a cut out of the long crap game on the voyage back home to buy him a huge loving cup.

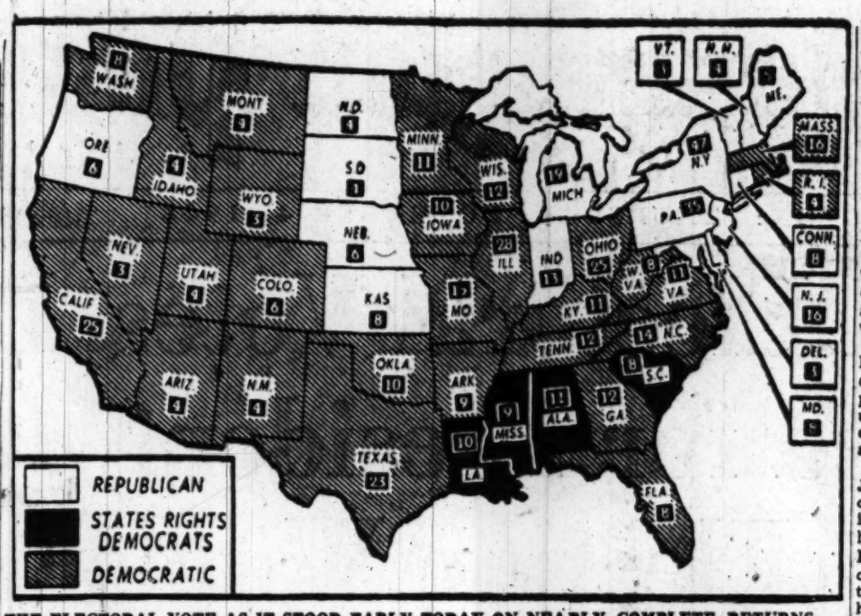
Married Classmate

In June, 1919, six weeks after his return, he married his high school classmate, Bess Wallace. They've one daughter, Mary Margaret, better known as just Margaret.

The haberdashery venture and failure followed. Harry refused to go into bankruptcy, paid off debts for years. Se sought a minor political post, and through the backing of Tom Pendergast, got elected judge of Jackson County Court in 1922. This was not a judicial post, but rather a county commissioner job. He was promoted to Senator in 1934; reelected in 1940.

Today, at 64, Harry S. Truman is physically firm, mentally alert, and looks 10 years younger. His face has a healthy tan and his walk has a jaunty bounce. The election of this man of the people thrilled the Nation—ever those who'd voted for his rivals.

It was all so unexpected . . . and so wonderful a story.



THE ELECTORAL VOTE AS IT STOOD EARLY TODAY ON NEARLY COMPLETE RETURNS
Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Must Deliver Dewey Votes

Just like his great-grandfather did back in the 1860s, Georoge C. Warner, jr., Washington attorney, will take part in the electoral voting December 13 which decides on our new President.

But there's a difference—

Great-grandfather knew he was casting his vote for a winner, Abraham Lincoln.

Warner knows his vote—one of 531 that will be polled by electors in the 48 State capitals—is for a beaten candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Because Dewey carried Maryland, Warner and seven other electors committed to the New York Governor will meet at Annapolis to cast the State's eight electoral votes for him.

Warner, who is treasurer of the Republican State Central Committee in Montgomery County and lives at 7210 Exeter rd., Bethesda, said his great-grandfather, "a banker and stationmaster for the underground railroad," cast one of Ohio's electoral votes for Lincoln.

What happened to Dewey?

"It's easy to be a Monday morning quarterback, I know," said Warner, "but I think the Republican Party failed nationally because it did not fight a hard campaign. It was too confident. Truman made a spunky fight and the people liked that.

"I'm damned proud of what my party did in Maryland. We put up a good fight and we carried the State for Dewey."

A World War I Navy commander who married a Kentucky Democrat and has three daughters, two in college, one just graduated, Warner is already looking ahead to the next election.

"There's a place in the United States," he said, "for a militant conservative party."

Mason, Young Hail Victory

Washington's city fathers, one Democratic and the other Republican, yesterday were enthusiastic about President Truman's victory.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who had been jeering at predictions of Democratic doom at the polls Tuesday, yesterday grinned from ear to ear and proudly pointed to a bright scarlet necktie covered with donkey heads:

"I said yesterday (Tuesday) the Democrats would sweep the Presidency and Congress. Today it happened. The average citizen who is unincorporated has the greatest confidence in the Democratic Party and therefore voted for it."

His colleague, Commissioner John Russell Young, noted, "for courage and forthrightness, President Truman is going down in history as the most courageous President who ever conducted a campaign. I am happy to be in the group to arrange a welcome home for our leading citizen."

Atlanta, Nov. 3 (AP).—President Truman's triumph today left his Southern States Rights opposition licked, temporarily at least, but in no notion to quit its fight against his racial policies.

Some party leaders issued warlike pronouncements calling for renewal on the 1952 political battleground of the struggle against the President's proposals. Other Southern politicians, not directly aligned against the President, suggested the issues be fought out inside the party and in Congress.

The States Righters hoped by a vote barrage to hamstring the President's plans for laws against racial segregation, the poll tax and lynching and for a fair employment practices commission. They corralled 38 electoral votes in their strongholds of Mississippi, Louisana, Alabama and South Carolina.

Mr. Truman's political might was such, however, that he swamped the States Righters along with his major foes, the Republicans.

Alabama Democratic Chairman Gessner T. McCorvey, a States Rights elector, blamed the new party's falldown on failure of other States to join the movement. He predicted others would be pulled into the fight and the struggle will be fiercer and more effective four years hence.

Presidential Candidate Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, and No. 2 standard bearer, Fielding Wright of Mississippi, deliberated the situation before issuing statements.

McCorvey ridiculed a lawsuit which Gov. James E. Folsom promised to bring to force Alabama's 11 electoral votes into the Truman-Barkley column. He said it would be "wasted effort."

Other Southerners took an enthusiastic view of Truman's victory. Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, who opposed Truman's nomination, said the President's winning fight was so gallant that "Roosevelt and Andrew Jackson are applauding."

Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, who opposed Mr. Truman's policies but voted for him, asserted the South's fight against the civil rights program can be blocked in Congress. He said Democratic control of Congress giving Southerners key posts would turn the tide.

Congratulations were wired Mr. Truman by Amis Guthridge, Arkansas States Rights campaign manager. He said time would show whether the President's racial views are as dangerous as they have been painted.

"May God guide and direct him," Guthridge added.

All for Harry . . .

inet, got no electoral votes in his race as the nominee of the Progressive Party. His popular vote was far under early estimates.

Despite Wallace's weakness, he took enough votes away from Mr. Truman in New York to throw that State's 47 electoral votes to Governor Dewey. It was the same story in the case of Maryland's eight electoral votes.

These electoral votes, plus Thurmond's 38, would have pushed Mr. Truman's total up to 397 and Governor Dewey's down to 134.

Dewey Concedes Election

Governor Dewey conceded the election to Mr. Truman at 11:14 a. m. after word came that Ohio was safely in the Democratic column. In his telegram to the President, the New Yorker said:

"I urge all Americans to unite behind you in support of every effort to keep our Nation strong and free and to establish peace in the world."

Former President Herbert Hoover issued a statement in New York striking the same note.

"All Americans," he said, "will now rally unitedly to President Truman's support that we may have peace on earth and prosperity for our country."

President Truman received Governor Dewey's telegram while he was in a suite at the Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City. He was talking over the telephone to Senator Alben W. Barkley, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, who was at his home in Paducah, Ky.

After the Chief Executive had read Dewey's telegram, he hugged his brother, J. Vivian Truman.

"I just want to deserve the honor," he said, soberly.

They were saying around Washington yesterday, the Truman enthusiasts, that he would start out on his four-year term an unshackled Chief Executive, beholden to nobody but the people.

And they were saying, too, that for this reason they expected him to do a grand job.

How he beat down Governor Dewey and his other opponents, when the poll-takers, the political analysts and the gamblers said he was a certain also-ran, was the subject of much talk and some controversy yesterday.

A well-known Democrat, who didn't choose to be identified, chuckled and said the answer was that the Republicans got too cocky and stayed away from the polls in droves.

Taft Credits Prosperity

United States Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio saw it this way:

"It is almost impossible to put an administration out of office at the very peak of a prosperity boom."

Taft's statement certainly has merit. The fact remains that the Ohian was sure that 1948 was a Republican year, so sure that he tried his best to get the GOP presidential nomination.

What the Republicans thought was going to beat Mr. Truman was the feeling, widespread among themselves and shared to an extent by Democrats, was that he was "not big enough" for the job.

Governor Dewey implied that all through the campaign. He said that Mr. Truman was a clumsy bungler, and he promised that he would bring competence, efficiency and teamwork to Washington.

Mr. Truman had some things to say about Governor Dewey, too, and they must have hurt. He accused the New Yorker of trying to duck the issues by lullaby talk about mother, home and country. He said he was a "Me too" candidate, who waited until it was safe and then became a "convert" to the internationalist point of view.

The Chief Executive was not in the same class with Governor Dewey when it came to oratory—at least, the kind that is delivered from a prepared text.

At the whistle stops, however, Mr. Truman was far more effective than his rival. He talked the language of the people, letting it pour out from one end of the country to the other. Some, watching on from a distance, were aghast at things he said—his "I like Joe Stalin" remark, for example.

Ordinary Folks Liked It

However, the ordinary folks loved to listen to Mr. Truman; and, as the campaign moved down the stretch, they turned out for him in ever-growing numbers.

Invariably, he outdrew Governor Dewey. Some of the experts said that this didn't mean anything. They recalled a number of also-rans who drew big crowds—Bryan and Al Smith and Wendell Willkie. Now, in retrospect, it appears to have meant a lot.

The fact is, not many Americans knew much about Mr. Truman before he started barnstorming. One reason for this was that, in traveling, he had nearly always used a plane.

His friends kept after him to show himself, and, finally, in June, he set out on his first cross-country tour by train.

Campaign Trips Probably Vital.

He had wonderful crowds on this trip. Many here in Washington, however, were under the impression that he had been 'a flop." They had read about the poor turnout for him in Omaha, Nebr., and apparently took that as typical.

Once the campaign opened, following the conventions, both Mr. Truman and Governor Dewey started across the country.

There is no certainty about it—political reporters are not certain about anything now—but these trips probably decided the election.

The American voters looked two men over, either at first hand or through newsreels or other media, and decided that they liked "Harry" best.

of the local Democratic committee, were selected as cochairmen. In addition, District officials and members of the Democratic committee will also serve.

The Democratic committee appropriated $100 toward the purchase of small flags to be distributed to children. Col. Waldron B. Leonard announced that veterans' organizations have been invited to furnish a color guard for the celebration.

Similar welcomes were arranged for the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1940 and 1944. The last one in 1944 attracted 330,000 persons who cheered "The Champ" in spite of a driving rain.

Yesterday, as the election results were rounded out, the Commerce Department excused its workers at 3:30 p. m.

The Friday welcome is expected to include 210,000 Federal employes, 18,000 District workers and 90,000 public school students, in addition to parochial school pupils and other members of the public. At least 500,000 are expected to turn out, Stofberg said.

Bus and streetcars operating over the parade route will be halted or rerouted during the celebration. James H. Flanagan, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, assured the arrangements committee.

Sweeping Truman Victory Goes Down to Grass Roots

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman's sweep to victory Tuesday went down to the grass roots.

Not only did he win the Presidency and carry his party to control of both houses of Congress, but he also overturned the even split of 24 to 24 between the two parties in State governorships. On the basis of the latest returns, the Democrats now have State executives in 30 States, the Republicans in only 18.

Reports indicate the sweep went even farther. In some staunchly Republican counties—Polk County in Iowa, for instance—which had been Republican controlled throughout all the Roosevelt landslides, went Democratic. That largest Iowa county, which includes Des Moines, former Senator George A. Wilson's home, chose Democrats for all but two offices, and in those two the Democrats had no candidates.

By a strange quirk the net Democratic gain may be only six governorships. That is because Gov. Leslie C. Hunt of Wyoming, Democrat, won election to the Senate. In order to take that job he must resign as Governor and be succeeded by A. G. Crane, Republican Secretary of State.

Reports last night were that Hunt would delay his acceptance of the Congressional seat until his term as Governor expires in 1950. By long-distance he told The Washington Post that he had "no comment" on that proposal.

Hunt said he would win by 14,000. "Out here 2500 is a big victory," he remarked.

The races for governorships were filled with news. The election of Democrat Elbert N. Carvel in Delaware marked the second time in 50 years a Democrat had won that seat. His election was conceded early yesterday.

In Tennessee the Republicans had nominated a hill-billy singer, Roy Acuff. Popular in the hinterlands, Acuff was counted on as an aid to the election of former Republican National Chairman Carroll B. Reece as Senator. But Acuff's songs didn't intrigue the voters, apparently. He was badly beaten, and so was Reece.

In two cases the Republicans ousted Democrats—both surprises. In Washington Gov. Mon C. Wallgren, a close friend of President Truman and once a formidable candidate for Vice President, lost to former Gov. Arthur B. Langlie, while Truman was carrying the State.

In Utah Gov. Herbert B. Maw, Democrat, was defeated by J. Bracken Lee, while his friend Truman was carrying the State. Maw was named as a speculator in commodities during the investigation of grain dealing a year ago. He admitted the claim, adding that he had carried on such trading for years as a part of his occupation as a wheat rancher.

Republican governors ousted Tuesday, included:

Gov. James C. Shannon, Connecticut, by former OPA Administrator Chester Bowles.

Gov. Dwight H. Green, Illinois, by former Gov. Paul A. Dever.

Gov. Kim Sigler, Michigan, by C. Mennen Williams of the shaving soap family.

Gov. Sam C. Ford, Montana by John W. Bonner.

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, Ohio, by former Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Indiana switched to a Democrat, electing Henry F. Schricker over Hobart Creighton.

Democrats also held onto their governorships in Arkansas, Colorada, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Arizona and Texas.

The Republicans retained gubernatorial posts in both the Dakotas, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, New Hampshire, Nebraska, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Charter Council Plan Set in Motion

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Supporters of the 10-year-old Montgomery County "home rule" charter movement which was adopted Tuesday by a 3600-vote majority, yesterday enthusiastically launched into plans for the new government.

Allen H. Gardner, first charter committee president and chairman of the committee's nominating group, asked for support of both major parties in picking a slate of candidates for the county council.

Candidates on the slate supported by the charter committee must be persons of "wide acquaintance with county affairs and with integrity and ability," Gardner said.

"We are perfectly willing to sit down with all groups in the county, including representatives of the two major parties, and agree on the names of council candidates," he added.

Gets Prompt Pledge

Chairman J. Bond Smith of the Democratic State Central Committee, immediately promised "cooperation" and said he was "delighted at the decisive charter vote."

"There will be no obstructionist tactics on our part," the Democratic leader said in his cooperation pledge. The committee he heads will meet next week, he said, "to take effective action to translate the national Democratic liberal victory into effectiveness in Montgomery County through the new instrumentality of the charter."

At the same time, Smith said he believed the first council members should be "persons of the type of Frederick P. Lee, Stephen James and Mrs. Alice Hostetler." All three are Democrats and were members of the 1942 elected chartr board. Smith said he personally would be delighted if these three were chosen.

The Republican State Central Committee for the county will also meet "in the near future" to map strategy according to a committee member, Anders R. Loftstrand, jr.

The council-manager form of government called for under charter is scheduled to become law on December 2. On January 6, a special election for the seven-county council members is scheduled and the new council is to take office on January 10.

The seven-member council which will replace the present five-man board of County Commissioners, will appoint a county manager at a salary not to exceed $12,000 a year. He will have broad powers but may be dismissed by the county council after a public hearing.

Principal feature of the charter government will be the authority to approve bond issues and enact all local laws currently passed by the Maryland General Assembly. Such legislation must be enacted during May of each year.

Abolishes Four Posts

Also called for is the abolition of the posts of county treasurer, police commissioner and both the clerk and the legal adviser to the county commissioners.

In a streamlining move, charter also provides for new departments of public works, finance, and an office of county attorney to be set up.

Candidate for the charter council must file notice of their intentions to run by December 12.

Currently being considered by the charter nominating committee are 100 names of candidates suggested by county, civic, business and political groups. The names were submitted in response to letters sent out by Chairman Gardner of the nominating group.

Indorsement by the charter committee would be a powerful asset for a charter council candidate, it was pointed out yesterday. In 1942, when the charter committee indorsed five candidates for a charter board to draft a charter, all five were elected.

Ruling is Awaited

Being awaited yesterday was a ruling by the board of elections supervisors on whether council candidates must identify themselves with a political party on the January 6 ballot.

Still another ruling may be sought from the United States Civil Service Commission on whether Federal employes living in the county can participate in a council campaign, it was learned.

County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter of Bethesda, a vigorous opponent of the charter, yesterday denied a report he would push for incorporation of Bethesda in a move to divorce the wealthy and populous section from the remainder of the county.

"I do not intend to make such a move at this time," he declared.

Charter leaders yesterday reiterated statements that "experienced" county employes would have "nothing to fear" under the new government.

Charter opponents before Tuesday's election had charged persons on the county payroll should fear for their jobs if charter were adopted.

"The merit system is a fundamental part of charter government and the beginnings of the merit system have been installed in Montgomery County as a direct result of the charter movement," said President Norman B. Ames of the charter committee in replying to the charges.

Frisbie Holds Arlington Post by 84 Votes

Alfred E. Frisbie, Democratic candidate, squeezed back into his Arlington County Board seat early yesterday by the hair-breadth margin of 84 votes out of more than 20,000 cast.

His narrow victory over I. Lee Potter, Independent candidate, determined shortly before 5 a. m. when returns from the last Arlington precinct—Park Lane—came in.

Before the final tally, each candidate held 11 precincts, had split one between them, and Frisbie, with a vote of 8641, held a 60-vote lead over Potter.

Picks Up 24 Votes

Then the Park Lane precinct handed Frisbie another 24-vote margin to make the final unofficial tally 9180 for the incumbent to 9096 for Potter.

Potter, a 38-year-old Arlington builder, had fought largely on the issue of supporting the Arlington School Board in its bid for a $4,750,000 bond issue.

Frisbie, on the other hand, held that the school issue had no place on the county board fight.

Election of Frisbie, a 37-year-old stock broker who lives at 636 S. 25th st., Arlington, blasted hopes of independent voters of holding the balance of county board power by Potter's election.

Appointed to his board seat last November, Frisbie had joined with Board Members Basil M. DeLashmutt and F. Freeland Chew on several important issues to vote down Independents Daniel A. Dugan and Mrs. Florence Cannon.

Others Far Behind

The two other candidates in the county board race never threatened the two top contenders.

Francis J. Clair, free-lance writer, who was forced to run as an independent after the County Republican committee refused him as the GOP candidate, polled only 938 votes. And Jacob Bechtel, retired carpenter, came out fourth with a total of only 381 votes.

Arlington observers pointed out that Clair's participation in the race may have cost Potter the election.

Potter, who although he ran as an independent, is vice chairman of the Arlington Republican Committee and had the support of the committee in the race.

But Clair, who billed himself as the "Republican candidate" in the contest despite his repudiation by the committee, apparently drew some of the GOP support away from Potter, county politicians said.

Britons Hail Vote; Germans Show Apathy

London, Nov. 3 (NYHT).—Great Britain welcomed President Truman's election tonight with unqualified enthusiasm, which spread through all political parties and penetrated deep among the masses of Britons.

The enthusiasm was based on the fundamental belief that American policy of aid to western Europe would continue and on admiration of the lone struggle that Mr. Truman made against so many obstacles.

Frankfurt, Nov. 3 (NYHT).—The election of President Truman came as a complete surprise to the American occupation personnel in Germany, but was greeted with general apathy by Germans.

Rome, Nov. 3 (NYHT).—The smallness of the vote for Henry A. Wallace was treated today by most Italian newspapers as one of the most important results of the American election. Most of them indicated that they considered it happy evidence that the American public solidly supports the State Department policy of firm resistance to Soviet expansion.

Buenos Aires, Nov. 3 (NYHT).—President Truman's victory completely surprised American businessmen here, the majority of whom were disappointed. Argentine government officials and politicians manifested indifference to the election outcome.

Argentines were particularly puzzled by the outcome, pointing out that all news from the United States since the national conventions had predicted a Dewey victory. One person said: "It could happen in Argentina, but how could everyone be so wrong in the United States?"

Warren Asks For Unity in National Talk

San Francisco, Nov. 3 (AP).—Gov. Earl Warren, the defeated Republican vice presidential nominee, congratulated the Democratic winners today, made a Nation-wide radio plea for unity—and said he was getting back at once to his job as Governor.

"I have been away a long time and have a great deal to do, especially on the budget," he said before leaving by automobile for Sacramento.

"I trust," he told the Nation, "that President Truman and Senator (Alben W.) Barkley will have the unfailing support of Americans everywhere in their solutions of the Nation's great problems."

Earlier he sent President Truman a telegram of congratulations, saying, "We must all work together for peace." He also sent one to Senator Barkley, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, assuring "This is the time for all Americans to face the future together."

be to preside, not to lead. Only in case of a tie can he vote. But Barkley won't fall willingly into a "Throttlebottom" role. Vice Presidents with know-how ha : been known to wield influence far beyond gavel routine.

Most likely to succeed Barkley as leader is Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, who has been in the understudy role of Senate party whip. Lucas, chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, was a stanch Truman supporter throughout the campaign but has a pretty independent voting record.

Two Others Mentioned

At least two other names have been mentioned—Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.), another close friend of the President, and Senator Millard E. Tydings (Md.). Tydings is to the right of the President's policies but often goes to bat for him on the floor. If they decide to make it a race, the battle will be fought out in a Democratic caucus.

The caucus, subject to Senate approval, will also make over the committee lists, replacing Republican chairmen with Democrats, and bumping enough GOP members to clinch Democratic majority controls. It will generally follow the seniority rule on committee assignments, with possibly one notable exception.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (N. Y.), former chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and now ranking Democratic member, has been absent and in poor health for some time. Wagner may be urged to waive the chairmanship to his next in rank, Senator Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina.

Sprague Urges Support Of Truman by Nation

Mineola, N. Y., Nov. 3 (AP).—J. Russell Sprague, Republican national committeeman, today said that President Truman will have the support of all loyal Americans."

"The Republican Party waged a hard, hopeful fight for a change it believed necessary in the national Administration," Sprague said.

"The vote of the majority of the American people indicates that they do not wish to change that Administration.

Labor Beat Dewey Is Street Opinion

By John London
Post Reporter

Ask the man on the streets of the Nation's voteless Capital to explain the victory of President Truman, and he'll give you answers ranging from "Dewey's lack of personality" to "the Lord changed the people's mind."

But the explanation most frequently encountered in sidewalk interviews yesterday was Truman's appeal to the labor vote—particularly because of his opposition to the Taft-Hartley law.

Even some Dewey supporters seemed to agree that the President and union spokesmen had succeeded in branding the Taft-Hartley Act a symbol of anti-unionism, for which the Republican Eightieth Congress was held responsible.

Other explanations included Truman's hard-hitting campaign; "the mood of the people for a continuing New Deal," and the association in many people's mind of Republicanism with "depression" and "the rich man's party."

Two men thought there was "big money behind the polls and papers that predicted Dewey would win."

"Shocked" but "rather glad" to find out Truman won was Mrs. Doris Gimpel, bank secretary, who observed "many people think his policy on labor had a lot to do with it—the Taft-Hartley bill, you know."

Mrs. Gimpel

Kauffman

"I haven't gone into it, just what I hear people say," continued Mrs. Gimpel, of 704 N. Wayne st., Arlington. "By the time people got up to vote they changed their minds, I think, and they decided they were satisfied with what they had and afraid of what might happen with a change."

Dewey's biggest handicap, she thought, was "just the fact that he's a Republican, and Republicans—they're for the rich man, not the ordinary man." Mrs. Gimpel is a Kentucky native.

And here's the election analysis of a man who has lived 58 years and never voted once because he was born on Capitol Hill and has lived there ever since:

"The farmer and the workingman put Harry in there, for sure. The workingman has a job and he's got more money than ever before even if living expenses are high. The farmer, he's better off than ever; got money and equipment and living better."

So said Conrad Kauffman, 135

Mrs. Tiernan

Sarames

North Carolina ave. se., parttime bartender and cab driver, who wasn't too surprised at the upset of the pollsters because: "I don't believe 90 per cent of what I hear and I only believe 90 per cent of what I see."

A widowed waitress, Mrs. Mary Tiernan, 46, 520 E st. ne., figured Truman would win: "Organized labor and the common people elected him because of his opposition to the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

"My son lost an $18 bet on the election and I'm glad," she said. "I hear Dewey didn't believe in civil service and was going to abolish it, and Washington business depends on Government workers."

It's a good thing for the country to have a President and Congress of the same party, she thought, so now something can be done, though she wasn't sure what should be done about what.

According to a graduate student of economics at Georgetown University, polls were wrong about Truman's chances of election because of "a conspiracy of newspapers in general to lull the Democrats into a sense of helplessness."

"The mood of the people is for a continuing New Deal, not the bad-tasting conservative Republicans of the Eightieth Congress and that's why Truman won," said George Sarames, 24, 1708 R st. nw.

"Truman succeeded, and most important, got a Democratic Congress elected because he put the issues, especially domestic ones, squarely before the public—inflation, housing, health, and labor laws.

"The great thing for the liberal cause was that he won without the conservative southern Democrats. Of course, the Wallace people were just in cahoots with the Republicans to lead liberals up a blind alley."

Miss Teske

Jarratt

Miss Helen Teske, 21, telephone operator, 4612 Georgia ave. nw., suspected election results "might have something to do with the Taft-Hartley Act."

"They say the Republicans tried to down the unions, and wasn't Truman against the Taft-Hartley Act?

To the Texas eyes of James B. Jarratt, 38, tax consultant from Wichita Falls, here on business, it appeared Dewey helped beat himself with a "rocking chair campaign."

Definitely disappointed by the outcome was Mrs. Ethel Herran, 47, 2013 38th st. se. who found Truman "such an ineffectual sort of person—certainly he hasn't done well since he's been in there.

But Joseph A. Powell, 30-year-old cab driver of 18 5th st. ne., was very pleasantly surprised since "I fasted and prayed seven different days for the President to win."

Mrs. Herran

Powell

Bond Issue Is Put Across By Newer Arlington Sections

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Opposition to Arlington's $4,750,000 bond issue, approved by a 1498-vote margin Tuesday, came mainly from old-line residents of the county, an analysis of the poll yesterday showed.

Of the 12 precints voting against the bond, 11 were located in older, more settled sections of Arlington.

But returns from the other 12 precincts, most of them lying in newer, apartment-heavy areas of the county, put the bond across in the final vote.

Heaviest vote margin against the bond came from Lee Precinct in the settled center of Arlington, which balloted 388 against, 188 for the school program.

Other older precincts which also lie in the middle of Arlington and voted down the bond—but by smaller margins—were Cherrydale, Clarendon, Ashton Heights, Lyon Park, Courtland, Lyon Village, Park Lane, and Rosslyn.

Stacked against this opposition vote were totals like these from favoring precincts: 1152 for to 652 against in Barcroft Precinct, which includes the Buckingham and other apartment developments; and 698 for to 145 against from Fairlington Precinct, which includes the giant war-built housing project.

Westover Precinct, with its new one-family homes, voted for the bond 674 to 308. Big Columbia Precinct, which includes the Fillmore Gardens and Arlington Village apartments, favored it 978 to 880.

88 Taft-Hartley Supporters Are Defeated for Reelection

By Raymond J. Blair

Union leaders yesterday claimed the election of President Truman and a Democratic House and Senate as one of the greatest victories in the history of organized labor.

At press conferences and in statements issued through their headquarters here, they claimed for their political action groups a large share of the credit for the Democratic victory.

Out of 54 House members ousted from their seats in the voting, 51 voted for the Taft-Hartley labor law, according to an Associated Press tabulation. At least six Republican Senators who voted for the law also were retired.

The law was passed at the last Republican-controlled session of Congress over President Truman's veto. Union leaders, who denounced it as a "slave labor" law, centered their campaign activity on the defeat of members of Congress who voted for it. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the Republican presidential candidate, supported the law, but President Truman made it a major campaign issue, pledging to work for its repeal if elected.

Labor leaders were unanimous yesterday in saying that Mr. Truman's victory was a repudiation of the Eightieth Congress and the Taft-Hartley law. They predicted that the law would be repealed in the new Congress, although it was passed over President Truman's veto by huge majorities of both parties.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"By their votes, the American people have given the next Administration and the Eighty-first Congress a mandate for progressive action—action to wipe out the anti-labor program of the past Congress, action to halt rising prices, action to build millions of new homes at a cost within the reach of the average family, action to broaden and increase social security benefits, action to lift minimum wages," Mr. Green said.

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, sent President Truman a congratulatory telegram in which he said labor was "happy to have contributed so mightily to this victory of yours and ours." He said the CIO Political Action Committee brought out a "tremendous vote."

Jack Kroll, director of the CIO-PAC, told a news conference that the election results would influence legislation for 50 years. He said he thought his organization had played the largest role among the labor groups in getting out the vote.

"This is a complete and absolute repudiation of the Eightieth Congress, not only for passing the Taft-Hartley Act but also for its failure to act on housing and high prices," George Meany, secretary-treasurer of labor's League for Political Education, told reporters. The league is made up of AFL leaders.

The machinists' non-Partisan Political League said of its role in the election: "Our success is an indication that the solidarity of labor is as meaningful on the political front as it is in the economic field."

Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, one of the law's sponsors, said the act may have figured to "some extent" in the election results, but that in the main the election showed the impossibility of driving an administration out of office at the peak of a prosperity boom.

State-by-State Roundup of Election Results

By The Associated Press

Here are the election results in all States:

ALABAMA—J. Strom Thurmond, the States' Rights Democrat, got the Alabama vote for President. The voters reelected John J. Sparkman (D.) to the Senate and put Democrats in all 9 House seats according to custom. No election for Governor held this year.

ARIZONA—Truman defeated Dewey. Democrats again took the State's two House seats. Dan E. Garvey (D.) was elected Governor. No Senate election.

ARKANSAS—Truman won the State. John L. McClellan (D.), was returned to the Senate and Sidney S. McMath (D.), was elected Governor. Democrats kept hold of all seven House seats.

CALIFORNIA—Truman was leading Dewey in an amazing see-saw contest. In the battle over California's 23 House seats, the Republicans won 11 and the Democrats 6, with 6 races still in doubt. Old House line-up was: Republicans 14, Democrats 9. No elections for Senator or Governor this year.

COLORADO—Truman was leading Dewey. The Democrats put their man Edwin C. Johnson back in the Senate and their man Lee Knous back in the Governorship. The Democrats took 2 House seats and the Republicans 1, with 1 race in doubt. The old House line-up was: Republicans 3, Democrats 1.

CONNECTICUT—Dewey barely beat Truman. Chester Bowles (D.) was elected Governor. The State's six House seats, heretofore all occupied by Republicans, were divided 3-3 between the Republicans and Democrats. No Senate election.

DELAWARE—Dewey outran Truman in photo finish. But Democrats won hot races for Senator and Governor, J. Allen Frear, jr., knocking C Douglass Buck (R.) out of the Senate and Elbert N. Carvel taking over the Governorship. Delaware's one House seat stayed Republican.

FLORIDA—The Democrats put Florida in the Truman column, won the six House seats as usual, and elected Fuller Warren as Governor. No Senate election held.

GEORGIA—Truman won the State Herman Talmadge (D.) was named Governor. Richard B. Russell (D.) kept his Senate seat. The 10 House seats remained Democratic.

IDAHO—Truman was leading Dewey. Bert H. Miller, Democrat, edged out incumbent Henry C. Dworshak (R), in a close Senate race. The Republicans, who have seats, were forced to yield one of them to the Democrats. No election held for Governor.

ILLINOIS—Truman beat Dewey in exciting battle. Other Democrats did all right, too. Paul H. Douglas (D) captured the Senate chair of C. Wayland Brooks (R). Adlai E. Stevenson (D) wrested the Governorship away from Dwight H. Green (R). The Democrats also gained (six) new House seats but the Republicans managed to get a 14-12 margin in the 26-member House delegation.

INDIANA—Dewey clung to a narrow lead over Truman. The Democrats collected seven House seats and the Republicans four. Up to now the Republicans have held nine Houpse seats to the Democrats two. Henry F. Schricker (D) was eletced Governor. No Senator up for election.

IOWA—Truman won the State. Guy M. Gillette (D) won the Senate race, overturning Senator George Wilson (R). A Republican, William S. Beardsley, was named Governor. As for the eight House seats, the Republicans continued to hold all.

KANSAS—Dewey won the State. Frank Carlson (R) was reelected Governor. Andrew F. Schoeppel (R) was sent to the Senate. The GOP kept all six House seats.

KENTUCKY—Truman won the State. Virgil Chapman (D) knocked John Sherman Cooper (R.) out of the Senate. The Democrats won seven House seats and the Republicans two. This was a Democrat gain of one seat. No election for Governor this year.

LOUISIANA—J. Strom Thurmond apparently won this State's presidential favor. There were two senatorial contests. In one of them, Allen J. Ellender (D) was reelected. In the other, Russell B. Long (D) was leading his GOP opponent. The Democrats won seven House seats and the eighth was undecided; they normally win all congressional seats in Louisiana.

MAINE—Dewey carried the State. Earlier, on September 13, Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith (R.) was elected to the Senate; Republicans won all three House seats as usual; and Frederick G. Payne (R) was named Governor.

MARYLAND—Dewey beat Truman. The State's six House seats were won by four Democrats and two Republicans, same as before. Governor and Senator were not elected this year.

MASSACHUSETTS—Truman beat Dewey. Paul A. Dever (D) conquered Gov. Robert F. Bradford (R.) for the Governor's job. Republican Senator Leverett Saltonstall won reelection. The Democrats took six House seats and the Republican seight. The old House line-up was: Republicans, 9; Democrats, 5.

MICHIGAN—Dewey was leading Truman. Republican Gov. Kim Sigler lost to Democrat G. Mennen Williams. Republican Senator Homer Ferguson, seeking reelection, defeated his Democratic oponent. The Republicans won 12 House seats and the Democrats Democrats 4.

MINNESOTA—Truman defeated Dewey. Hubert H. Humphrey, D., took the Senate job of Joseph H. Ball, R., away from him. Republican Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl was reelected. The Republicans collected 5 House seats and the Democrats 4. The old House line-up was: Republicans 8, Democrats 1.

MISSISSIPPI—Thurmond swept the State in the presidential contest. The Democrats reelected Senator James O. Eastland and won the State's 7 House seats as usual. No election for Governor.

MISSOURI—Truman beat Dewey. The Democrats, who had been on the short end of a 9-4 division in the 13-man House delegation, reversed matters and won 12 seats to the Republicans' one. Forrest Smith, D., was named Governor. No Senate election.

MONTANA—Truman apparently won the State. James E Murray (D) was reelected Senator. John W. Bonner (D) achieved the Governorship. The Democrats took 1 House race and the other was in doubt. In the Eightieth Congress the two House seats were evenly divided.

NEBRASKA—Dewey took Nebraska. Kenneth S. Wherry (R) was reelected Senator. Val Peterson (R) was reelected Governor. The Republicans got 3 House seats and the Democrats 1. Up to now the Republicans had all four seats.

NEVADA—Truman narrowly beat Dewey. A Democrat ousted a Republican from Nevada's only House seat. Governor and Senator not elected this year.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Solidly in the Dewey column. Styles Bridges (R) was reelected to Senate. The Republicans won the two House seats as usual. Sherman Adams (R) was named Governor.

NEW JERSEY—Dewey beat Truman. A Republican, Robert C. Hendrickson, was elected to the Senate. The Democrats gained three House seats but the Republicans still led 9-5 in the 14-member delegation. No election for Governor.

NEW MEXICO—Truman was apparently beating Dewey here. Clinton S. Anderson (D) defeated Patrick J. Hurley (R) in the Senate contest. The two House seats went to Democrats, as before. Gov. Thomas J. Mabry (D) defeated Republican challenger.

NEW YORK—Dewey took the State by a small margin. But the Democrats captured a majority of the 45 House seats. The old lineup was: Republicans 28, Democrats 15, American Labor Party 2. Now it's this way: Democrats 23, Republicans 21, American Labor Party 1. No elections for Governor or Senator.

NORTH CAROLINA—Solidly in the Truman column. The Democrats won all 12 of the House seats, in customary fashion, and elected J. Melville Broughton to the Senate and W. Kerr Scott to the Governor's mansion.

NORTH DAKOTA—Dewey had a comfortable lead over Truman. Fred G. Aandahl (R.) was reelected Governor. The Republicans kept their grip on the State's two House seats. No Senate election.

OHIO—Truman apparently won Ohio. The Democrats grabbed the whip-hand in the 23-member Ohio House delegation, winning 12 seats to the GOP's 11. Formerly the Republicans enjoyed a 19-4 advantage. Also, Democrat Frank J. Lausche beat Republican Governor Thomas J. Herbert. No Senate election.

OKLAHOMA—Truman won the State and the Democrats made a congressional killing. They won all the eight House seats (heretofore the Republicans have held two of them) and sent Democrat Robert S. Kerr to the Senate. No election for Governor.

OREGON—Dewey seemed to be winning the State. The Republicans made a congressional sweep, returning Guy Cordon to the Senate and keeping hold of the State's four House seats. In addition, Republican Douglas McKay was elected Governor.

PENNSYLVANIA—Dewey swatted Truman in Pennsylvania but the Democrats made a gain of 11 House seats and the GOP barely preserved its majority of the 33-member House delegation by a 17-16 score. No elections for Senator or Governor.

RHODE ISLAND—The Democrats rode high here. Truman beat Dewey. Senator Theodore F. Green was reelected. So was Gov. John O. Pastore. And the Democrats retained the State's two House seats.

SOUTH CAROLINA—This State went for its Governor, Strom Thurmond, in the presidential race. Burnet R. Maybank (D.) was reelected Senator. The Democrats took all six House seats, as always. No election for Governor.

SOUTH DAKOTA—Dewey was leading Truman. Karl E. Mundt (R.) won a Senate seat. The Republicans also won the State's two House seats, as before. George T. Mickelson (R.) was reelected Governor.

TENNESSEE—Truman took Tennessee. Estes Kefauver (D.) beat B. Carroll Reece (R.) in the Senate contest. The House delegation stood 8 Democrats and 2 Republicans, same as before. Gordon Browning (D.) was elected Governor.

TEXAS—Truman defeated Dewey. The Democrats kept their grip on all 21 Texas House seats, elected Lyndon B. Johnson to the Senate, and reelected Beauford H. Jester to the Governorship.

UTAH—Truman won Utah. The Democrats took over both of the State's House seats, instead of sharing them with the Republicans as formerly. But a Republican, J. Bracken Lee, shouldered Democratic Governor Herbert B. Maw out of his job. No Senate election.

VERMONT—Dewey here as expected. Ernest W. Gibson was reelected Governor. Vermont's one House seat stayed Republican. No Senate election.

VIRGINIA—Truman captured the State. A. Willis Robertson (D.) was returned to the Senate. All nine of the House seats continued Democratic. No election for Governor.

WASHINGTON—Truman had a substantial lead over Dewey. Arthur B. Langlie (R) was leading Gov. Mon C. Wallgren (D.) in the race for Governor. The Democrats won two House seats and the Republicans two, with two races in doubt. Old House line-up was: Republicans, 5; Democrats, 1.

WEST VIRGINIA—The voters preferred Truman. They also elected Matthew M. Neely (D.) to the Senate and retired Senator Chapman Revercomb (R.). The Democrats won all six House seats (two of these have been occupied by Republicans up to now). Okey L. Patteson (D.) was elected Governor.

WISCONSIN—Truman defeated Dewey. The Democrats took two House seats, compared with none in the Eightieth Congress, but the Republicans still had an 8-2 margin among House members. The Republican Oscar Rennebohm was reelected Governor. No Senate election.

WYOMING—Truman apparently won the State. The Republicans hung onto Wyoming's lone House seat, but suffered a blow when Lester C. Hunt (D.) toppled E. V. Robertson (R.) out of the Senate. No election for Governor.

Truman Win Electrifies Europeans

London, Nov. 3 (U.P.)—President Truman's victory electrified Europe. today.

Stunned officials readjusted their political and economic sights in view of the Democratic sweep, regarded almost universally as an American trend away from the right.

Although only a few commented officially, except for congratulatory messages, privately the vast majority expressed pleasure. In the main, they considered the outcome as staunch American support for the present United States bipartisan foreign policy.

To the man in the street, from Dublin to Vienna, from Oslo to Rome, Mr. Truman's triumph was that of a courageous fighter over "big business."

The Vatican hailed the election as a victory for the "politically mature American people" over isolationism on one hand and subversive elements on the other.

In Germany the election news was received apathetically. In Spain it was received glumly, especially in military and banking circles.

Truman Invites Barkley on Florida Rest Trip; 'Going If I Can,' Says Vice President-Elect

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 3 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley today said he has been invited to go with President Truman Sunday for a two-week rest trip to Key West, Fla., and "I'm going if I can."

The invitation was extended by President Truman in a telephone talk with the veteran Kentucky statesman and Vice President-elect.

Barkley, sleepy and tired from the long election vigil, still retained his usual sense of humor. Members of his family and friends kept pace with election developments at the Barkley home here.

When the news came today that Thomas E. Dewey had conceded the election of Mr. Truman and Barkley, the 70-year-old Kentucky Senator remarked in mock solemnity:

"If you'll please be quiet, I'll call the Senate to order."

Asked to comment on preelection opinion polls that had forecast a Republican victory in yesterday's election, Barkley chuckled, "I'd like to see Brother Gallup's face this morning, and Brother Roper's, too."

Messages of congratulations poured in to him all day.

In a moment of more sober thought, Barkley said the election results merely confirmed his faith in the masses of the people. He said he would continue to do everything possible to advance the cause of world peace.

"I am, of course, gratified at the result of the election," he said. "It has reinforced my faith in the real strength of the masses of the American people.

"The President made one of the gamest fights ever made in American politics, and the result shows that the people responded magnificently.

approval of a ban on closed-shop contracts, jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts.

Proposed State bonuses for World War II veterans were given a mixed reception. Iowa, South Dakota and Indiana voted "yes" in a big way.

In Washington, a bonus proposal was leading on the basis of incomplete returns. But Wisconsin and Nebraska turned thumbs down on bonuses, and Missouri was following suit at the halfway mark in the vote count.

Kansas, bone-dry for 68 years, was rolling up a big vote for State-controlled sale of liquor on the basis of three-fourths of the returns. California apparently defeated a proposition for local control over liquor sales, and Washington returns indicated voter approval of a proposal to permit sale of drinks in hotels, restaurants and clubs.

In Oregon, however, the mounting totals indicated taht a similar proposition was defeated.

Results:

In Massachusetts, tabulation of two-thirds of the precincts showed voters had rejected a constitutional amendment that would have permitted doctors to prescribe contraceptives for married women when necessary to safeguard life or health.

In South Carolina, incomplete returns indicated adoption of a proposal to abrogate the State's old law against divorce. South Carolina has long been the only State in the Union with such a law.

In Colorado, the returns showed enthusiastic approval of legalization of racing and betting.

In Mississippi, an amendment authorizing election commissions to bar "persons not of good moral character" from voting was defeated by a two-to-one margin. The proposal did not define "good moral character." Opponents said it could have been used to prevent Negroes from voting.

Textile Union Head Sees Congress Repudiated

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Emil Rieve, general president of the CIO Textile Workers Union of America, said today that President Truman's Democratic Party victory indicated "the Eightieth Congress had been repudiated."

He added in a statement:

"In Massachusetts and Rhode Island, members of the TWUA played the leading role in Statewide victories. We can fairly claim much of the credit for Democratic triumphs in parts of Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Minnesota.

"Textile workers, though overlooked in the calculations of the so-called experts, contributed heavily to President Truman's majorities in Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky."

agony, heard yesterday over this Capital City:

Democrats—unpack your bags; Republicans—start packing.

CIVIL SERVICE: These committees will undergo a sweeping change of membership and leadership in both the Senate and the House.

In the Senate, Chairman Langer will be replaced by either Senator O'Conor (D., Md.), or Senator Johnston (D., S. C.). Both men have supported Federal worker reforms.

It was O'Conor who was responsible for increasing from $300 to $330 the recent pay raise for the 900,000 classified employes. After this increase had been approved, Johnson joined with Langer in a bill that would have given Federal workers another boost in pay.

Since Johnston's State of South Carolina was the stronghold of the Dixiecrats, it would appear that O'Conor is the best bet to be appointed committee chairman.

On the House side, Representative Tom Murray (D., Tenn.) will step up to the chairmanship to be vacated by Representative Ed Rees of Kansas. He's a former employe of the Postoffice Department here and he knows the story of the Federal worker from both sides of the fence. Murray was a stanch supporter of both the recent pay raise and retirement acts.

PAY: On Federal pay, President Truman can be expected to follow through on his campaign promise to urge the Congress to give Government workers another salary boost. In half a dozen letters to employe unions, the President characterized the July 1 increase as inadequate. Particularly, he'll pound away at higher pay for Federal executives.

And on that thought, Governor Dewey was so confident that he would win that he and members of his staff had arranged to take over the problem of higher Federal pay with several GOP Senators, including Senator Flanders (R., Vt.). Nevertheless, Flanders can be expected to continue his support of better salaries. The issue isn't political with him.

RECOGNITION: That tiny group of people who stuck with the President during his amazing campaign are now due for recognition. Among them are:

Interior Undersecretary Oscar Chapman, who was the President's advance man and chief arranger for his campaign trips; David Noyes, the public relations expert, who put a punch in the President's speeches; Louis Johnson, the former war Undersecreary, who took over the tough job of raising money for the Truman campaign and who is a good bet to [illegible] the Cabinet; Jay Franklin, another speechwriter, who is one of the few people who can say with justifiable pride, "I told you so"; Donald S. Dawson, an administrative assistant, who warned one and all to discount the political polls, and several other members of the White House staff.

Dewey's Maryland Margin Is 8095

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—President Truman lost the eight electoral votes of Maryland to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York by a margin of 8095 ballots.

The 9392 votes which Maryland gave to Henry A. Wallace (Progressive) would have been enough to keep the State in the Democratic column had they gone to Truman.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, States' Right Democrat, had a 53-vote margin over Socialist Norman Thomas in the State.

Governor Dewey fell 4106 votes short of a majority, but he gets the electoral vote anyway.

Complete Tabulation

A complete Associated Press tabulation of unofficial returns from Maryland's 1347 polling places gave these results:

Dewey 293,929.
Truman 285,834.
Wallace 9392.
Thurmond 2483.
Thomas 2430.

Not all polling places made immediate counts of minor party ballots. As a result, Statewide figures on these still are incomplete and will show an increase over present totals. But there will be no appreciable difference in the election picture.

In the Maryland Congressional races, the line-up stayed as it has been at four Democrats and two Republicans.

5 Are Reelected

Five incumbents reelected were Representative J. Glenn Beall (R.) of the Sixth (western Maryland) District; Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D.) of the Fifth (southern Maryland) District; Representative George H. Fallon (D.) of the Fourth (Baltimore) District; Representative Edward A. Garmatz of the Third (Baltimore) District, and Representative Edward T. Miller (R.) of the First (Eastern Shore) District.

Elected to his first term in the House was State Senator William P. Bolton (D) of Towson, to represent the Second District, made up of Baltimore, Carroll and Harford counties, and part of Baltimore City. He succeeds Representative Hugh A. Meade (D., Md.) whom Bolton beat in the primary last spring.

In the presidential race, President Truman had a 23,427 vote lead in Baltimore City.

But Governor Dewey bettered his 1944 performance in the rural areas by piling up a 31,522 vote margin through the 23 Maryland counties. His 1944 lead in the counties was 27,819.

3 Changed From '44

A major factor in the final result was that Baltimore City did not come through for Truman as it did for President Roosevelt in 1944. Then the city gave the President a 50,676 lead, enabling him to overturn Dewey's lead in the counties, and to win the State by 22,857 votes.

Only three of the Maryland counties crossed party lines from their 1944 stands in the presidential race, but one of the switchovers was a big factor for Dewey.

Baltimore County, most heavily populated in the State, went against Dewey in 1944 by 12,228 votes. This time he won it by 9946 votes. The Baltimore County vote was 40,866 for Dewey and 30,920 for Truman.

Allegany and Calvert counties both shifted from their 1944 place in the pro-Dewey column to give slender margins to President Truman.

All the other counties this time stayed with the party they favored in 1944. Fifteen counties went to Dewey: Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Caroline, Carroll, Charles, Frederick, Garrett, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, St. Marys, Somerset, Talbot, Washington and Worcester.

Eight counties this time went to Truman: Allegany, Calvert, Cecil, Dorchester, Kent, Prince Georges, Queen Anne's and Wicomico.

By available returns the total vote was 594,068, the lightest presidential vote in Maryland since 1932. The Republican victory broke the Maryland streak of backing presidential winners. Not since 1888 had Marylanders given a majority to a national loser—although in 1904 and 1908, while giving popular majorities to the winner it gave electoral vote majorities to the loser. In 1904 the State chose but one elector for the winning Republican Party, and seven Democratic electors. In 1908 it chose two electors from the winning Republican Party and six Democratic electors.

Sixth District: Representative Beall (R.), Frostburg, reelected with 59,979 to 48,137 for F. Byrne Austin (D.), Takoma Park wholesaler. For the first time in his four races, Beall lost one of his five counties when Allegany, his home county, went against him. Allegany has a large industrial population and it gave Austin 14,587 to 14,028 for Beall.

Fifth District: Representative Sasscer (D.), Upper Marlboro, was reelected with 45,896 to 30,944 for C. Maurice Weidemeyer (R.), Annapolis and Washington attorney. Sasscer had defeated Weidemeyer in 1944.

Democrats' House Selling Just Rumors

A report that scores of leading Democrats had quietly placed their homes on the market for sale in anticipation of a Dewey landslide has proven just one more election rumor.

A check of leading real estate firms revealed that even a presidential election didn't jar the local property market out of its annual autumn doldrums. A typical comment was that of Raymond M. Taylor, president of the Washington Real Estate Board and an official of Shannon & Luchs, Inc.

"We've had no calls for sale or purchase of housing from high-ranking leaders on either side. I don't know of any firm that has."

F. Moran McConihe, president of Randall H. Hagner Co., Inc., rental agent for some of the larger downtown apartment developments, reported that the elections had slowed down the rental of luxury-class apartments, instead of stimulating them.

"I'm amazed that I've heard nothing about prospective housing needs," he added. "We haven't heard of any Democrats listing properties for sale. Nor have I heard of any Republicans down here looking."

A check of hotels that the Republican National Committee had reserved several rooms at the Mayflower for the January 20 inauguration. C. E. Mack, Mayflower general manager, reported it was too early to expect any cancellations, although "some might come in a day or two."

Poll Takers' Pride Wounded, But Bookies Lost Cash, Too

St. Louis, Nov. 3 (AP).—The poll takers and the bookies had one thing in common today—their wounded pride. But the bookies suffered an added hurt to their pocketbooks.

They took a beating with President Truman's victory. Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll, who wasn't immediately available for comment, was offering 8 to 1 on Mr. Truman. Bettors who liked Governor Dewey's chances had to put up $15 to $1.

One bookmaker admitted "the books took a beating. There's going to be many a body floating up the Hudson River."

"For once in my life I had a good hunch and didn't take any election bets. Just for suits and hats."

Bob Hannegan, who now is president of the Cardinals baseball club, but who has been chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said he wagered on Mr. Truman at odds of 10 and 15 to 1.

Said he, happily: "I will collect a substantial sum."

Physician Declares Truman 'In Great Shape'

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Dr. Wallace Graham, the President's personal physician, said today that Mr. Truman "came through the campaign in great shape."

"Last night he was in better health than the day after he left Washington," Graham said.

He was referring to September 18, the day the President made his opening speech at Dexter, Iowa, on his long Western swing.

Graham was asked if the President had lost any weight.

He said the President probably had lost some weight, but that he believed it was not so much because of the campaign but because of a personal bet they had between them on weight losing. He did not describe the nature of the wager.

New Faces Likely in Cabinet; Marshall Expected to Resign

to stay on in the new Administration.

Forrestal Likely to Go

As for Defense Secretary Forrestal, he has given friends the impression that he would quit regardless of who won the election. He might change his mind if President Truman now asked him to stay, but the widespread belief here yesterday was that the President wouldn't ask him.

Two names were already being discussed for Forrestal's job both of men who worked hard for the President's reelection and whom the President regards as utterly loyal to him. One is former Assistant Secretary of War Louis S. Johnson; the other is Army Secretary Royall, the only top Southerner in the Government who went to the South to speak and work against the Dixiecrats on their own ground.

Last week the President showed his regard for Royall by asking him to come to Independence, Mo., to address a preelection rally.

Tobin Worked Hard

Among others in the Cabinet, Agriculture Secretary Brannan, Labor Secretary Tobin and Attorney General Clark worked like Trojans for the President's reelection, and Brannan and Tobin especially are expected to become key figures in the second Truman Administration.

Tobin helped to deliver his home State of Massachusetts to the President; Brannan's efforts among the farmers were regarded as an important factor in swinging normally Republican farm States into the Democratic column.

Other members of the Cabinet, however, twiddled their thumbs in the election campaign, and the fact is not likely to be forgotten at the White House when the President returns.

If, for example, Commerce Secretary Sawyer or Interior Secretary Krug lifted more than one finger for the President, it has not been a matter of public record. Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington, beaten at Tuesday's polls, is already being mentioned as a successor to Krug at the Interior Department; another being mentioned is Undersecretary Oscar Chapman.

The guessing here yesterday was that the President would make greater use of Democrats who worked hard and loyally for his reelection—among them former Price Administrators Paul Porter and Leon Henderson, Thomas G. Corcoran of the early New Deal days, and labor leaders whose support proved invaluable on Election Day.

Hoffman Due to Stay

At least one major post of Cabinet rank was believed yesterday to be safe in the hands of its present occupant. This is the job of Economic Cooperation Administrator, now held by Paul G. Hoffman, a Republican in private life but a nonpartisan businessman in the eyes of many leading Democrats here.

President Truman appointed Hoffman, partly on the advice of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, then chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The President has had only two talks with Hoffman at the White House since the ECA was established in April, but as far as is known here the President is grateful to Hoffman for the way he has tackled a difficult job.

So it would be a surprise to some Democratic officials here if the President should let Hoffman go between now and January 20. Hoffman's job will be made easier in coming months by the defeat of so many opponents of ECA in Congress, and especially by the expected resignation of Charles S. Dewey, a former Republican Congressman and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, as "agent-general" of the congressional watchdog committee on foreign aid programs.

Maryland Votes to Bar Reds From Office

Baltimore, Nov. 3 (AP).—Maryland has a so-called anti-Communist law.

An amendment to the constitution barring from public office persons who advocate overthrow of the Government by force was among six approved by the voters Tuesday.

The amendments also make two fundamental changes in the State government.

The Governor's tenure is limited to two successive elected terms of four years each, and the General Assembly will meet annually instead of once every two years.

The voting sentiment, however, was against another amendment and a referendum which would have cut six months off the term of Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. Lee Elgin.

The unofficial returns are from 940 of the State's 1347 voting places.

The "anti-subversive" amendment was admittedly aimed at the Communists when it was proposed at this year's special session of the General Assembly. It was approved by a vote of 123,589 to 72,530.

The vote on the referendum to remove Commissioner Elgin was comparatively close. There were 102,035 votes for rejecting it and 90,526 in favor.

Heavy Selling Deluges N. Y. Stock Market

By C. Norman Stabler

New York, Nov. 3 (NYHT).—Heavy selling deluged the New York Stock Exchange today as selling orders from large and small investors in all parts of the country poured into Wall Street.

Leading issues were knocked down two to more than six points in a break that was the sharpest since September 9, 1946, and, on the basis of the total number of shares listed on the Big Board, it is estimated that at least three billion dollars in value was obliterated.

The Democratic sweep in the election, which caught politakers and political seers completely by surprise, was an equal shock to investors, who saw a dollars-and-cents rating put on their faulty guess.

The long, steady upward progress that the stock market has made since its September low was virtually eliminated in one day.

Orders Arrive Early

Selling orders began coming over the wires to Wall Street houses well before the opening of the market at 10 o'clock. One firm, which handles a good portion of odd-lot business from relatively small investors in cities spread throughout the country, reported shortly after the opening that its wires were clogged.

In some cases, the accumulation of quantities of these small orders made it difficult for the Stock Exchange to arrange an opening price, and the first sale for these issues had to be delayed. When bids were finally secured, the selling orders were grouped, and the ticker carried a story of blocks of 1000 to 6000 shares of certain stocks changing hands at sharply lower prices.

United States Steel opened on a block of 15,000 shares, down 4. It was impossible to open General Motors until after 11 o'clock, when a sale was arranged, down 4¾. It closed off 2⅞.

Eight thousand Westinghouse dropped that pivotal leader 2¾, and one for 5000 shares of Sears, Roebuck & Co. showed an initial loss of 2⅞.

Over 3 Million Shares

There were other large blocks, and at the close a total of 3,230,000 shares had changed hands on the Big Board, the second largest total of this year, being exceeded only by that of May 14, when the bull market of 1947-48 broke through on the upside.

Officials of the exchange and representatives of leading firms pointed out that the so-called professionals of the street were not as pessimistic as the general public. They bought more shares than the y sold. Members of the exchange who trade for their own account only, and the specialists in individual issues, were buyers on balance, but they were swamped by public selling.

While the surprise in the election was the main cause of the heavy influx of liquidation, the Street summarized the subsidiary reasons somewhat as follows:

The election of President Truman, who once had vetoed the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, and his control of both Houses of Congress, was seen as presaging the repeal of this act, and consequent labor troubles;

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), slated to head the Senate Finance Committee, expressed the view there was "little chance" for tax reductions;

A excess profits tax might be reenacted, in line with President Truman's program expressed this summer;

Inventory control, rationing of scarce articles and price controls might be reestablished;

Restrictions on commodity speculation were regarded as a distinct possibility; and

Some investors felt the swing might encourage more active prosecution of anti-trust cases.

Opposite View

There is an opposite view of the security markets, and one which many of Wall Street's astute traders apparently acted upon when the selling was heaviest. The view took note of the fact that equity securities never participated in the inflation that touched other forms of wealth; that earnings and the returns on the securities of most of our leading corporations are higher than normal, and that there is nothing in the election to hint of any diminution in governmental spending.

A sharp drop in the price of Stock Exchange seats was another reflection of the day's developments. A membership changed hands early in the day at $52,000, off $3000 from the previous price.

Truman Pledges Best for Platform

plays," Mayor Sermon said in apologizing for the absence of "fuss and feathers."

The President came here from Kansas City, where, earlier today he had received definite word of his election to the Presidency for a full four-year term.

Thursday he will leave here by train at 8 a. m., and is scheduled to arrive in Washington at 11 a. m., Friday. Sunday morning he will fly to Key West, Fla., for a brief vacation, stopping at Wilmington, N. C., to attend church.

Refreshed by an untroubled 9½ hours of sleep, Mr. Truman waited this morning in his Hotel Muehlebach penthouse suite while his lead piled up, refusing to comment until he was assured that his Republican opponent, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, had conceded the election. Then he called in friends, members of the White House staff, reporters and photographers and issued a brief statement pledging devotion to the cause of peace and prosperity.

"I feel very deeply the responsibility which has fallen to my lot as the result of the election," his statement said. "I shall continue to serve the American people to the best of my ability. All my efforts will be devoted to the cause of peace in the world and the prosperity and happiness of our people here at home."

The President issued his statement soon after bulletins reporting Governor Dewey's congratulatory telegram had been torn from news tickers in the pressroom adjoining his suite and passed in to him. Upon receiving Governor Dewey's telegram, he sent this reply: "I thank you sincerely for your congratulations and good wishes. Your fine sportsmanship is deeply appreciated. We jointly owe congratulations to the American people, who have shown the world the vitality of our free institutions."

One of the President's first acts upon being assured of victory was to telephone his running mate, Senator Alben W. Barkley, at his Paducah, Ky., home. Mr. Truman thanked Barkley for the part he had played in the campaign and expressed appreciation for his "splendid" cooperation.

For 20 minutes after Mr. Truman learned of his opponent's concession of defeat his suite was the scene of wild rejoicing, lit by floodlights of newsreel men and punctuated by the incessant spotty brilliance of flashbulbs. The President stood with his brother, J. Vivian Truman, and received congratulations from friends here and from those who had been with him on his grueling campaign.

Proceedings came abruptly to a halt once when the powerful floodlights burned out the fuses in the suite. These were replaced in a few minutes and congratulations went ahead as uproariously as ever.

Grinning with delight and furiously shaking hands, Mr. Truman was the picture of radiant health, freshly shaved and much more rested than most of those around him. With the finest opportunity a man ever had to say, "I told you so," he referred to his predictions of victory with modesty. "I don't say what I don't mean," he told a correspondent who had been with him throughout the campaign.

Photographed with a half-dozen members of his old World War I command, Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, he said: "I just want to deserve the honor."

Confident and happy, he was the man who had proved himself right and everybody else wrong, had confounded all the professional pollsters, had carried in a friendly Congress on his own back. He was the pitcher who had won his own ball game.

In a blue double-breasted suit with a white-dotted blue tie, Mr. Truman stood among his haggard staff and received congratulations with the air of a man who had expected nothing else. The candidate, who had entered the election already defeated, had spent a night of unworried sleep while most of the Nation knocked itself out sitting up all night to get the returns.

At 11:15 a. m., Mr. Truman left the hotel after secret service men, assisted by an emeregncy detail of Kansas City police, had cleared a way for him through the crowded corridor and lobby. When he emerged unannounced from the hotel a crowd was waiting, a crowd that had been growing since early morning. A great shout went up, adjacent streets were filled with citizens rushing to see the home-town boy who made good. They announced at the tops of their voices that they had a champion on their hands, a champion who had been counted out before he ever entered the ring.

From Kansas City, Mr. Truman went to the Elms Hotel at Excelsior Springs, Mo., where he said he would bathe in the mineral waters there and lunch before returning to Independence. The same hotel, it was learned this morning, was his hideout last night while his mysterious absence drove reporters to the edge of frenzy.

SKYLINE FOR S. A.—Stewardess Anna Alvarado of Peruvian International Airways scans the headlines of one of The Washington Post's Wednesday election editions before they were loaded aboard a plane for South America. The Washington Post sent the papers to bankers and businessmen in Lima, Peru, including Pedro Beltran, publisher of La Prensa, Lima newspaper. The editions arrived at Washington National Airport at 2:10 a. m., yesterday in time to catch the PIA's regular flight to S. A.

Wallace and Thomas Congratulate Truman

The following messages of congratulation went to President Truman yesterday from other candidates:

Henry A. Wallace, in a telegram to Mr. Truman—"In honoring you with their confidence, the people have indorsed your declarations that you stand for controls to bring down prices, for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law, for price protection to farmers, for guarantees of full civil rights to the Negro people, and for full recognition and assistance to the new state of Israel as established by the partition decision of the United Nations in November, 1947."

Norman Thomas in a telegram to Mr. Truman—"In these very critical times, for the sake of our country, I wish your Administration the best sort of success."

Stunned Dewey Not to Try Again for the Presidency

personally wrote out a telegram to President Truman. It said:

"My heartiest congratulations on your election and every good wish for a successful administration. I urge all Americans to unite behind you in support of every effort to keep our Nation strong and free and to establish peace in the world."

Two hours later he faced 150 newspaper, radio and television men, as sleepless as he was on the mezzanine of the Hotel Roosevelt—the same spot where he concede defeat four years ago.

Admits He Doesn't Know Why

He admitted he didn't know yet why he had lost. He acknowledged that organized labor may have played a part but pointed to his defeat in the farm States of Iowa and Wisconsin. He said the huge turnout made it apparent that a small vote was not the reason. Perhaps, he said, study will show that the record of the Eightieth Congress played a part.

Weary but courteous, Dewey obviously wanted to end this final press conference quickly and rejoin his family.

If there were tears among his mother, his wife or his two young sons, Tom, jr., 14, and Johnny, 12, closest friends. They never came out of their suite on the fifteenth floor where they had kept the vigil throughout the long night. They were to leave by train for Albany the State capital, at 5 p. m.

"Team" Is Sorrowful

But the sorrow could not be hidden by the "team" that had supported him, particularly the little people—the stenographers, the receptionists, the messengers. Twenty-four hours before they had been chattering happily about the Washington housing shortage and now their hero was vanquished. And if any went to Washington, they'd go as tourists.

It was a strange thing to witness the transformation of mood. Early last night it had been expectant jubilation, with GOP Campaign Manager Herbert Brownell, jr., proclaiming: "This is a Republican year."

As Mr. Truman moved ahead in the early returns, the party workers only smiled and nodded knowingly at Brownell's explanation that it was the "big city" vote, that the rural districts would swing the tide.

But as midnight passed and the "underdog" Truman stubbornly held his lead, the mood changed to anxiety and then to fatigue and concern.

Telegram Marks End

Around 11 a. m., Jim Haggerty, Dewey's press secretary, walked into the mezzanine, trembling with nervousness, waving a yellow Western Union slip above his head.

"This is it," he said.

Then he read Dewey's telegram to President Truman, and unshaven and bedraggled newspapermen dove for telephones to flash the news that Dewey had given up.

At 1 p. m., neatly dressed in a gray striped suit, a white shirt and a red and gray necktie, Dewey strode briskly into the room. His face was drawn and lined but the smile never left his face.

"Is there anything I can tell anyone here that they don't already know?" he asked.

A reporter asked him if he was surprised.

"I'm just as surprised as anybody else," he replied.

"Was it an error of strategy," someone asked.

Dewey thought for a moment before answering.

"Governor Warren and I are both happy that we waged a clean and constructive campaign, and I have no regrets in the world," he said.

He was asked about continued cooperation on foreign policy.

"The bipartisan foreign policy must continue," he said. "This last weekend was one of the blackest in recent history—I mean the news from Greece and China."

He said he saw no future in the third party of Henry A. Wallace and declined to comment on the public opinion polls which forecast the election of the smooth-working Dewey "team" which coasted to victory at the Philadelphia convention last July.

"I hate to comment on anyone else's misfortune," he said wryly.

A reporter asked him about his future plans.

"I simply have no plans," he said. "I am going to Albany at 5 p. m. with my wife, mother and two boys.

"I imagine I'll go down to the farm pretty soon—for a weekend."

Truth about real cause of dandruff and scalp itch revealed by noted skin specialist. Releases miracle-working KORVO formula for home treatment. Used successfully for ten years in his private practice. Astounding results on record in even the most stubborn cases. Stops itching almost immediately. Helps prevent conditions that often lead to thinning of hair and to baldness. Keeps hair and scalp free from excessive dandruff and related infection.

Stop Trying to remove scalp film, dandruff, scalp itch.

For real relief REMOVE THE CAUSE

Dandruff, scalp itch, dry or oily scalp, even partial baldness resulting from tormenting and embarrassing dandruff usually are Nature's warning signals of interference with the glands, papillae and hair follicles that provide nourishment, health and strength to the hair.

As long as the causes of these problems are not corrected, the trouble will continue to recur.

"Plugged" Follicles Retard Hair Growth

Follicle "plugs" are the imbedded accumulation of oil, dust, grime, soot, alkaline substances and surface dead cells in the hair "pores". By their irritating effect, these follicle "plugs" cause visible dandruff, itching, a decreased oil gland production and frequently inflammation, minor infection and lessened hair cell activity.

If these conditions are not remedied, the existing hair may become brittle, the falling of hair become rapid, and ultimately permanent thinning of the hair and areas of baldness may result.

Hair Follicles Should Be Kept "Open" —That Is The Law Of Nature

Visible hair is lifeless. Therefore, growing hair must receive all its nourishment from the general blood supply. It cannot be fed from the outside.

When the hair follicles are choked from within, the hair is thus deprived of air and nourishment. Being unable to live under such abnormal conditions, the hair may waste away and fall out. In the early stages of this condition, a new growth of hair may replace the old. But if it in turn suffers in the same manner, the abused hair gives up the fight and dies, often leaving a permanently bald scalp.

By elimination of these problems the hair growth will return to normal, except in cases of hereditary factors of early baldness, ideopathic baldness, diseases that cause atrophy of the hair cells, and old age.

KORVO, a scientific germicidal formula, penetrates into the hair follicles and actually dissolves scalp film. It lends assistance to the oil glands, dilates the capillaries that furnish added nourishment to the hair cells, and helps promote hair growth. The natural result will be to bring life and lustre back to the hair and increase its vitality and resistance.

Read These Remarkable Examples of How KORVO Treatment Helped Correct Even Most Stubborn Cases of Dandruff and Scalp Itch for Patients of Noted Dermatologist

CASE No. 1—Patient G. DeW.—Complained of marked thinning of the hair, accompanied by itching and dandruff. After three months, following daily use of KORVO, examination showed completely healed scalp, with evidence of new hair growth over areas that the patient had reported as nearly bald.

CASE No. 2—Patient R. A.—Complained of profuse flow of oil to the scalp, matting of the hair and excessive visible dandruff. Hair and scalp were shampooed twice weekly and the relief from the excess oil following the shampoo never lasted more than 48 hours. After five daily treatments with KORVO, examination of the scalp showed no evidence of dandruff, a normal supply of oil coating to the scalp and hair.

CASE No. 3—Patient D. H.—Complained of a very dry, itchy scalp of approximately 20 years duration. He had used many commercial products and prescriptions to no avail. Examination revealed dry bruised scalp with areas of infection and surface adherent deposits of wax. Hair revealed extreme dryness and brittleness. Treatment with KORVO gave patient immediate relief from itching. Within five days following the beginning of treatment, examination of scalp revealed it was free from concretions and minor infected areas.

KORVO represents a distinct advance in the care of hair and scalp. It is a scientific pharmaceutical product, is safe and proven beneficial to scalp and hair. KORVO is not a hair restorative.

No Longer Necessary to Pay High Fees to Get These Results If You Use KORVO As Directed

KORVO clears up severe cases of dandruff in as little as five days.

KORVO gives instant and continued relief from itching—regardless of its degree (when used as directed).

Harry Gave Experts That Harried Look

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

There should have been more people "eating crow" across the country yesterday than there are crows in the United States.

If all the crimson-faced political "experts," pollsters and newspaper writers who placed Dewey in the White House before the polls closed were blended together, the resulting rosy hue would look like the Communists, instead of the Democrats, had swept the Nation.

Among the "crow eaters" were almost all columnists in the country—including those in The Washington Post.

Before the contest became conclusive yesterday, the Nation's newspapers were in an embarrassing lathe attempting to "call the turn" amid widly see-sawing returns—and many called it wrong.

Actual Print It

The "home edition" of the Chicago Tribune, on the newsstands here yesterday morning, flatly announced in its banner headline: "Dewey Defeats Truman."

Women's Wear Daily, leading publication in the women's clothing industry, baldy reported: "Dewey, Warren Win; Business Gain Seen," and across its front page informed its readers "what to expect" of the "Dewey Administration."

Most morning newspapers were more fortunate in being able to correct earlier bad guesses by new editions on sale here, but many wound up tightly hugging the news fence, with such headlines as:

"House May Name President; Democrats Win Congress"—The Washington Post.

"Truman And Dewey Are In Close Race; Governor Is Winner In New York State; Thurmond Gets 40 Votes; Wallace Trails"—The New York Times.

"Dewey, Truman Running Close Race, Labor Vote Gives President Early Lead; Governor Ahead Here By Small Tally"—The Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Truman Far Outruns Forecasts, Leads in 23 States, Dewey in 20 . . ."—The Baltimore Sun.

Ends Up On Own Limb

In Alexandria, the Alexandria Gazette, "America's oldest daily newspaper," which was supporting Governor Thurmond, ended up on a special limb of its own.

A front page editorial, written at "8 a. m." when the election issue was in doubt, foresaw neither Truman nor Dewey winning an electoral majority, throwing the election into the House with:

". . . a good chance of electing Governor Thurmond and Governor Wright the next President and Vice President of the United States." The paper's election story, however, gave the race to Truman.

If there are such things as relative shades of election embarrassment, crowding the warmest end of the color wheel were the Nation's poll-takers.

On September 9, pollster Elmo Roper decided on the basis of his latest Fortune Magazine Survey—reprinted in many newspapers—that it was useless to continue his presidential poll.

Only a Convulsion

Stating that only a "political convulsion" could bar Dewey from the White House, he added:

"My (future) silence on this point can be construed as an indication that Mr. Dewey is so clearly ahead that we might as well get ready to listen to his inaugural on January 20, 1949."

In his last report, on October 31, Dr. George Gallup stated: "Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will win the presidential election with a substantial majority of electoral votes." His final prediction: Dewey, 49.5 per cent of the vote; Truman, 44.5; Wallace, 4; Thurmond, 2.

Archibald M. Crossley, director of the Crossley Poll, announced in his final poll published October 29: "Governor Dewey and Governor Warren are assured of election." He gave Dewey 49.9 per cent of the vote; Truman, 44.8; Wallace, 3.3; Thurmond, 1.6; others, 0.4.

Lincoln Gave Dewey 329

Last Sunday, the Washington Evening Star's Gould Lincoln said, "Thomas E. Dewey will be elected President of the United States Tuesday. He is expected to have not less than 329 votes in the electoral college."

The same day, The Washington Post's Edward T. Folliard stated: "The 1948 campaign for the presidency is over. It ended as it began, with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York an overwhelming favorite to defeat President Truman and move into the White House on January 20."

Said Frank R. Kent in Sunday's Baltimore Sun:

Some day the betting odds, the prognosticators, prophets, polls experts, analysts, and "trained observers" may all turn out to be wrong and the presidential candidate whom all the "authorities" agree is a beaten man, coming suddenly from behind, tear across the line a victor . . .

". . . Prior to this campaign, no such miracle has ever ocurred in American politics . . ."

On election day, an editorial in the Washington Star asked, "Is the American press at last going to be on the right side of a presidential election? . . . It is not the function of the press to tell the people how to vote . . . (but to) report the news and express such opinions as it may have."

Almost Unanimous

The Washington Times-Herald, on Monday, carried a United Press story, stating: "Polls and political surveys agreed almost unanimously today that for the first time in 20 years the Nation will elect a Republican to be President of the United States."

On Tuesday, the Wall Street Journal's Philip Geyelin stated in that newspaper's lead story: "Government will remain big, active and expensive under President Thomas E. Dewey."

The same day Scripps-Howard chain pundit Fred Othman was saying in the Washington Daily News: "The ballots haven't been counted at this writing, but there seems to be no further need for holding up an affectionate farewell to Harry Truman, who will go down in history as the President that nobody hated."

(Othman, with most of the ballots counted, began his Wednesday column with, "The cold, gray dawn of the day after election is about to break and on my new electric stove I am boiling a crow.")

The Nation's news magazines, caught in a time squeeze by having to publish before election day for sale dates after election, generally hedged on calling it an outright Dewey victory by quoting somebody else to that effect.

Survey of 50 Writers

Newsweek carried a survey of 50 leading political writers, all predicting Dewey's victory, and said in an "Election-eve Survey" that the "average political expert" on August 1 would have forecast Dewey winning 375 to 390 electoral votes.

"In the surcharged atmosphere of late October," said Newsweek, "the average expert might want to hedge his August forecast, but fundamentally he would have to recognize there has been little change in Presidential prospects."

Said Time Magazine, "Few voters believed that there would be any contest on Election Day," and went on to quote the Gallup Poll predicting a Dewey victory.

Said U. S. News & World Report: "Between election and Inauguration Day—with a Dewey victory—an Administration that stands defeated and on the way out of office will continue to run the country."

Kiplinger Magazine had just mailed its subscribers a special 32-page edition, entitled, "What Dewey Will Do."

Pathfinder, forecasting 294 to 377 electoral votes for Dewey, said: "Next Wednesday morning Americans will know the answer to the only real question of the 1948 national campaign: Will a Republican or a Democratic Senate sit in the Eighty-first Congress?"

Life Magazine was out on its limb even before the election. Its November 1 issue carried a full-page picture of Governor and Mrs. Dewey, captioned, "The next President travels by ferry boat over the broad waters of San Francisco Bay."

Probably the most glaring boners in the bad-guess department, however, were those columns that appeared in Wednesday morning newspapers together with the election returns. Because of mechanical obstacles, newspapers could not "pull" these in time.

Columnist Drew Pearson was caught flat-footed with a prospective lineup of the "Dewey Cabinet."

It's a Matter of Fact

The columnist team of Joseph and Stewart Alsop was saying, "The first postelection question is how the Government can get through the next 10 weeks . . . Events will not wait patiently until Thomas E. Dewey officially replaces Harry S. Truman."

Marquis Childs was gloomily declaring:

"The fate of the Democratic Party in the aftermath of the campaign and the election has a great many people guessing. The many-sided split within the party goes so deep that it hardly seems possible that Humpty-Dumpty can be put together again."

Walter Lippmann, who forecast Dewey the victor, was most fortunate of all—his column does not appear on Wednesdays in The Washington Post. (In this morning's column, "As one who did not foresee the result of the election," Lippmann explains his bad guess.)

Columnist John O'Donnell of the N. Y. Daily News and Washington Times-Herald was caught saying, "So what will Harry do after January 20? We don't much care."

Bob Considine started his column in the Washington Times-Herald with, "A new President of the United States acquires an appalling number of fresh duties . . ."

In the same newspaper, Howard Lewis was discussing Federal job possibilities "early in the new Dewey Administration."

Financial columnist J. A. Livingston, in The Washington Post, was speculating on Dewey's effect on the stock market, while women's columnist Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer devoted her column to Mrs. Earl Warren.

Even Shirley Povich had his foot in his column, writing that "golf was restored as the major sport of the White House, according to the trend of the early balloting. Tom Dewey, a low 80's man. . . ."

Old Digest Ghost in Stitches; Science, Ha! Laughs Ex-Editor

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—The Literary Digest turned over in its grave today—and laughed.

At least, its last editor found himself grinning over the hangover now afflicting the public opinion polls. All picked Governor Dewey to beat President Truman. It was the Digest, in 1936, that quietly folded its tent and went out of business after picking Landon to beat Roosevelt.

"I get a very good chuckle out of this—nothing malicious, mind you," said graying Wilfred J. Funk. "We were told by contemporary pollsters that we had been unscientific. I'm afraid they made the same mistakes. I'm afraid the word 'science' isn't going to be used with a poll for a long time.

"In fact, I think that national political polls will be nonexistent for a long time. We are still laughed at. And these pollsters will meet the same ridicule when they try to solicit business."

Funk, now a book publisher, expressed sympathy for people like Dr. George Gallup and Elmo Roper.

"I shudder to think," he said, "of the stock jokes they'll run into. Believe me, I know. But, although it may be wrong to feel this way, I must admit I get some consolation to see that others can make the same mistake we did."

That mistake, Funk believes, is that the poll in 1936 and the polls in 1948 "somehow failed, during dramatically emotional periods, to reach a great mass of people who turned up in the voting booths. Who those people are, I don't have the slightest idea. But it's like an earthquake and some strange emotional force blows science out of the window."

Commons Hears About Gallup Voting Reverse

London, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Conservative Brendan Bracken warned members of Commons today that they had better beware of quoting from old speeches made against him when he was wartime Minister of Information.

"The practice may be even more embarrassing than, say, the American election results are to Dr. Gallup," he said.

Gallup Sees Close Election A 'Nightmare'

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

New York, Nov. 3.—This is the kind of a close election that happens once in a generation, and is a nightmare to poll takers.

Everyone is asking "what happened?" Why did all the polls underestimate Truman's strength? The answer to this question will likely be found in an analysis of voting statistics when they are all available.

Pertinent Questions

Here are the pertinent questions to which we are seeking the answer:

1. Which voters stayed home?

Only 47 million voters went to the polls Tuesday.

Another 47 million voters stayed home. Was it the Republicans or the Independent voters who failed to show up at the polls?

2. What about the undecided vote?

As late as the final week of the campaign some three million voters had not yet made up their minds. Since many of these voters who were undecided had voted the Democratic ticket in earlier elections, many of them must have decided to cast their vote for Truman during the last few days of the campaign.

3. Did the Wallace strength early in the campaign return to Truman?

Wallace Factor in N. Y.

Unquestionably the sharp decline in the Wallace vote was a great help in many pivotal States. Wallace insured the Dewey victory in New York. On the other hand, the absence of the Wallace ticket on the ballot in Illinois undoubtedly made the difference there between a Dewey victory and defeat.

4. How much help did the national ticket get from local and State candidates?

Early returns show many local candidates leading the ticket in a number of close States.

All polls must analyze these problems and work towards their solution to make certain that the same errors do not occur in future election surveys.

Spinster-Teacher Even Doubts Kinsey Report

Astounded at the outcome of the election, a spinster-teacher with Republican convictions announced to colleagues yesterday:

"I can't understand the election returns. I can't believe the polls any more. I don't even know whether to trust the Kinsey report!"

Race Was Close In District Area

lieved to have worked against Representative Howard W. Smith, who was named to his tenth term. Smith's half-hearted and last-minute indorsement of Truman was believed to have cost him some support throughout the district.

While, as in each of his previous nine contests, Smith again carried his home town of Alexandria, he lost Fairfax County for the first time this year to his Republican opponent, Tyrrell Krum of Fairfax.

Krum was expected to give Smith plenty of trouble in the election, and succeeded in carrying three of the 17 counties and cities in the district. However, as one Democrat drily put it:

"Krum rode in on Dewey's coattails," and did not win the coveted House seat.

Usually reliable sources said Krum had easily earned his Fairfax County victory. They said his county organization had put on an intensive campaign while Smith had only appeared infrequently at party meetings in the county, and had made no active plea for the vote.

Smith Margin Slimmer

Krum received most of his Fairfax County support from the heavily residential area in the east of the county, including Falls Church. In Arlington, he was only 644 votes behind Judge Smith when final tallies were in, but did not equal Lawrence Michael's vote margin, in 1946, when he was only 112 votes behind the long-time Congressman.

Tuesday's election saw Smith's margin of victory in the district sliced off—a trend which has been evident in the past three elections.

In 1946, he was elected by a margin of 8302, while on Tuesday, the margin was 7835, on the basis of unofficial returns.

In the nearby Maryland congressional districts, voting went according to pattern, with neither incumbent Congressman seriously threatened for reelection.

Democratic Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer nearly beat out C. Maurice Weidemeyer, chairman of the Republican County Committee for Anne Arundel County, in his home territory, with only 31 votes separating the two candidates. In the final count, Sasscer was nearly 15,000 votes ahead of Weidemeyer in the Fifth District.

In the Sixth Maryland Congressional District, Republican Representative J. Glenn Beall had nearly a nine-thousand margin of victory, although he lost one county, Allegany, by a close vote. Democrat Byrne Austin's hopes for election were ruined when he failed to carry his home county of Montgomery.

Massenburg Ouster Asked

for Dewey, 41,609 for Thurmond and 2104 for Wallace.

Action Defended

Massenburg defended his action, declaring: "I feel that wisdom of our efforts to unite wherever possible and secure a merited and overwhelming indorsement of our congressional delegation by endeavoring to poll a representative Democratic vote has been demonstrated in the judgment of the people of Virginia as reflected by their indisputable response at the polls."

He declared that headquarters were opened in Richmond during the campaign "for the purpose of getting the largest possible Democratic vote" and that it was the huge turnout that upset the Dewey applecart.

He said voters expected stiff contests for the House seats. The only close one, in the end, came in the Ninth District, where Democrat Thomas B. Fugate defeated Republican T. Eugene Worrell. District voters turned out in greater numbers than was expected. As a result, he declared, many adhered to tradition and voted the straight Democratic ticket, up to and including the names of Truman and Barkley. The two men, the State's Democratic organization leaders, least wanted to be elected.

In the States' Rights Democratic Camp, Frank P. Burton, jr., Virginia chairman of the party, said he was "tickled to death to know that there are at least 40,000 voters in Virginia who have proved that you can't put politics above principles."

Only Halifax County, the site of Governor Tuck's home town of South Boston, was carried by the Thurmond-Wright ticket. Patrick County, where Burton lives, was carried by Truman and Barkley.

Earle Lutz, executive director of the Republican State Central Committee in Virginia, took cheer, despite the defeat, in Dewey's showing.

"Yesterday's defeat," Lutz said, "will not keep the Republican Party from continuing its fight for a two-party State, backed with renewed vigor in 1949 when a new State administration will be named."

Governor Tuck reserved comment on all implications of the election results.

Truman's lead in Virginia over Dewey was 28,378, as compared with 97,033 for Roosevelt over Dewey four years ago. With 33 precincts still missing, the total vote in the presidential race was 415,975, as compared with 388,485 four years ago, a record then.

Analysis of Returns

An analysis of the returns showed that Truman carried all Congressional Districts except the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth. He also carried 68 of the 100 counties and 19 of the 25 cities.

In the Senate race, returns from 1638 precincts showed Senator Robertson defeated Robert H. Woods, Republican State chairman, 237,912 to 111,199. Howard Carwile, Independent, polled 5288; Mrs. Virginia Foster Durr, Progressive, 4276, and Clark T. Robb, Socialist, 1286.

One of the first developments in the post-election maneuvering was the booming of John W. Flannagan of Bristol, for Secretary of Agriculture. Flannagan, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, did not seek reelection, but threw his support to the victorious Fugate.

6 of Family Leaps From Auto Before Train Smashes It

Six members of a Rockville family leaped from their automobile, which stalled on Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks about two miles south of Rockville last night only three minutes before a westbound passenger train smashed the vehicle into junk.

Driver of the car, Robert Mahoney whose address was listed by police only as RFD, Rockville, was accompanied by his wife, two daughters, son-in-law and a grandchild.

The car stalled as Mahoney started across the tracks at Halpine Crossing, trying to make a right turn into Spring Lake Park. Police said the train was traveling about 60 miles an hour when it hit the vacated car.

House Gain By Democrats

in 1938 when the Republicans gained 81.

Chairmanship of the vital House committees—Ways and Means, Appropriations, and Banking and Currency—which virtually control the purse strings of the Government, will revert to Democratic hands again after a two-year interlude following 16 years of Democratic control.

Most on Seniority

In all, there are 19 regular standing committees of the House and 6 special and select committees under the recent reorganization law.

With one or two possible exceptions where the ranking Democrat will decline to accept chairmanship of a committee, the new chairmen will be selected on a seniority basis.

Thus Representative Clarence Cannon (R., Mo.) will assume chairmanship again of the Appropriations Committee, on which he has battled for years with Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), its present chairman.

The chairmanship of the important tax-fixing, revenue-raising Ways and Means Committee will go back to Representative Robert L. (Muley) Doughton (D., N. C.), indestructible veteran of years of House service.

In another of the sledge-hammer blows the electorate has rained on the GOP, the 1946 chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), lost his seat in Minnesota's Sixth District to Fred Marshall, Democratic-Farmer-Labor nominee.

Knutson, who holds one of the longest GOP records of service in the present Congress, conceded defeat last night. At St. Cloud, Minn., Knutson told reporters: "On the face of returns, I have been defeated."

The upset brought victory to Fred Marshall, 42, Grove City, Minn., a farmer with no previous political experience.

With 542 precincts out of 573 counted in the Sixth District, Marshall led with 61,524 votes against Knutson's 58,256.

Knutson, author of last year's Republican tax-cutting bill which was denounced by the Democrats as a measure to aid the rich taxpayer, is opposed by Fred Marshall.

The vote so far is Marshall, 52,769 and Knutson, 48,662.

Knutson's surprise losses came despite a statement made on the eve of election regretting his action in voting against funds for the European Recovery Program.

Knutson said he had made a mistake and would vote for additional appropriations as needed.

Banking Post to Spence

Chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee will be Representative Brent Spence (D., Ky.) who fought a see-saw battle with Republican Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) during the last session over a comprehensive housing bill.

Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), former Democratic floor leader and recently Democratic whip of the House is expected to return to his old post as majority leader.

Rep. Kersten, Active As Prober, Defeated

Milwaukee, Nov. 3 (AP).—Representative Charles J. Kersten (R., Wis.) who has been active in the investigation of charges of Communist influence in labor unions, was defeated yesterday.

Kersten, member of the House Labor and Education Committee, was beaten by former Representative Andrew Biemiller (D.) whom he defeated in 1946 after Biemiller served one term.

Spence Predicts Price Control

Fort Thomas, Ky., Nov. 3 (AP).—Representative Brent Spence (D., Ky.), who will head the House Banking Committee in the next Congress, said here today the newly elected Democratic Congress will pass "some kind of a price control bill."

He said he did not now believe wage freezing would be attempted.

Argentine Gold Decree

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—A government decree today ordered all holders of gold coins or bullion, including banks and financial institutions, to declare such holdings in the next eight days.

Charter Experiment

Approval of the Montgomery County charter at the polls on Tuesday means a completely new form of government for that adjacent area in Maryland. The charterites deserve their victory. For 10 years they have been working doggedly for modernization of the makeshift machinery by which their county is governed. Many setbacks failed to discourage them. With commendable persistence, the Charter Committee, the county's Civic Federation, and the League of Women Voters continued their educational campaign until a substantial majority of the voters came to appreciate the advantages of home rule combined with an efficient administrative system.

A more difficult test must now be met. Will the groups who have sponsored this reform be able to induce capable and representative citizens to stand for election to the seven-man County Council on January 6? This council will be the county's new policy-making body. It will pass local measures at Rockville after public hearings instead of having these issues decided by the State legislators at Annapolis. It will hire a trained county manager who will be directly responsible for supervision of the various county departments in an orderly and efficient manner.

One of the principal arguments advanced in favor of the charter was that the substitution of part-time policy makers and a full-time executive for the present Board of Commissioners, which has both policy-making and administrative functions, would draw to the council a better type of public official. But this remains to be proved. Advocates of home rule in the District of Columbia and in numerous Maryland counties will be watching this experiment to see whether the Montgomery charterites can match their fine reforming zeal by effective operation of the new government.

Third Parties

Not counting Norman Thomas' Socialists, or the Prohibition, Vegetarian and other minor parties, this election had two "third" parties. Both of them have promised their followers and the country that they would go on to bigger and better things. J. Strom Thurmond apparently will be satisfied if the States Rights Party succeeds in capturing control of the Democratic Party. Henry Wallace, who only a little more than two years ago decried the very idea of a third party, has larger ambitions. Even as the returns were snowing him under Tuesday night he pledged that the Progressives would continue until they become the dominant party in the Nation.

The results of the election hardly seem to give much nourishment to these aspirations, especially in the case of the Progressives. In the 45 States where their names appeared on the ballot, Henry Wallace and Glen Taylor received just about a million popular and no electoral votes. This is not a very large base on which to build for 1952. Thurmond and Fielding Wright garnered somewhat fewer votes in the 15 States where they were on the ballot, but took home at least 38 electoral votes. If history is a better guide than Gallup, this is a sounder foundation for hope of permanence—but still not a very sound one.

Third parties have come and gone in American politics over the past century but only one, the present Republican Party, succeeded in displacing one of the first two. Organized in 1854, the Republicans became the second party on their first try in 1856 and nearly took the Presidency with Fremont. Four years later they succeeded with Lincoln. But against the one exception there stands a long list of short-lived third parties. One or two presidential campaigns seems to have been the normal life expectancy. And only seven previous candidates have gotten electoral representation:

William Wirt, Anti-Masonic Party, 7 in 1832; Millard Fillmore, "Know-Nothing," 8 in 1856; J. C. Breckinridge, Secessionist, 72 in 1860; John Bell, Constitutional Union, 39 in 1860; James B. Weaver, Populist, 22 in 1892; Theodore Roosevelt, Progressive, 88 in 1912; Robert M. La Follette, Independent, 13 in 1924.

Even though T. R.'s Bull Moosers relegated the Taft Republicans to third-party status with only eight electoral votes in 1912, and even though the Populists in 1892 won three governorships, a dozen seats in Congress, and hundreds of State legislative seats, both shortly dissolved into the major parties. The same fate befell, in their time, the Anti-Masons, the Liberal Party, the Know-Nothings, the Free-Soilers, the Greenbackers, the Non-Partisan League, and most recently the Farmer-Labor Party. It is a tough row to hoe, and if any historical moral can be drawn it appears to be that regionalism is not enough for dominance. A vital national issue, slavery, carried the Republicans to the top, but Thurmond has no such a tool to work with, and on Tuesday's showing neither has Wallace.

Draft Rejections

Offhand the fact that an average of 72 per cent of the 24- and 25-year-olds called up in 10 large cities have failed their pre-draft physical examinations looks like an astonishing reflection on the national health. But the figures are misleading. The present draft law exempts married men and veterans. Most of the men in the 24-25 age group now being called up either were 4-Fs or held essential jobs during the war. Thus it was to be expected that the rejection rate would be high, especially since physical and mental requirements have been raised above the wartime standards. Indeed, it is possible to gain some satisfaction from the fact that approximately 10 per cent of the former 4-Fs have recovered from their disabilities.

When men in the 18-19 age bracket who were not subject to the wartime draft are called up, it will be possible to get a more accurate picture of the physical condition of the country's young men. The wartime rejection rate was 35.8 per cent—a figure which appeared almost anomalous in the world's richest and supposedly best-fed Nation. Doubtless the new statistics, when they are available, will indicate the need for continued work in extending medical and dental care and improving the national diet.

The most common present causes for rejection are psychoneurotic disorders and heart ailments. An interesting commentary on the rigors of city life might be had by contrasting these with figures from predominantly rural areas. New York, for example, leads the list with a rejection rate of 87.5 per cent, though Washington is not far behind, with an anticipated rate of from 60 to 75 per cent. Strangely enough, Los Angeles, despite its proximity to the neuroses of Hollywood, has the lowest rate of all, 37 per cent. This proves one of two things—either Los Angeles had a high proportion of essential industry deferments during the war, or there really is something to that California sunshine.

The Farm Vote

The pro-Republican farm vote that was expected to outweigh the votes cast for President Truman in industrial areas failed to materialize. The reasons are anybody's guess, but there were a number of factors that probably go far to explain this defection. Years of abundant harvests coupled with high prices have created a bias in favor of the status quo that no doubt had a tremendous effect on farmer sentiment. Farmers, like all other voting groups, are loath to vote against an Administration under which they have enjoyed record prosperity. The fear of what a change may bring was in this case enhanced by recent declines in farm prices that have brought into operation the farm price-support program as a protection against excessive deflation.

To be sure, Governor Dewey pledged unequivocal support of the long-range farm price-support program enacted by the Eightieth Congress. But it is significant that he said nothing about the more liberal, shorter-range support program that is currently putting a floor under the sagging prices of basic farm products. Moreover, Senator Taft and Harold Stassen did the cause of their candidate a deal of harm with farm voters by their attacks on the price-support program. Senator Taft said bluntly in a speech delivered last February that in his opinion support prices were too high. And Mr. Stassen quite recently publicly accused the Department of Agriculture of deliberate action to keep farm prices high "when they should have been shaking them down." Finally, the refusal of the last Congress to authorize the CCC to acquire more storage facilities caused deep resentment. For lack of storage means that some portions of the superabundant crops that would have gone into storage under CCC loan or purchase agreements will have to be sold for what they will bring.

Thus it is not difficult to account for a very considerable amount of disaffection among farm voters in parts of the country that can ordinarily be relied upon to give large Republican majorities. There are other factors, too, such as the increasing industrialization of certain farm areas and population shifts, that may be responsible in part for voting shifts. But, after all, the strength of any candidate for office lies in his ability to convince voting groups that they will be materially better off if he is returned to office than if his opponent wins. The evidence to that effect was not sufficiently convincing to pile up farm votes en bloc for New York's farmer-Governor.

Days Of Our Years

A great opportunity awaits the world to do something about the calendar. We are indebted to the Journal of Calendar Reform for the suggestion that since January 1, 1950, comes on a Sunday, that is the logical time to throw out the old unbalanced Gregorian calendar and substitute a sensible revision. There is something of a schism between the reformists themselves, it appears, over just what is the best substitute. One group favors adding an entirely new month, "Sol," to make 13 uniform months of 28 days, with a year-end day belonging to no month thrown in to keep the balance and a leap year day interspersed every four years. The body of opinion represented by the Journal is somewhat more moderate. It would retain the 12-month system, but would parcel out the days so that each quarter would have the same number. It also would make use of the year-end day and leap-year day.

Supporters of the change wax almost lyrical over its advantages. Since each quarter would start with the same day, holidays would always fall on the same day of the week (Christmas would come on Monday). Business fluctuations would be minimized because each month would contain precisely 26 weekdays plus Sundays. The runt status assigned February by Pope Gregory would be ended by giving it a full complement of 30 days.

Despite the enthusiasm of the advocates, candor compels us to take a dim view of their prospects of early success. Not that the change isn't rational enough. So are a good many other changes, including adoption of the metric system of weights and measures. But tradition has a strong hold, as was shown in the long and finally successful struggle to standardize British and American screw threads. Whatever the merits of a modern calendar, it hardly has the same appeal to people who somehow have eked out an existence under the old system as has, say, a proposal to do something about prices. Moreover, if the matter should ever reach the overburdened United Nations, there is always the possibiity of a Vishinsky veto on the grounds that it represents another capitalist plot.

Truly, the way of the reformer is hard. That is not much consolation, but it just isn't a logical world. Now if the revisionists could just think of a way to reform the kind of days we are forced to put up with, they might have something.

Triumphant Truman

The people have spoken. Harry S. Truman has been returned in his own right as the Nation's Chief Executive. The occasion calls for felicitations, and we offer them unreservedly. In these congratulations we are merely echoing the feeling of the vast majority of Americans. Whatever their political opinions, no matter how violently they have expressed them in this campaign, the people individually will bow to their collective verdict. That is the American way. In a spirit of sportsmanship they will lay aside their verbal shillalahs till 1952 and subscribe to the presidential symbol of their precious unity.

It must have been an exhilarating moment for Mr. Truman when the returns informed him of his triumph. Months ago the GOP felt that this election was in the bag for Dewey. So did most of the Democratic regulars, who worked with might and main to prevent the nomination of Harry Truman, and, if they did any campaigning for him at all, campaigned half-heartedly. It seemed at one time as if almost everybody except Mr. Truman had conceded his defeat—and by no means do we except the newspaper press. But, as the President said familiarly sometime ago, he doesn't "depress" easily. Almost singlehanded he went in to pitch, picking up, as he showed himself completely undaunted by the encircling gloom and defeatism, such redoubtable battlers as Harold Ickes, Paul Porter, and Leon Henderson. But all aid was subsidiary to the President's contribution. He fought so hard to keep the Presidency that he always seemed like a challenger, and the spectacle of a fighter, of a man who refuses to give up, has its own special appeal to Americans, no matter what he says. And what he said was often wild and whirring in all conscience, though forgotten today in the revelation of the fruits of the President's faith and will to win. Victory must be sweeter to Mr. Truman because he pulled victory out of the jaws of defeat.

The successful hard-hitting campaign that Mr. Truman waged did not surprise those who have observed him since he was catapulted into the Executive Mansion. His burden has been as heavy as any man's in history. His predecessor, after choosing him as running mate, never saw him between election and death. This is one of the severest indictments that can be leveled at Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Truman, when circumstance lifted him to the Chief Executiveship, was as ignorant of pending affairs as the man in the corner drugstore. It was only by dint of assiduous application that he became knowledgeable, learning in the trial and error school, and hardening himself in taking it and giving it. His remaining habit, illustrated in the Vinson to Moscow episode, is in choosing the worst way to do the right thing.

Theodore Roosevelt used to say you can't go wrong if you trust in the common sense of the American people. By some instinct they have avoided that worst of all possible perils, a split government. This is something for which to be profoundly thankful. Their verdict shows another national characteristic. America is confirmed in a progressivism that is repelled from communism at the one extreme and from reaction at the other. This is an example for the world—a world that this Nation is seeking to keep free and self-confident and liberal. There could not be a better message to the Kremlin. All these considerations offset the regret of those who on philosophical and historical grounds may have misgivings over the failure of the pendulum to function. Certainly rotation of offices is the basic insurance of a sound democracy. However, the shake-up under an elected Truman may temper the job-holding, and maintain that responsible unity which in a world of change and chaos is the national salvation.

We pray that the occasion has found the man; that Mr. Truman will be given health and strength to do the duties which fall like hammer blows on his desk in the White House every day; that in his Atlas role he will give to humanity as well as America what in less responsible times a President need only give to America.

Censoring Obscenity

In a communication of October 31, Prof. Rudolph von Abele complains of the death of late of censorship of obscenity. He asks that some general law be laid down, but asks that it be one of extreme liberality. He bases this upon the theory that "the proper antidote for clandestinely indulged sexual titillation is obviously some form of intelligent sex education in either grade or high schools."

If the real problem were just a normal curiosity to find out about a very interesting subject, then sex education, even of a public sort, might be the solution. The problem actually is that a very important segment of the general public, adult as well as adolescent, and allegedly intelligent and normal citizens as well as sexual psychopaths, have today an unhealthy preoccupation with sex. Accordingly, anything in print or elsewhere that presents in a sympathetic way the amenities of irresponsible sex indulgence commands a ready market. The consequence is that a large percentage of marriages break up as a result of the infidelity of one of the partners.

The United States mails, responsible publishers, stores, schools, churches, and families, with a view to the public welfare, are doing their part to maintain a reasonable censorship. No doubt there are mistakes and there is little doubt public censorship is a very unmanageable matter for many reasons, but the need of censorship is unescapable, unless one denies altogether the dangers of obscenity.

May I say, finally, that Professor von Abele's lament about the "cut into the reading habits and desires of many people and into the livelihood of authors" should lead to the shedding of few tears. The public welfare already, and reasonably, interferes with many of our habits, desires and means of livelihood.

Third-Party Effect

Progressive Party members are responsible, in my opinion, for these subversive efforts:

(1) The exploitation of the general desire for peace, in order to delay U. S. preparedness in the face of U.S.S.R. expansion. Program and methods are similar to those employed in the "American Peace Mobilization" drive in 1940 during the Nazi-Soviet pact. Several APM leaders are active in the Progressive Party; for example Vito Marcantonio, State chairman of the American Labor Party of New York; Paul Robeson; Hugh DeLacy; Donald Henderson, national president of the Food and Tobacco Workers, and Harry Bridges, leader of the CIO Longshoremen's Union, now on strike on the West Coast.

(2) The attempt to put communistic individuals in State and national public offices.

(3) The enhancing of the prestige of the Communist program by publicizing the Progressive Party and its leader, Henry Wallace, to the world, implying thereby that in the strongest and most democratic of countries the communistic ideas are popular and treated with respect if not enthusiasm. This must undermine the morale of people in other countries fighting strong Communist groups, and it was intended to do so.

(4) The stirring up of racial tensions aimed at undermining our confidence in our traditions, our way of life, and our Government.

As the Philadelphia convention was marked by an obvious display of the communistic attitudes of many delegates and by the adoption of a communistic platform, do not the present party members realize that they are working against the interests of democracy and of the United States?

Sex Education

The question of sex education in schools again comes up. This form of education has been successfully used elsewhere. This would seem to indicate that there is a need for such services here. Objections to the idea are general or evasive.

It seems to me that there is a real need for reeducating our youth about sex although schools may not be the best agency, but it seems they are the best agency at this time. Erroneous misconceptions need correction. If children are not curious about sex in the same way that they are about other things, it is because they don't dare to be. Such a problem is as serious as an abnormal interest in the subject.

When people get along adequately in other ways, they get along sexually. It would seem, therefore, that sexual attitudes are clues to difficulties in living and not primary causes.

Dual Recreation

I have followed with intense interest the District Recreation Department's feud with the National Park Service regarding the legal authority for administrative policy on some 62 playgrounds and recreational sites.

The District Recreation Department has taken a ridiculous stand. Its function as an instrument of the people is to provide a recreational environment; services, equipment, fields, facilities, professionally trained and qualified leadership. These functions should be performed in a way that all, regardless of ethnic origin, in the community may participate.

It is not possible to plan a dual and equal recreational environment geared on racial basis irrespective of the sincerity of effort. Furthermore, it is not necessary nor is it a desirable attribute in our community—the Nation's Capital—an area on which the eyes of people around the world are focused.

If there is an area in our society in which people can enjoy, fully appreciate and respect the individuality of a personality; enjoy the intercourse one with another, it is indeed in the fields of recreation, games, sports and athletic activity in general.

Mid-European Union

A tragic anniversary occurred last week. On October 26, 1918, the historic hall in Philadelphia witnessed a declaration of independence of the small nations in Eastern Europe. It was read from the steps of Independence Hall by Thomas Masaryk, who was the chairman of the Mid-European Union. Participating in this union were the national organizations in the United States of Czechoslovaks, Poles, Yugoslavs, Ukrainians, Uhro-russians (called later Subcarpathians), Romanians, Italian-irredentists, Greeks (from Turkey), Albanians, Lithuanians and even Armenians and Zionists.

The Mid-European Union was more constructive than defensive. Its creation occurred during the last phase of World War I. Besides the tactical purpose of preparing a common policy for small nations on the coming peace conference the basic idea was the creation of a belt of nations in the danger zone between the Baltic, Adriatic and the Black Seas through a federation of states and to prevent future aggressions.

There was no idea of a cordon sanitaire either in an interventionist or in a defensive sense to protect themselves from bolshevism. The leaders of this Mid-European Union on every occasion pointed to the potential Prussian aggression and saw in this union protection for Russia also. Russia was at this time disintegrating and the civil war there was at its peak.

This attitude was shared by the United States. It remains strong proof against all insinuations of American imperialism was in favor of a European union long before the policy of some European nations adjusted themselves to it.

Russia never appreciated nor even recognized either the attitude of the Mid-Europeans or that of America. America was labeled imperialistic, and the Mid-Europeans of Philadelphia have since become either incorporated into the Soviet Union or they have been pulled into the Soviet orbit.

Thus the idea of Mid-European Union remained a dream. Much shortsightedness amongst the small peoples themselves caused dissensions. Revisionist movements striving mainly for a restitution of old and condemned regimes hindered cooperation. Ironically enough in 1941-42 a unified Europe became a fact. It was, of course, a mechanical unity, imposed and enforced by the German armies and power. The proof was, however, made that this unity is practicable. Long before Germany was defeated there were new unifying tendencies forming.

In March 1943 Winston Churchill launched the idea of a European Union. Mr. Churchill did not get enthusiastic support in his country. This situation was exploited in full by the Soviet Union. Each form of cooperation was at once labeled anti-Soviet and imperialistic.

This was the introduction to Soviet policy in Eastern Europe and to an elaborated plan for a Sovietization of Europe. First of all the long-discussed Polish-Czechoslovakian federation plan had to be abandoned. Then came the Moscow-drafted policy toward the Poles which resulted at Yalta. In this pattern were made the "adjustments" of governments in Eastern Europe which ended in Communist regimes. Then followed the desperate struggle against the Marshall Plan.

What might have happened if the Mid-European Union had been created in 1918? What might have been the march of events had the big powers in Paris in 1919 and after adopted a constructive policy for Eastern Europe? Such hypothetical questions cannot turn back the wheels of history. But they might be of use to show the necessity of foresight at the right time. Ideas not realized do not cease to exist or to be influential. Once proved attractive, as is the idea of European Union, they can be exploited by others helping them to live. The German and Russian ways in Europe are a convincing illustration.

The price for lack of foresight and vision has been paid in the loss of freedom of the Mid-European peoples. The dangers in the present situation sometimes prevent our seeing the proportions of problems. Some people are inclined to say that the idea of European unity is not an immediate concern. We should not forget the anniversary of the Philadelphia declaration in 1918.

Machine Age Child Rearing

By Malvina Lindsay

Parents Take Stock

PARENTS WHO sit in on the numerous conferences and forums on what to do about the monsters, gang leaders and desperadoes of radio, comics and movies must occasionally wish they were back in the days when children's literature was all pous admonition. They must at times wistfully wonder what it meant to be a parent when books for the young depicted a child's first duty as that of making mama and papa happy, and held out all sorts of horrors, including early death and the gallows, as the price of misbehavior.

For today's parents find themselves in a double dilemma. Machine age entertainment, with its modern brand of horrors, further and further invades the home. Soon children may be seeing on the television screen the crime thrillers to which they now listen. Eventually the gangsters and gun molls of comic books may, big as life in celluloid, coolly join the family circle.

Yet as parents meet to consider these problems they are told they cannot shunt the blame for heir children's misdemeanors to modern living. For they are responsible for what their children listen to and read. And comic books, radio and movie drams also have their values it is pointed out, and it is up to the parents to see that these new forms of entertainment which have such tremedous appeal to children are used for good instead of bad.

ALSO PARENTS are being told that poor home atmosphere remains the major cause of children' delinquency despite all the modern "evils" with which the young are surrounded. Emphasis to this has just been given in a report of a year's study by the delinquency section o the Commonwealth Club of California, a men's public forum of international reputation.

"No new basic cause of delinquency' says the report, "has been discovered since the (delinquency section's earliest report of 1916. The report emphasizes the primary importance of giving the child an affectionate atmospher in the home, a sense of security and status in the family circle. It does however warn of the dangers to a child of misdirected hero worship, either of delinquent parent or of "gang leaders and antisocial characters presented by the radio, movis, comics and the press."

What todo about these "antisocial characters" with which modern parents have to cope in addition t their other difficulties is a problem the recent conference held by the General Federation of Women's Club tackled. The general idea was that these characters should be reformed. The women and the representatives of the radio, movies and comic book industries are seting an agreement on standards of dress, behavior and attitude for the mythical personages that so largely dominate the modern child's world.

SOME OF the standards suggested at recent conferences on this matter has been: less emphasis on sex; less exaggeration of certain part of the human body; decent clothing for women characters; no acts of crime by children; no tendency to make crime attractive.

Some authorities on juvenile behavior feel that parents are too prone to seek causes outside themselves to blme for their children's delinquency. Yet others say that the complaint of parents about machine age entertainment is valid that records of juvenile courts and psychiatric clinics show a direct connection between children's misdeeds and the ideas they get from radio thrillers or comic books.

Every age no doubt olers its handicaps in child rearing. Even in the so-called golden age of large farm families and copybook morals, children frequently suffered from such evils as overwork, the iron rule of sadistic patriarchs, fears of hellfire and parental ignorance of nutition and child psychology. One advantage parents have in the machine age is that they more generally recognize their problems and can get together and move in on them, as they are doing today in their comic book and radio stocktaking.

Chest Function

A letter published in your issue of October 18 contained criticism of the United Community Services which in my opinion showed a misunderstanding of the function of Community Chest agencies.

It is important to distinguish between what is the function of Government (tax - supported agencies which give out basic assistance in food, clothing and shelter, and the function of private enterprise or Chest agencies. No one would suggest that private funds be used to pay for the police force or street repairs, but it seems to me that is equivalent to insisting that Community Chest funds be used for relief or "charity."

Private enterprise financed by Chest funds begins where Government agencies stop, and does much in prevention of delinquency and in improving family and health conditions. It is only through preventive measures that we can ever hope to lighten the tax load needed for the care of people who have not been able to help themselves because of financial, physical or mental obstacles or disabilities.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Victory Of Roosevelt's Party

AS ONE who did not foresee the result of the election I can say, as of the morning after, that I went wrong because I did not expect the Democrats to bring out their full vote. There was never any doubt that in this political generation there are more Democrats than Republicans, that the Democrats are the majority party, and that the Republicans could win only if the Democrats refused to support the regular Democratic ticket.

LIPPMANN

That is what all of us who went wrong thought was happening: that Dewey would win decisively, not because he had a popular majority but because the Democrats could not or would not bring out their majority. We thought that the Democrats who turned to Wallace and the Democrats who turned to Thurmond, and the Democrats who, we supposed would stay at home in large numbers, would decide the election.

IT IS NOW clear, though few believed it likely, that the Democrats did not stay away from the polls, that the party organization in all the States brought out the full Democratic vote. The Democratic protest vote against Truman was confined to those who actually voted for Wallace and Thurmond. There was not, as I for one had expected, a protest which took the form of a refusal of Democratic voters to vote at all.

Thus the coalition, which Franklin Roosevelt formed, held together and has prevailed once again. It can be said with much justice, and without detracting from Mr. Truman's remarkable personal performance, that of all Roosevelt's electoral triumphs, this one in 1948 is the most impressive. For it was the Democratic Party as Roosevelt transformed it and developed it which won this surprising victory.

THE REAL strength of the Roosevelt Democracy has manifested itself unmistakably. Mr. Truman's campaign was an outright adoption of the Roosevelt tradition and the Roosevelt political strategy. The Democratic Governors, Senators, and Representatives who upset all the predictions were conspicuously Roosevelt Democrats both on domestic and on foreign questions, notably Bowles in Connecticut, Stevenson and Douglas in Illinois, Humphreys in Minnesota, Kefauver in Tennessee. The Republicans who were so unexpectedly defeated in the pivotal States were, almost without exception, identified as the opponents of what Roosevelt stood for, as reactionaries and as isolationists.

Mr. Truman's own victory, the Democratic majorities in both houses of Congress, the Democratic victories in so many States, attest the enormous vitality of the Democratic Party as Roosevelt led it and developed it from 1932 to 1944. Mr. Truman is very nearly the only man who can say that he really believed that the party still has such strength and could exert it, without Roosevelt's personal leadership, without the active participation of Roosevelt's lieutenants, despite the Wallace and the Thurmond schisms. But that is what happened: the party that Roosevelt formed has survived his death, and is without question the dominant force in American politics.

THIS IS scarcely the moment when anyone who prophesied so badly will feel he can say with any confidence, or with any claim to be listened to, what it will mean to have a President and a Congress elected to carry out what is in fact another Roosevelt mandate. But I think that one large and significant conclusion is justified: that the overwhelming majority of the people in both parties, though they would reject appeasement which meant the surrender of vital interests or the betrayal of moral principles, do not subscribe to the theory of inevitable war, or to the doctrine of preventive war, or to the idea that the great crisis is insoluble by diplomacy and by pacific means.

IN RETROSPECT I think it must now be said that though the Vinson affair was incredibly inept, nevertheless it proved to be a net gain for Truman. I think he gained strength, and reunited many discontented Democrats, by showing that he shared their dissatisfaction with the way things were being handled in the State Department and the Pentagon.

That this dissatisfaction is much more general than prevailing opinion has supposed is indicated not only by Mr. Truman's rebellion in the Vinson affair and on Palestine, but also by the general tone of Governor Dewey's campaign and the reservations which Mr. Dulles in Paris took pains to place on the record.

Both Truman and Dewey, as they made contact with the mass of the people, became aware that the professional diplomats and soldiers who have been dominant in policy were going too fast and too far, were overplaying their hand, and that somehow it has become necessary to reassert the supremacy of civilian and popular control of the conduct of foreign policy.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Truman Does The Impossible

WHEN Harry Truman first became President, he was awed by the weight of responsibility that had fallen on his shoulders. He showed himself to be modest and even humble before the ordeal of the most impossible office in the world.

Childs

Frequently he compared his fate to that of another President — Andrew Johnson — who inherited the conflicts and confusions of another terrible war. In the long backward glance of history, Andrew Johnson, who went down to defeat and ignominy, has taken on greater stature than he had in his own time. We see him as a man of earnest intentions who struggled valiantly to solve problems that were perhaps unsolvable in view of the bitterness and hatred that survived the war.

The astonishing political upset that occurred on Tuesday can be partly explained, it seems to me, by the fact that in Truman's time there was a realization of the magnitude of the tasks he faced in the aftermath of a global war. While his blunders have been conspicuous, and particularly so in recent months, the achievements of his Administration have not been obscured. The very fact the Marshall Plan was adopted in his Administration gave him a stature that no amount of partisan attack could conceal.

ONLY a little more than a year ago the President still was casting about for a respectable way to step aside. While it has been known to only a few of his close advisers, who have kept the secret, the President told Gen. Dwight Eisenhower that if he would run for President on the Democratic ticket, he, Truman, would be his running mate as Vice President. Eisenhower said no as he was to say no-to others again and again and again.

When the whole story is told, I believe it will show that Truman did not wholly abandon the idea of stepping out until he realized that a determined effort to shove him aside had grown into something like a conspiracy. Then his fighting Missouri ancestry asserted itself. He said to a friend:

"If they're going to try to do this to me, then I'm going to have to run."

A tactful approach to the President by leaders of the party as late as January of this year might have resulted in his withdrawal and agreement on another candidate. He was angered particularly by those in the left wing of the Democratic Party who clamored for his head and shouted for Eisenhower without knowing anything about the general's intentions or his views on the major issues.

Once he had made up his mind to run, the President put all his effort into it. His stubborn vitality—he often told rear platform audiences he expected to live to a hundred—stood him in good stead through a grueling campaign.

He was at his best when he was most nearly himself. When he was coached to play the angles, or what the men around him considered the smart angles, he seemed out of character and ill at ease. The discrepancy between the President's background and convictions and the words given him to read was often too broad.

THE PRESIDENT'S amazing showing is almost entirely, therefore, his own achievement. Hardly more than a handful of the men around him contributed to a result that completely deceived every so-called expert. By his dogged, day-after-day persistence he wrought the kind of change in the closing weeks of a campaign that the so-called experts have always said was impossible.

One of Truman's great weaknesses in the White House has been his dogged loyalty to men whose incompetence or inadequacy has been repeatedly demonstrated. It might almost be said that he did the impossible in spite of the coattail riders, many of whom were privately discounting his chances of re-election.

The very smugness of the Republican approach must have alienated many voters, quite apart from the issues. They could not help but admire the personal courage of the fighter who had taken the David role against an all-powerful Goliath. This was a role that came naturally to a man who has endured much contumely during his political career.

He will have even greater need of the humanity that has set him apart from so many power-seekers. For he will face in the immediate future problems almost as overwhelming as those of the recent past.

Superfort Hits Granite Peak In England; 13 Believed Dead

Glossop, England, Nov. 3 (AP).—A United States B-29 Superfortress smashed into a granite peak in a heavy mist near here today with 13 American airmen aboard. Search planes that spotted the wreck reported no signs of life nearby.

The plane was believed to have hit a peak called "Kinder Scout," a granite outcropping of the 150-mile Pennine Chain that runs through northern England and Scotland.

The big bomber took off during the morning from Scampton air base near Lincoln for Burtonwood, Lancashire, a new repair and servicing center for United States heavy aircraft based in England.

A police officer at nearby Hayfield said it was heard flying low over the town through broken cloud just before the crash.

In London, United States Third Air Division headquarters said three officers and 10 enlisted men were aboard. Their names were withheld.

The plane arrived in Britain last week as part of the 301st group from the United States. The United States Air Force has been basing 90 or more of the big bombers in the Lincoln area and relieving the crew with replacment from America after about three months' duty.

Another of the B-29's was lost in September when it crashed off Holland during a mock aerial war in cooperation with RAF tests of Britain's defenses.

U. S. Air Force Has 90 Bombers At 7 RAF Bases in England

London, Nov. 3 (UP).—Ninety United States Air Force bombers are based at seven Royal Air Force fields, Secretary of State for Air Arthur Henderson told the Commons today.

"It has not been decided how long this arrangement will continue," he added. There are no American fighter planes in Britain at present, he revealed.

Laborite W. A. Warbey had asked the air chief for "assurance that this arrangement will not continue beyond the period of the Berlin airlift and that there is no intention of having the military aircraft of a foreign power permanently stationed in this country."

"I am afraid that I can give no assurance as regards the first part of this question," Henderson answered. "And the second part does not arise."

His answer was greeted by cheers from Conservative members.

British officials said he was expected to remain until Tuesday.

Diplomats Expect Vinson To See Stalin

By R. H. Shackford

London, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—President Truman, carrying a clear mandate from the American people for another four years in the White House, was expected in diplomatic quarters today to revive soon his plan to send a special "peace emissary" to Premier Stalin of Russia.

Early last month the President announced a plan to send United States Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow.

That project—advanced to the point where Vinson had his bags packed—was emphatically vetoed by United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall. It also was denounced by those who were most insistent that Mr. Truman couldn't possibly win reelection.

But now Marshall has indicated he will retire in January and let someone else run the State Department.

And President Truman, always suspicious of the State Department and usual diplomatic channels, is expected to take a firmer grip on foreign policy. During the past two years he has allowed Marshall almost a free hand in the formulation and direction of foreign policy.

In speeches since he had to withdraw the Vinson mission, Mr. Truman made it plain that he has in no way abandoned the idea. He restated emphatically that such a mission might "dispel the poisonous atmosphere of distrust which now surrounds negotiations between Western powers and the Soviet Union."

U. S. Suggests High Level Peace Effort

(From Press Dispatch)

Paris, Nov. 3.—The American delegation to the United Nations, swiftly following up President Truman's election, called today for high level East-West talks to find out why Russia is "unwilling or unable" to cooperate for peace.

Warren R. Austin, chief permanent American delegate, made the bid for the talks at a full-dress session of the General Assembly.

At the same time he and American Delegate John Foster Dulles assured the UN that American bipartisan foreign policy would be maintained.

Austin also, in a separate statement to the Political Committee, said the United States was now ready to push to showdown decisions on Palestine

New AEC Ban Of Electrical Union Ordered

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday ordered the General Electric Co. to "withdraw and withhold" recognition from the CIO United Electrical Workers Union in atomic energy plants operated by the company in the Schenectady, N. Y., area.

AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal told GE President Charles E. Wilson the action was "made necessary" by refusal of union officers to submit to loyalty investigations and their failure to take non-Communist oaths under the Taft-Hartley law.

The union previously had been barred from representing workers at any new A-bomb plants, but it still was bargaining agent for workers at the GE-operated Peeks Street atomic laboratory in Schenectady.

The commission last month warned the union it would be ousted from atomic plants unless its officers disavowed any links with communism.

Schools to Ask Rent Cut For Use of Armory

The District public schools will ask the Armory Board to reconsider a decision turning down a request for reduced Armory rentals on nights when schools play basketball there, Commissioner Guy Mason announced yesterday.

Mason said he had been assured by his fellow Commissioner, John Russell Young, a member of the three-man board, that the group will reconsider the matter. Rentals now are $500 a night. The schools have offered to pay $100 a night, the amount needed to cover operating expenses, Mason explained

Chinese Stunned By Scope of Loss

GOP Hopes

Plans to Lift Aid to China Seem Buried

Republican schemes for vastly increased American aid to China appeared buried yesterday under the avalanche of the election returns.

If the Republicans had won the Presidency and Congress, this might have been one of the few major changes in American foreign policy. A highly vocal and persistent group led by Publisher Henry R. Luce, Representative Walter Judd (R., Minn.) and former Democratic Ambassador William C. Bullitt, who supported the Dewey cause, had been clamoring for helping China on a huge scale.

Governor Dewey never committed himself to do all that the Luce-Judd-Bullitt group wanted, but the clamor grew so loud during the campaign that the State Department found it hard to make any decision on China until after the election.

The influence of the pro-China group in Congress has been seriously, perhaps irreparably, weakened by the gaping holes torn in the Republican membership in the House and Senate. A Democratic Congress is unlikely to vote bigger funds for China unles the Administration asks for them.

In the light of Chinese Communist victories in Manchuria, State Department planners are reviewing American policy, which is to help the Chiang Kai-shek government without getting the United States too deeply involved either financially or militarily.

Some increase in economic and military aid beyond this year's 400 million dollars is now being considered by the Budget Bureau and the Economic Cooperation Administration. A major reversal of policy is unlikely, however, unless Russia takes a more direct part in the Chinese civil war and unless the Chinese Communists show enough strength to capture the central government itself.

Peiping, Nov. 3 (AP).—Extent of the Communist victory in Manchuria stunned government supporters in North China today.

Chinese loyal to Chiang Kai-shek called it a "disaster" and a "monumental tragedy."

(Associated Press Correspondent Fred Hampson in Shanghai said Chiang "never really held much of Manchuria. But the manner in which he lost and the enormous troop and supply losses appear to have undermined his entire war machine, possibly beyond repair.")

There were indications that not a single soldier escaped the Mukden area to the seaport of Yingkow, 115 miles south.

Anti-Communist Bloc Urged in Asia

Nanking, China, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—China's parliamentary foreign relations committee proposed today that a Far Eastern anti-Communist bloc be formed with China "openly and unmistakably" aligned with the West.

President Chiang Kai-shek, formally rejected the resignation of Premier Wong Wen-hao, but Wong and his entire cabinet were reported considering quitting en masse in the face of military disasters and threatened economic chaos.

The American-operated travel agency reported that United States Army dependents and wealthy Chinese were starting to evacuate Nanking and Shanghai. This report was not confirmed by the American Embassy here.

U. S. Soldiers Intervene in Korea Clash

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—A United States Army unit broke up a minor clash yesterday between South Korean constabulary and police forces at Taegu, 160 miles southeast of Seoul, it was announced officially today.

The Korean defense department said American soldiers at Taegu persuaded 150 Korean rebels to lay down their arms. It was the first case of United States intervention, even in a strictly non-combat role, in the revolt started last month by Communist cells in the constabulary.

Official sources minimized the clash, saying it was a minor brawl between two rival groups.

Guided Missiles Of Future Outlined

Today's long range bombers and speedy interceptor plans will be largely supplanted within the next 10 years by winged r♦siles and guided rockets, an aviation expert predicted here last night.

John K. Northrop, president of Northrop Aircraft, Inc., made the predictions in an address on "Aviation History—1903 to 1960" prepared for the National Air Council lecture series, at the Library of Congress.

The new air might, Northrop said, will be cheaper, all things considered, than the present manned craft and its use will "move the focus of military hazard from the cockpit of a bomber to the industrial areas in the heart of combatant nations."

Know-How Available

New long range winged missiles, he said, will be propelled by "suitable power plants now in existence and capable of carrying large loads of TNT or any other destructive war head."

"The know-how for this missile operating at speeds of approximately 600 miles and hour is presently available," Northrop declared, "and is capable of extension to over 1000 miles an hour before 1960. It will have sufficient range for launching from Continental United States against any desired target in the Northern Hemisphere, and will be navigated by entirely automatic means."

Variations of the winged missile, he said, may be used for reconnaissance and photo missions now done in manned airplanes.

For defense, he predicted rocket-powered interceptors, equipped for automatic guidance from the ground. The interceptors, he said, will be smaller than present fighters, and "will constitute the sole effective defense against a mass attack from enemy long range missiles."

Defense Plans Slower

As to which will come first, Northrop said:

"The offensive missile will be available years before a defensive system capable of stopping a high percentage of such missiles can possible be developed and installed."

The aviation leader recommended, "despite its double cost to taxpayers," that development of manned aircraft be continued throughout the transition period, declaring "it would be suicide" to stop manufacture of manned bombers "until such time as the efficiency of the substitute guided missile has been proved."

Budgets in Red

U. S. Worried By Spending Of Germans

Berlin, Nov. 3 (AP).—The German state governments are spending so much more money than they take in that United States Military Government is worried about it.

The Americans and British even passed a joint law ordering the Germans to balance their budgets. But so far the Germans have made no move to comply, United States Military Government officials complain.

One high United States finance official blamed the Germans' budget troubles on three factors:

1. Their public payroll is too big.
2. Their taxes are too low.
3. They pay too high pensions to too many retired officials.

"If the German governments fired every third person on their payroll they'd still have too many employes," this official said. "One recent survey showed that there are at least 20 per cent more government workers now than in Nazi times—and Hitler built up a huge bureaucracy.

"The salaries paid public officials are too high, compared with private wage scales, and with similar salaries in the United States.

"The average German pays lighter taxes than the average American. His total yearly tax bill won't be as much as one month's income.

"Yet, the German governments still won't cut their payrolls or raise their taxes to make their budgets balance," the United States finance official said. "In fact, they recently cut income and excise taxes, including the taxes on tobacco, coffee and alcohol."

In a Germany struggling to rebuild itself, such financial irresponsibility is regarded as unusually dangerous. It imperils the Democratic government, undermines the people's confidence and is an inflationary hazard.

That's why the Americans are trying so hard to bring the Germans into line, and why the recent currency reform law contained a clause requiring the German governments to balance their budgets.

No one knows exactly how many there are on the German governments' payrolls. Even the United States Military Government can't find out, the way the Germans keep their records.

"Although it is generally accepted that there are over 400,000 public servants employed by the state and local governments in the United States zone, it has not been possible to verify this figure," the military government report said.

If that estimate is right, it means that one in every 37 persons in the United States zone is paid out of the public treasury.

2 Freed on Bail Who Refused Red Answer

Justice Wiley B. Rutledge yesterday granted bail to two persons who were jailed when they refused to tell a Federal grand jury at Denver if they were Communists.

Rutledge ordered Arthur Bary and Paul Kleinbord to post $1000 each with the Supreme Court's clerk during appeals of their conviction for contempt of court. The two men had been ordered imprisoned until they were ready to answer the grand jury's questions.

Judge Begins Reading of Tojo Verdict

Tokyo (Thursday), Nov. 4 (U.P.).—In a glare of floodlights the international Military Tribunal for the Far East convened at 9:30 a. m. today (7:30 p. m. Wednesday EST) to hand down its historic judgment on former Premier Hideki Tojo and 24 others of Japan's war leaders.

Chief Justice Sir William Webb, veteran Australian jurist, began to read the first of an estimated 1800 pages in the verdict, ending the longest and costliest of the Allied war crimes trials. It may take him 10 days to reach the final verdicts.

The verdict first cancelled 38 of the original 55 counts of aggression and atrocities.

Dressed in mufti or drab remnants of uniforms, the 25 sallow, dark-eyed defendants who terrorized an area of the world for 18 years sat facing their 11 robed judges, including Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer of the United States and Maj. Gen. Ivan M. Zaryanov of the Soviet Union.

Tojo sat stiff and arrogant as usual in the knowledge that he alone of the three Axis dictators stood trial.

French Mines Returned to Government

Paris, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Interior IMnister Jules Moch announced today that al the nation's coal mines have been taken over by troops or mobile guards from striking miners and returned to the government.

Meanwhile, the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor upped its price for industrial peace in France, demanding a monthly minimum wage of about $50 for all workers, a boost of about $1.60.

The Interior Minister said that 44,624 of 145,000 strikers wtre back on hte job yesterday and that many more returned today under strong police protection against strong-arm squads.

The Cabinet, however, apparently believed the 31-day old walkout was by no means over. In a fourhour emergency session the Ministers approved in principle new measures to cope with agitators and saboteurs.

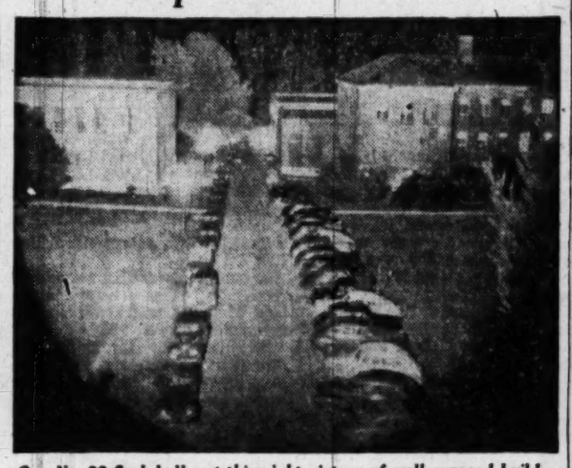
New Tripod Gimmick Gives Films Improved Dance Shots



One No. 22 flash bulb got this night picture of well-exposed buildings 250 feet away with a new high speed lens boasting a F-1 curved field lens

By Ollie Atkins

DID you ever hear of a "dancing tripod?" Well, there is such a gadget. It has just been devised by Hollywood Cameraman Frank Planer in another case of necessity being the mother of invention.

Before Planer dreamed up this gimmick, shooting a dance scene for the movies required numerous complex camera setups mounted on a dolly. The dolly arrangement required the utmost patience and skill on the part of all concerned to keep the moving actors in range of the moving camera.

The base of the "dancing tripod" is a circular steel ring, six feet in diameter, mounted on rubber rollers. From one side is a triangular extension for the tripod and camera. Three steel rods extend upward from the ring and are attached to a corsetlike affair which straps firmly around the male dancer's waist.

As the dancing couple move about the entire apparatus with camera in automatic action is carried along by the connection to the man's midriff. This keeps the camera in closeup position and in sharp focus at all times.

First results of this device can be seen in the Ava Gardner-Robert Walker dance scenes in the film, "One Touch of Venus."

FINE photographic equipment is standing idle in the photo shop at the Forest Glen Section of Walter Reed Hospital for the lack of experienced camera fans, amateur or professional, to serve as Red Cross volunteer daytime instructors.

"We've a marvelously equipped portrait studio, fluorescent and incandescent lighting, 16-mm. movie gear, color processing facilities, but have nobody who can instruct servicemen in their use," reports Mrs. Bruce Roberts, chairman of Red Cross Arts and Skills Service.

Mrs. Roberts needs a photographer to teach portrait work, one to handle color and three to teach darkroom technique. Also vacant is a desk job requiring no photographic experience. Volunteers should contact Mrs. Roberts at Republic 8300, Ext. 762.

Harold Harvey, the Baltimore camera technician and inventor of the famous "777" developer, was in town the other day and told me he has concocted a new developing solution which gives a film having a Weston rating of 80, an effective speed of 1000. Development time is 25 minutes at 70 degrees. It's not on the market yet, but Harvey is worried about variations in indicated emulsion speeds which throw off his speed calculations.

Home darkroom fans will be interested in a new folder just issued by Eastman Kodak Co. It deals with special chemical preparations intended to facilitate developing and printing operations. Entitled "Kodak Chemical Processing Aids" the booklet is gratis and may be obtained upon request from the Sales Service Division, Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester 4, N. Y.

5 Slightly Hurt In Derailment

Kent, Fla., Nov. 3 (AP).—Five persons were slightly hurt today when the Ponce de Leon Southern passenger train was derailed near Kent by a split rail.

The two diesel locomotives and one baggage car passed over the rail, but the next car—baggage, containing a corpse—was derailed along with seven other cars.

101 January Selectees Asked in D. C.

The Army has called for 101 Washington draft registrants to be inducted in January, District Selective Service officials announced yesterday.

Lieut. Col. Walter S. Welch, chief of the manpower division, predicted there would be no difficulty in meeting the quota. He said that about 450 District men will take preinduction physical and mental examinations this month, with from 25 to 30 per cent expected to pass.

Already in training are the first District draftees, seven men who left here yesterday for Camp Pickett, Va., and Fort Dix, N. J. They were inducted Tuesday and given overnight passes.

Drafting of Montgomery County men will begin today, when the Army taps two Silver Spring registrants. They are Emmett M. O'Grady, 1217 Linden lane, an assistant clerk of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and James D. Rogers, 9807 Brunett ave., a Capital Transit Co. dispatcher.

Truth about real cause of dandruff and scalp itch revealed by noted skin specialist. Releases miracle-working KORVO formula for home treatment. Used successfully for ten years in his private practice. Astounding results on record in even the most stubborn cases. Stops itching almost immediately. Helps prevent conditions that often lead to thinning of hair and to baldness. Keeps hair and scalp free from excessive dandruff and related infection.

Stop Trying to remove scalp film, dandruff, scalp itch.

For real relief REMOVE THE CAUSE

Dandruff, scalp itch, dry or oily scalp, even partial baldness resulting from tormenting and embarrassing dandruff usually are Nature's warning signals of interference with the glands, papillae and hair follicles that provide nourishment, health and strength to the hair.

As long as the causes of these problems are not corrected, the trouble will continue to recur.

"Plugged" Follicles Retard Hair Growth

Follicle "plugs" are the imbedded accumulation of oil, dust, grime, soot, alkaline substances and surface dead cells in the hair "pores". By their irritating effect, these follicle "plugs" cause visible dandruff, itching, a decreased oil gland production and frequently inflammation, minor infection and lessened hair cell activity.

If these conditions are not remedied, the existing hair may become brittle, the falling of hair become rapid, and ultimately permanent thinning of the hair and areas of baldness may result.

Hair Follicles Should Be Kept "Open" —That Is The Law Of Nature

Visible hair is lifeless. Therefore, growing hair must receive all its nourishment from the general blood supply. It cannot be fed from the outside.

When the hair follicles are choked from within, the hair is thus deprived of air and nourishment. Being unable to live under such abnormal conditions, the hair may waste away and fall out. In the early stages of this condition, a new growth of hair may replace the old. But if it in turn suffers in the same manner, the abused hair gives up the fight and dies, often leaving a permanently bald scalp.

By elimination of these problems the hair growth will return to normal, except in cases of hereditary factors of early baldness, ideopathic baldness, diseases that cause atrophy of the hair cells, and old age.

KORVO, a scientific germicidal formula, penetrates into the hair follicles and actually dissolves scalp film. It lends assistance to the oil glands, dilates the capillaries that furnish added nourishment to the hair cells, and helps promote hair growth. The natural result will be to bring life and lustre back to the hair and increase its vitality and resistance.

Read These Remarkable Examples of How KORVO Treatment Helped Correct Even Most Stubborn Cases of Dandruff and Scalp Itch for Patients of Noted Dermatologist

CASE No. 1—Patient G. DeW.—Complained of marked thinning of the hair, accompanied by itching and dandruff. After three months, following daily use of KORVO, examination showed completely healed scalp, with evidence of new hair growth over areas that the patient had reported as nearly bald.

CASE No. 2—Patient R. A.—Complained of profuse flow of oil to the scalp, matting of the hair and excessive visible dandruff. Hair and scalp were shampooed twice weekly and the relief from the excess oil following the shampoo never lasted more than 48 hours. After five daily treatments with KORVO, examination of the scalp showed no evidence of dandruff, a normal supply of oil coating to the scalp and hair.

CASE No. 3—Patient D. H.—Complained of a very dry, itching scalp of approximately 20 years duration. He had used many commercial products and prescriptions to no avail. Examination revealed dry bruised scalp with areas of infection and surface adherent deposits of wax. Hair revealed extreme dryness and brittleness. Treatment with KORVO gave patient immediate relief from itching. Within five days following the beginning of treatment, examination of scalp revealed it was free from concretions and minor infected areas.

KORVO represents a distinct advance in the care of hair and scalp. It is a scientific pharmaceutical product, is safe and proven beneficial to scalp and hair. KORVO is not a hair restorative.

No Longer Necessary to Pay High Fees to Get These Results If You Use KORVO As Directed

Fairfax Promotes 3 County Policemen

Promotions of three Fairfax County policemen were announced yesterday by Police Chief Carl McIntosh as the county prepared to open its new $100,000 police substation near Groveton, Va.

MAHONEY

Officers promoted, all of whom will be assigned to the new Precinct No. 2 were:

James M. Mahoney, 33, from detective sergeant to captain. Mahoney who has 11 years' service, will be in command of the new precinct.

Richard F. Utz, 35 from sergeant to lieutenant. On the force eight years, Utz will be second in command.

James A. Thomas, 35, from patrolman to sergeant. He has eight years service.

Chief McIntosh also announced Sergt. James E. Dodson and 11 men from the 39-man department will be transferred from headquarters at Fairfax to man the new substation which will go into operation today. The building, however, will be officially opened at a ceremony November 14.

UTZ

THOMAS

The two-story brick station house is located on old King's Highway just off Route No. 1 near the Penn Daw Hotel, 2 miles south of Alexandria.

McIntosh said the new precinct will police all Fairfax County east of the Shirley Memorial Highway. This contains much less than half the county's area, but is thickly settled and includes heavily traveled Route No. 1.

Telephone numbers at Precinct No. 2 are OV. 4410 and OV. 4411.

In Nolle Prosse

Court Delay Criticized by D. C. Counsel

A charge of driving while drunk against Thomas F. Greene, 58, a liquor store operator, was nolle prossed yesterday after the corporation counsel protested that delays in Municipal Court put the Government in an "unfair position."

Greene, who lives at 5203 Murray rd., Chevy Chase, Md., was arrested after a collision in the 2200 block of Wisconsin ave. nw., on February 27, 1947. He was tried by jury before the late Judge Nathan Margold and convicted of the charge on July 29, 1947. Greene then applied for a new trial.

Judge Margold subsequently died and it was not until September 16, 1948, that Judge Armond Scott awarded the new trial. He said the Government prejudiced the case when it asked witnesses whether they knew Greene had forfeited collateral twice on drunk charges.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, in ordering the nolle prosse, stated that because of the time interval between the conviction and the new trial order, all five of the Government's civilian witnesses were out of town.

Sewer Charge Suits Planned By Fairfax

Sixty Fairfax County residents who have refused to pay a $2-a-month sewer charge will be taken to court next month as the county tries to collect $7168 in back bills.

The cases will be heard December 14 in Fairfax Civil Court, County Sanitary Engineer James J. Corbalis told the county board of supervisors yesterday.

The board had previously authorized Corbalis to take such action in the board's name if necessary.

The sewer in question was installed in the eastern part of the county during the war by the Federal government. Corbalis explained the money goes to the government as rent. If the county succeeds in its efforts to buy the sewer, Corbalis said he hoped the rates could be reduced.

Crbalis said there are actually about 250 persons, most of them in the Jefferson Village or Huntington-Jefferson Manor developments, who have refused to pay. He said he hoped a favorable court decision in the first group of cases would change the minds of the rest.

The supervisors yesterday also:

1. Approved a budget of $250,962.08 in State funds to be spent on State roads in the county during the fiscal year which started July 1, 1948. Resident State Highway Department Engineer J. H. Phillips, in submitting the budget, said the entire allocation, which is based on 1940 census figures, would have to be spent on maintenance rather than new construction.

2. Learned that officials from the State Water Control Board will be in Fairfax Monday to discuss a sewage problem in Groveton where residents claim septic tanks are overflowing and want permission to dump sewage into the Potomac River.

Members of winning teams will receive ball-point pens and members of losing teams will receive automatic pencils.

The programs are under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Kenyon Markel, WTOP director of public service and education. The programs originating in the public schools are produced in cooperation with Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent, and coordinated through the radio committee of the District Public Schools, of which Clyde Huber is chairman.

All questions used are selected by a committee from among suggestions of grammar school students, and a panel of three judges will serve at each Quizdown. Vern Hansen, veteran WTOP announcer and quizmaster the past two years, will ask the questions.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

IN THIS SPACE yesterday there was an allusion to the probable effects of the presidential election on the sports picture at the White House. It was brightly suggested that America was going to the polls and, after looking squarely at the issues, would vote out horseshoe pitching as the major sport at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

POVICH

The issue was clear-cut. Did the Nation want a horseshoe pitcher or Golfer Tom Dewey in the White House? It was a ringing preference for golf, all right, but of the barnyard variety. And so, in January, Mr. Truman isn't pulling up the stakes he drove into the White House lawn. When the votes were counted, Mr. Dewey was not the President-elect and golf was not the sport-elect at the Executive Mansion.

For four more years, at least, the reputation of the late Warren Harding as the best of the golfing Presidents—maybe you better make that presidential golfers—is secure. Dewey, who shoots in the low 80s, could have given Harding four strokes a side. But his defeat at the polls may not be a total loss for the Republican candidate. He has four years to brush up on his game before making another bid for the White House.

DEWEY'S DEFEAT gives this department the opportunity to claim its most whopping whammy. He was a dead cookie in the voting booths apparently from the moment that old Kiss of Death Povich rushed into print Tuesday evening with my brilliant interpretation of the early balloting as a landslide victory for the Republicans. Povich, Gallup, Roper and Crossley, the old pollsters, really poll-axed Dewey.

Incidentally, I've lost faith in Hart's Location, N. H., as an election barometer. Never again will I permit myself to be so grossly misled by Hart's Location, perennially the first town in the Nation to report election results. With its 12 votes, it rolled up an 11-1 majority for Dewey and I was careless in forgetting that the crush at the polls at Harts Location might fall somewhat shy of the 24 million necessary to elect.

Anyway, it's clear now that Dewey left his fight in the gym, or somewhere. He trained wrong for the biggest battle of his career. His campaign in the final weeks was reminiscent for all the world, of a fighter who knew he was ahead on points and kept his chin tucked carefully behind his shoulder, afraid to make a mistake and refusing to keep swinging on the issues. He was outpunched by Tough Talking Harry.

TRUMAN'S ELECTION takes rank with the staggering upsets like what happened in the Travers Stakes that day in New York when the one-eyed nag, Jim Dandy, came clumping down the stretch tossing mud in the eyes of Gallant Fox and Whichone, at odds of 100 to 1. The odds against Truman weren't quite that high, but there were bets made at a price of 30 to 1 against him and he was the longest shot of any presidential derby.

In fact, my betting man tells me that Truman's victory put some of the boys out of business, particularly in Boston where they laid heavily against Truman's chances of winning Massachusetts. "A lot of 'em aren't answering the phone bells today," he said. "They're closing up shop until they can come up with some fresh scratch to pay off with and resume business."

Roosevelt used to beat the Republicans with regularity, and the title is now held by his former sparring mate out of the same stable. Truman licked Dewey, the Wallaceites, and the Dixiecrats, taking them on in a battle royal, but apparently the best thing he had going for him in the late crucial hours was Povich's prediction of a Dewey sweep:

IN MY TIME I have picked some historic losers and eaten more unsalted crow than the falcons of Sherwood Forest. The day before the Redskins played the Chicago Bears for the National League football title in 1940, I recommended the Redskins as a can't-miss proposition, pointing to their win over the Bears three weeks before. Score of the next day's game: Bears, 73; Redskins, 0.

Shortly after Max Baer knocked Primo Carnera down 11 times and then knocked him out, I surveyed the fistic scene and brightly observed that there was no heavyweight who belonged in the same ring with Baer. In Baer's next fight, ancient Jimmy Braddock whipped him to a frazzle and took the title.

Peace Chance was my choice to win the Kentucky Derby a few years back. He didn't even get to the post. I picked Bob Feller to be the top pitcher in the last world series. He was the only pitcher to start and lose two games. I picked Billy Conn to beat Joe Louis and so did Conn himself. There was only one difference. I was merely wrong, and Conn was almost dead wrong. Whammy for hire. Apply within.

GW's Davis Trails Only Justice in Loop Offense

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

George Washington's football team won't go far this year, but wherever it goes, Andy Davis will take it.

That's obvious from latest National Collegiate Athletic Bureau statistics which rank the durable D. C. freshman second to North Carolina's great Charley Justice in total offense in the Southern Conference.

These same figures show that nationally Davis is sixth in total offense, fourth in kickoff returns and twelfth in passing. For GW's first six games, Andy led the Nation in combined runback, which included punt, kickoff and interception returns.

With all these glowing statistics, GW has been able to win only two out of seven games. Nevertheless, the season must be considered successful even if the Colonials lose their three remaining games, which they probably won't.

In the first place, the Colonials uncovered a great star this year in Davis. Otherwise, the Colonials' upset victories over Virginia Tech and Virginia gave them twice as many wins as in the 1947 campaign.

Many seasoned football followers are hopping on the Davis bandwagon, already predicting that in the next four years, he will certainly earn All-Southern Conference honors, and possibly All-America recognition.

Latest to sing the praises of the 165-pound halfback are Coach Ivy Williamson of Lafayette and Tuffy Leemans, the greatest G. W. backfield star before Davis.

Said Williamson yesterday "Davis is the best all-around back we've played against this season, including those great backs of Army. Few of them hit the line harder, and none are better passers or defensive players".

Leemans, who has seen Andy play in three losing games, says, "Andy is terrific. He has as much natural ability as any freshman I've ever seen. He'll be great by his final year."

Another timid but prejudiced Davis supporter is G. W. publicist Tom Coleman, who is impatient to gain All-Conference honors for Andy.

Tom yesterday began mapping a campaign to acquaint 100 newsmen in conference territory of his star's accomplishments. Coleman composed a mimeographed sheet, subtly entitled "18 Reasons Why No. 18 should be Named All-Southern Conference Back." Clipped to the sheet is a picture of Andy wearing his uniform, No. 18.

The blue and yellow handout will be mailed to reporters in Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina.

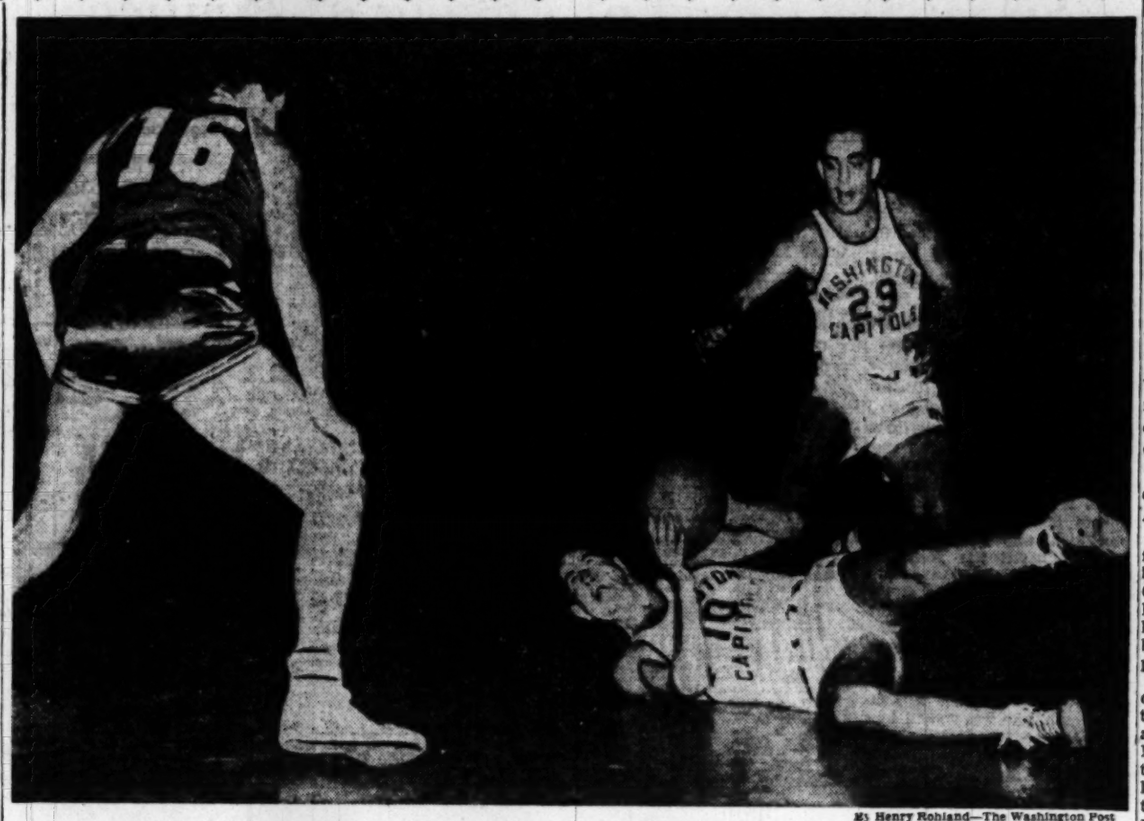
It proclaims Andy as an "offensive demon," "iron man," and "defensive ballhawk." It points out the NCAB statistics, also that Andy has played in all but seven minutes of GW's seven games, and that Andy has intercepted six passes for 95 yards.

Andy, who's silent about all the clamor, adds a personal touch to the latest endorsement Saturday when GW tackles the Citadel at Charleston, S. C.

Ex-D. C. Schoolboy Wins in Mat Debut

Herman Rubinstein, former Roosevelt High football star, made a successful pro wrestling debut last night as he pinned Johnny Gallagher after 11 minutes of a preliminary match at Turner's Arena.

About 1500 saw Laverne Baxter beat Dutch Schweigert, two out of three falls, in the feature. In the other matches, Bibber McCoy and Wilbur Nead, and Jesse James and Francois Miquette drew.



DOWN BUT 'HEADS UP'—Captain Bob Feerick of the Caps slides along the floor, but retains control of the ball in last night's Basketball Association of America opener against the Philadelphia Warriors at Uline Arena. Roy Pugh (16) of Philly looks on not quite sure what to do. Sonny Hertzberg (29) of the Caps awaits pass from Feerick

Durocher Picks Frisch, Fitz to Coach

By Joe Reichler

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Leo Durocher today signed up Frankie Frisch and Freddy Fitzsimmons, a couple of old New York heros as coaches for his New York Giants and announced that he had his hooks out for a front-line pitcher.

"If I could get the pitcher I have in mind," Leo told newsmen in a press conference here, "I'd be ready to challenge anybody for the 1949 pennant.

"I already have three good starting pitchers in Larry Jansen, Sheldon Jones and Monte Kennedy. If I could land that No. 1 pitcher, my pitching would be set. I'm not worried about the rest of the team. I could stand pat with it and still have the best hitting club in the majors."

Tries For Schmitz, Brecheen

Durocher declined to identify the pitcher he hoped to get, but admitted he had made overtures for Southpaws Johnny Schmitz of the Chicago Cubs and Harry Brecheen of the St. Louis Cards and Right-handers Ralph Branca and Rex Barney of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"I talked with Jimmy Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs in Chicago recently," Leo said. "I made him a good offer for several players I wanted, but he turned it down.

"No, I cannot tell you who they were," he added. "However, Walker Cooper was one of the players I was willing to let him have.

At first, Gallagher showed an interest in Cooper, but later cooled off on him. At no time was Johnny Mize mentioned. I can't understand that quote attributed to Jim that he refused to take Mize. I never offered him to the Cubs."

Although he refused to be specific, Durocher admitted under prompting that Schmitz, First Baseman Eddie Waitkus and Catcher Clyde McCullough were "among the players I wanted."

"I plan to leave New York late this afternoon for Califor[illegible]," Leo said, "and I will stop off in Chicago to resume negotiations with Gallagher. I hope we can come to an agreement then."

Durocher also disclosed that he had talked with Presidents Bob Hannegan of the Cardinals and Branch Rickey of the Dodgers.

Survival of Unfittest?

NYU, Hoyas Enter Game Even—in Injured Players

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

That Georgetown-New York University football game scheduled for tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium still is on. But each bulletin from the respective camps gets slightly more calamitous.

Latest word from the Hilltop is that Billy Conn, sensational soph, won't be able to increase his already respectable offensive figures against the Violet, shrinking in football circles since 1941.

Conn, whose twisted knee acted up again yesterday, joins End Al Sarashevitz and Tackle Tom Dolan on the sidelines. And a host of other Hoyas still are banged up from the 10-10 tie with Denver.

Mondschein Also Out

Sounds gruesome, but wait until you hear about poor N. Y. U. End Irv (Moon) Mondschein, better known for thrice winning the National AAU decathlon championship and placing eighth in the Olympics, won't play because of a knee injury received against Lehigh last Saturday.

Tackle Mike Fazio, 215-pounder, came down with appendicitis yesterday and, to add to Coach Hook Mylin's grief, Back Billy Payne, Negro speedster, currently is suffering from a heavy cold and rash. Payne, who went 85 yards on a touchdown kickoff return in NYU's sensational 21-20 comeback victory over Lehigh, probably will play and probably won't be in tiptop shape.

Although it's hard to suspect from this season's record, NYU has been playing football almost as long as anybody and much longer than most. Actually, The Violet and Stevens Tech are tied for fifth place in collegiate football priority. They played their first match in 1873.

That followed Princeton and Rutgers in 1869; Columbia in 1870 and Yale in 1872.

However, like a lot of records, NYU's isn't conclusive. After being overwhelmed by powerful Cornell, 47-6, The Violet dropped games to Springfield, 3-0, and Boston U., 28-7. However, Mylin's lads rallied to beat Brooklyn, 21-7, and then spotted Lehigh 20 points and came on to win that one last Saturday, 21-20.

There wasn't much the New Yorkers could do against Cornell, but they did hold Boston U. to a 14-7 score until late in the game when the Terriers pushed over two scores against the undermanned Violet.

In Edward E. (Hook) Mylin, NYU has one of the best coaches in the business. He was named "Coach of the Year" in 1937 when at Lafayette. Thing is, though, NYU has been deemphasizing football since 1941—and quite successfully.

It's astounding to realize that total enrollment at the university is 65,000. Of that number, more than 35,000 are full-time students matriculating for degrees. Why, the faculty, numbered at 3500, is more than half the Georgetown student body.

If NYU keeps cooperating by matching Hoya injuries, though, it will be Georgetown outnumbering The Violet on the football field tomorrow night.

Rockets Beat Lions, 5 to 2

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—In a game marked by fights and a near riot, the Washington Lions bowed to Philadelphia's Rockets, 5-2, tonight and dropped into last place in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League before a slim crowd of 1000. It was the eighth loss for the visitors who won two.

Altogether, a total of 11 2-minute penalties were called, with 8 coming in the final period. At one point, four players—two from each team—were in the penalty box.

When the players took time to play hockey, it was Rockets' Center Kenny Kilrea who turned the tide toward Philadelphia. The veteran handed out four assists to count in every goal but one.

Kenny Schultze, Lions' center, picked up an unassisted goal and an assist while Harry Dick added a goal and Frank Porteous was credited with one assist.

Board Okays High-Prep Title Game

The Board of Education yesterday approved a post-season football game between the Interhigh League champion and the best Prep team of Washington on the afternoon of December 4 at Griffith Stadium.

The game will decide the scholastic championship of Washington.

The Metropolitan Police Boys' Club and the Touchdown Club are among the sponsors. After expenses are deducted, proceeds will go to the Police Boys Club.

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, in recommending that the board approved the game, said that it would be tried on an experimental basis this year. The game will replace the All-Highs vs. All-Prep game which has been played for the past five years.

Corning said, "although the high school principals are not in favor of post-season games, they recognize the value of a game such as the proposed one. They feel it will be good public relation and they are agreeable to giving financial assistance to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club."

Corning said the game was not to be considered as an "entire abandonment of our policy against post-season games."

He said there would be an understanding that no players on the Prep team be over the age of 19.

Billy Conn, Louis Box Exhibition

Chicago, Nov. 3 (AP).—Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, is going to trade punches again with Billy Conn, who has emerged from a retirement forced by Louis two years ago.

Conn, who gave the champion a scare before the war, and the Brown Bomber who knocked him out in eight rounds when they clashed in Yankee Stadium in June, 1946, were matched today for a six-round exhibition at the International Amphitheater, December 10.

Conn, still boyish looking despite his 31 years, said he had been training for a comeback and would try to knock Louis out.

McKinney, Hermsen Get 17 Each; Only 1650 Watch

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Big Bones McKinney and even bigger Kleggie Hermsen shot the Washington Capitols to a 77-70 victory over the Philadelphia Warriors last night in the season's opener for both Basketball Association of America teams.

The pro court opener attracted only 1650 customers to Uline Arena.

McKinney, the 6-foot 6-inch former North Carolina U. star, bagged 17 points and paced the Cap attack after intermission while Hermsen, 6-foot 9-inch Minnesota luminary, was the hot-handed lad before recess. He also scored 17 points.

After frittering away advantages of 12 and 8 points, the Caps found themselves tied with the Warriors at 67-67 midway the last period. McKinney then dunked in a free throw which brought Washington a lead it increased as the minutes ticked away.

Fulks High, as Usual

Joe Fulks, Mr. Pro Basketball, led his club, as usual, popping in 24 points, but it was Angelo Musi, a midget in the pro leagues at only 5:09 and Ed Sadowski who threatened to ruin Washington's opener.

Musi, who collected 17 points, swished in 12 in the third quarter when the Warriors surged into a 51-50 lead. Then Hermsen and McKinney went to work and evenly divided eight points as the clubs went into the last quarter tied, 59 to 59.

The lead changed hands four times in the final period, but when Freddie Scolari scored on a long one-hander and McKinney followed with his free throw, the Caps were home.

After a listless first period, which ended with Washington on top, 25 to 12, the clubs waged a shooting war against each other in the second period, with the Caps coming out in front, 45-36, at half time. Sadoswki, a 13-point man last night, led the second quarter Warrior surge, scoring 11 of his 13 points while Hermsen, who held him to 3 points in the first period, rested on the bench.

Hermsen Comes Back

Rushed back into the breach, Hermsen held the 6-foot-6 260-pounder to only 3 points the rest of the game.

Big Fulks, who dominated the play around both boards by retrieving 75 per cent of the rebounds, arched in a hook shot to tie it as the third period ended. Jerry Fleischman put the Warriors ahead by 2 points to open the final period, and it began to appear that Philadelphia would win its first game in Washington in three years.

The Caps, however, settled down, and with Johnny Norlander and McKinney finding the range soon stopped the Warrior drive.

The Caps froze the ball the last three minutes, restricting the Warriors to only 3 points, all on fouls.

In the preliminary, McKee Pontiac's Prosen led his teammates to a 50-42 victory over FBI in the opener of the Uline Industrial League. Prosen scored 17 points.

Ex-GI Wins Football Contest

Bill Richards Beats Out 22 Who Pick All 21 Games Right

Obviously disregarding all authoritative polls and expert opinion, a record number of 23 persons correctly picked the outcome of the 21 games in The Washington Post's football contest last week.

It took a lot of digging before the Contest Editor finally determined J. William Richards, GI student at the University of Maryland, the winner.

Richards, 27-year-old senior who will be graduated in February, picked California to beat Southern California, 20-7. Runner-up Horace Hines, 40-year-old Government attorney, also missed the score by a total of 7 points (14-13) but Richards was given the nod because half his score was exact. California, won, 13-7, remember?

Miss Doris O. Christmas, of Selective Service Headquarters, and Earl V. Roberts, 1210 Meigs Place ne., missed it by only 8 points.

In the staggering list of uncanny football forecasters, nine

Gilmer Leaves Hospital to Rejoin 'Skin Teammates

After six weeks in Georgetown University Hospital, and several operations on his right leg, the Redskins' Harry Gilmer was discharged yesterday and rejoined his teammates at their Roosevelt Hotel quarters.

The rookie passing star from Alabama, in only five plays for the 'Skins this season, immediately became the roommate of Steve (Buggsy) Bagarus, 1945-46 ace who is starting a comeback with Washington.

Gilmer, still on crutches, with the rest of the Redskins attended a showing of films of Sunday's 59-21 defeat of Boston. It was emphasized by coaches that luck played a large part in that triumph, and players were warned that one of their best efforts will be necessary for another victory when the teams meet again this weekend in Boston.

Apprentice Gilbert Has 4 Winners

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 3.—The Rokeby Stables' Genancoke, owned by Paul Mellon of Pittsburgh, turned in a smashing victory today in the eleventh running of the $10,000 Battleship Steeplechase.

Saddled by Trainer Jack Skinner and ridden by Jockey Tommy Field, a pair of Middleburg, Va., citizens, Genancoke finished three lengths ahead

The Heir finished a nose in front of Lowry Watkins' Tourist List to take the place money in a photo finish for the position. Point Bleu, who seems to be a hard luck horse, was prominent until he bobbled at the thirteenth fence. He was eliminated at the next jump when he crashed to the turf. Both the horse and Jockey Foote escaped injury. Genancoke paid $14.20.

The day's riding hero was Apprentice Willie Gilbert, a Kentucky youth, who was aboard four winners on the eight-race program.

His first winner came in the second event. He kicked J. W. Y. Martin's Sherry D. home at a $4.20 mutuel and put the finishing touches on a $22.20 daily double started when D. K. Kerr, Jr.'s Equipass took the first race at $13.60 while under Apprentice Willie Downs' handling.

Gilbert came back in the third race to score with another public choice, G. M. Cohen's Floco. This filly returned a $5.40 mutuel. In the sixth race, Gilbert had the mount on the Treptow Stable's Friar Tuck and got the $19.40 shot home in advance of Your Sun and Props, the last-named the favorite.

In his last appearance of the afternoon, Gilbert took the Knollwood Stable's Second Try to the front on the backstretch and kept the mare there, getting her home to the tune of a $33.60 pay off.

D. C.-Owned Portmaker Wins Blue Ribbon in N. Y. Show

Fans Trim Denver Tailor For 412 Suits

DENVER, NOV. 3. (AP).—The biggest football upset in the country last week didn't happen to a football team. It happened to Harry Bitman, Denver tailor.

Bitman, a small independent businessman, was the victim of the most fantastic backfire in the history of football contests. He figures it will cost him $22,248, enough to send most small businessmen into bankruptcy.

Bitman's firm, known as Harman Tailors, sponsors a weekly radio contest in which fans are offered free suits for the best predictions each week on the outcome of ten close football games.

THE JOKER in the rules provides that all persons naming all ten winners will receive suits.

Last week, Bitman disclosed today, 412 persons picked all ten winners.

Bitman, who says he "didn't sleep for three nights" after getting the returns, figures that's $22,248 worth of suits. Production of the garments will tie up his small factory for several weeks during the winter rush season. Normally, it only turns out seven suits a day.

"I THOUGHT ABOUT cutting my throat. Then I talked with my attorney and he said there was a legal loophole I could use to get out of paying off.

"But I've spent five years building up my business and I figured I'd have to close if I welched on all those people. So they're all going to get the suits as fast as we can make them."

Adventure Of Upperville Ranks 2d

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Portmaker, the 8-year-old brown gelding which captured the open hunter championship at the National Horse Show in 1946 and was runner-up last year, opened his bid to return to the top today with a blue ribbon in his first appearance at the sixtieth annual classic.

Owned by Dr. and Mrs. Alvin I. Kay of Washington, and ridden by Mrs. Jane Rush, Portmaker defeated six others in a thoroughbred event which was judged on the basis of 60 per cent for performance and 40 per cent for conformation before a matinee crowd of 3000 at Madison Square Garden.

It was one of 16 events counting toward the open hunter championship, won last year by John T. Maloney's Substitution from Warrenton, Va., not defending the title, and it was worth five points to Portmaker in the scoring.

Adventure, a gelding from the Llangollen Farms at Upperville, Va., placed second, beating out Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hale's Golden Hill from Greenwich, Conn., and Bright Light, owned by the Seven Stars Stable at Southern Pines, N. C.

Golden Hill placed third and Bright Light fourth. Both won numerous championships at other shows this year.

Copperfield, a bay gelding owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry of Cobham, Va., also scored five points toward the open hunter title when he took an event featuring nonthoroughbreds.

Another blue ribbon went to Virginia when Goldwick, a chestnut gelding owned by Lieut. Col. W. Randolph Tayloe of Boyce, Va., placed first among the working hunter hacks.

Other Virginians to place were Martin Vogel, jr., of Warrenton, whose Peterescu took third in the working hunter bucks; and Martin W. Smith of Middleburg, whose Lariat was fourth.

A Yank at South Carolina Could Ruin Terps Saturday

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

South Carolina, which went all out for the Dixiecrats Tuesday, goes all out for a Yankee Saturday.

And if the Yankee, Halfback Steve Waziak of Chicago, goes all out for South Carolina, Maryland may be in for a licking.

"We're going to whip Maryland and Waziak is the boy who's going to do it for us," said South Carolina Coach Rex Enright from Columbia, S. C., last night. "He's one of the best looking freshman backs I've seen in years and he's ready."

Enright, the former Notre Dame back, didn't have the statistics to prove Waziak's prowess, but Publicity Man Red Ballentine grabbed the receiver and recited:

"He's carried the ball 33 times this year, gained 249 yards for an average of 6.4 yards per crack and he's only a freshman. Isn't that wonderful?"

Waziak won't be the only Gamecock backfield threat the Terps must watch. There's his halfback sidekick, Bishop Strickland, and Quarterback Passer Bo Hagan.

"That's as fine a backfield as we've ever had here," Ballentine added, offering more statistics.

If Coach Enright and Publicity Man Ballentine were talking (prepaid) to impress Maryland, they were wasting their time and money.

The Terps have been warned all week that the Gamecocks, despite the fact they've dropped three in a row, are no soft touch.

South Carolina was rated only behind North Carolina in September. They didn't lose a man off last year's squad, "and they're capable of beating any team in the South when they're right," Coach Jim Tatum has been telling his Terrapins all week.

The Gamecocks led unbeaten, untied Clemson, 7-0, with only 11 minutes to go and then lost, 13-7; They played once-beaten Tulane off its feet for three quarters only to lose, 14-0; and they led West Virginia, 7-0, but then blew up and were trounced.

"Don't let those scores fool you," Tatum continued. "They are rough."

The Gamecocks may be rough and Waziak may be all he's cracked up to be, but Maryland still rules a 13-point favorite to score its sixth victory in seven starts.

Bill Hawkins Rejoins Navy

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—"We are coming up against another great eleven," Coach George Sauer said dolefully today as Navy prepared for Michigan.

The Midshipmen worked out on Farragut Field with faint hopes of achieving a football upset at Ann Arbor next Saturday. After a licking by Notre Dame, they have a record string of 11 straight victories.

Fullback Bill Hawkins, out for three weeks with a throat disorder, "will be available for use on kickoffs and may also be used to punt," said a Naval Academy release.

End Larry Treadwell will be out for the season with a broken collarbone and Tackle Ken Knoizen, still sidelined with a broken hand, won't see action against Michigan.

Sauer expects to entrain Thursday night at Washington with a squad if about 37, arriving in Detroit Friday at 9:20 a. m.

Midgets—and Widgets—Make Debut at Uline Tonight

A new promotion will bow in before an anticipated gathering of 5000 spectators tonight when indoor midget automobile racing makes its debut in full dress at Uline Arena at 8:30 o'clock.

Tom Lane, director of Majestic Speedways, is sponsoring this seven-event competition, which will continue weekly and will headline 20 of the outstanding drivers, and fastest cars, in the American Racing Drivers Club.

A 30-minute show at intermission will find powerful little "widgets," miniature models of midgets, raced against time and along a cable.

Mike Joseph, leading 1948 point scorer at the West Lanham Speedway, will race the popular No. 4 Washington-owned Offenhauser of John Giacofci while Charles Miller, Vernon Land, Andy Furci, Fred Moore, Larry Bloomer and Walt Fair also will handle Offys.

Charles Miller and Len Duncan will step out in potent cycle cars while Hawley Kight, Ernie McCoy, Jim Keegan, Ralph Sheeler and Johnny Jars will report in high-powered Fords.

The cars will race on a flat concrete 1/10-of-a-mile track. Three qualifying heats of 10 laps each, two semifinals of 15, a consolation race of 20 and a feature race of 30 laps will be featured. Six machines will compete in the qualifying and semifinal events, and 10 each in the consolation and main event races.

Ex-GI Wins Football Contest

thought California would win by four touchdowns to one. Their names and predicted scores are carried below.

Richards, Air Force veteran who is a bridegroom of six months, plans to share his big prize with his wife, Geraldine.

Each weekly winner receives two tickets and an all-expense trip for two to the Army-Navy service classic at Philadelphia, November 27. In addition, Richards, loyal Terp student, will receive four tickets to the Maryland-North Carolina game, November 13.

Richards, a native of Cumberland, Md., is studying business and public administration at Maryland, majoring in finance.

Closest among the many in the fight at the finish was Horace Hines, 1030 S. Barton st., Arlington. Hines, an attorney with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and Harvard Law School.

Informed of his heart-breaking defeat, Hines murmured, "I guess that's as close as I'll ever get." He recuperated quickly, though, and admitted that he will be trying again next week.

The other 21 perfect pickers who faltered slightly on that California-Southern California score and their point predictions included:

Accused Slayer Of 2 In Theater Holdup Is Held

A coroner's jury yesterday held James Willis Hunter, 26, who police say admitted the slaying of two men in a holdup outside the Rosalia Theater, 218 F st. nw., Saturday, for action of the grand jury.

Slain during an exchange of shots between the hold-up man and police were James E. Washington, 51, Rosalia Theater manager, and Herbert Smith, 35, of 1224 7th st. nw., a bystander.

A canvas bag containing $400, which Washington was about to take to a night deposit box, disappeared during the excitement and has not yet been recovered.

According to police, Hunter told them he dropped the money in the melee. They believe it was carried off by a spectator.

Police Lieut. John Layton told how Hunter was arrested yesterday as he was about to enter a restaurant in the 500 block of 11th st. se., to visit two of his sisters who worked there. The man had been hiding out in Baltimore, Layton said, and returned to the restaurant to determine whether it was safe for him to proceed home.

Police told reporters that Hunter had declared he originally had no intention of attempting a holdup until he saw Washington carrying the moneybag.

"I shot the man because I thought he was grabbing for a gun," Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, chief of the homicide squad, quoted Hunter as saying.

Hunter did not take the witness stand. At one point, his gray-haired mother, Mrs. Pearl C. Hunter, 55, was granted permission to speak to him.

She told reporters afterward that Hunter said he "was sorry about the whole thing." Mrs. Hunter said James was one of eight children and that he was only 6 years old when the father deserted the family. She declared she was ill and that Hunter was coming home to see her when he was arrested.

Police Pvt. Thomas Allen, 4th Precinct, one of four officers in the shooting affray asked the slayer in the corridor: 'Do you know you almost killed me Saturday night?"

Hunter replied wryly: "I didn't want to kill you. I was just trying to get away."

Miss Mildred Elizabeth Belloff, 23, of Baltimore, was awarded $30,000 damages by a verdict in Prince Georges County Circuit Court last night for injuries suffered when struck by a car at College Park.

The amount was believed the largest ever granted for personal injury by the Prince Georges court.

The award was made against David Ashby Dodson, jr., 3804 Perry st., Brentwood, driver of the car. Miss Belloff claimed Dodson failed to stop after he saw her crossing Washington - Baltimore blvd. on October 6, 1945.

Then a part-time secretary to President H. C. Byrd of the University of Maryland, Miss Belloff suffered two broken legs, a fractured skull, a fractured vertebra and cerebral concussion.

Miss Belloff was represented by Walter L. Green, Edward C. Bell, jr., and Paul Berman.

Traffic Death

60-Day Term Given Cabbie In Homicide

A 24-year-old taxi driver was sentenced yesterday to serve 60 days in jail for negligent homicide in a traffic death here last March.

The hacker is Ernest F. Lee, of 4521 Fairfield dr., Bethesda, Md. The victim was the late Arno O. Teumer, 62, of 2831 27th st. nw. The accident occurred at 1:05 a. m. March 7, a rainy night.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert E. Short presented evidence to a Municipal Court jury that Lee had been drinking in at least three taverns with a group of friends, and after hitting Mr. Teumer at 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., stopped for just a few minutes, never identified himself and then drove to Virginia.

Shortly thereafter, Lee was fined $75 for leaving after colliding and failing to give full time and attention in connection with the accident. He was rearrested when Mr. Teumer died of a fractured skull.

Widow Gets $25,000 for Fall Injuries

A 54-year-old widow received $25,000 damages yesterday in District Court after a physician testified that she was injured so severely in a fall here that she can never again get a job as a secretary.

The jury award was against the Defense Homes Corp., which in 1944 was landlord of the Naylor Gardens development here where Mrs. Frances McMillian, the injured woman, resided. She testified that she fell into a hole caused by construction work at the development.

At the time, according to her attorney, Dorsey K. Offutt, she was a secretary-statistician at the Soviet Purchasing Commission. The injuries included a sacro-iliac strain, bursitis of the right shoulder, adhesions and a nervous condition. She was hospitalized over a period of a year and a half.

Her physician, Dr. Alan F. Kreglow, testified that her injuries prevented her from ever performing a secretary's job again.

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough presided.

In another damage case, Police Corp. Aubrey S. Yowaiski, of 3101 Pennsylvania ave. se., won a $25,000 judgment in District Court for traffic injuries suffered in September, 1945.

According to the evidence, Corporal Yowaiski was on duty on a motorcycle near New York ave. and 9th st. bridge ne., when struck by an automobile operated by Fred J. Lilly, 602 21st st. ne. Injuries suffered by the officer were multiple compound fractures of the left leg, causing permanent disability.

Lilly declined to contest the suit. The jury which made the award was before Judge Matthew F. McGuire. Sidney M. Goldstein presented the case.

Youth Freed, Ending Police Beating Case

A youth who complained last week that police blackened his left eye when questioning him, was exonerated yesterday of a charge of petit larceny.

At the same time, police announced that he had dropped his complaint by signing a statement that he hurt his eye on a cell bar.

The youth is Percy E. Moy, 19, of 1236 11th st. se., who was arrested last Friday outside the Sunshine Biscuit Co., where he is employed. Police said he had a license tag on his car which was not listed for the automobile.

Taken to the Twelfth Precinct station for questioning, May was removed that night to Casualty Hospital for treatment to the injured eye and released. The petty larceny charge was placed against him next morning and he was released after his mother posted $10 collateral. The collateral was forfeited Monday, when he failed to appear in Municipal Court.

Moy's family complained Saturday that he had been struck by police. Inspector George Wallrodt said he learned that Moy had been given the ear tag by a friend, Dwayne R. Manuel, 18, of 937 15th st. se., who said he found it.

This evidence was reported by police to Harold Bacon, assistant United States attorney, who reopened the case yesterday in Municipal Court. Judge Thomas D. Quinn nolle prossed the charge and ordered Moy's collateral refunded.

Wallrodt said his investigation, plus the signed statement, showed there was no evidence of police brutality.

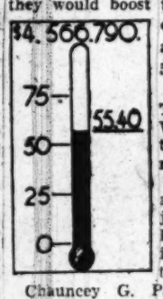
If Democrats Did, We Can, Chest Slogan

Community Chest workers yesterday took heart from the sweeping election upset and predicted they would boost their campaign efforts to reach a goal of $4,566,790.



Chauncey G. Parker, general campaign chairman, reminded workers at a report luncheon at the Washington Hotel that "apathy can't win in a fight. If you are a fighter, you get a few customers. If you carry the fight right into the enemy's territory, you may lick him."

The luncheon was frequently punctuated with predictions by workers that Government officials who had been saving their pennies for the predicted rainy day now might loosen up with contributions to the Community Chest.

Contributions reported yesterday brought the total raised in the campaign so far to $2,530,016.54, or 55.40 per cent of the goal. There have been 218,156 individual contributions, reports showed. The campaign previously had been extended to November 19.

Lieut. Col. W. W. Bouterse, area director of the Salvation Army and principal speaker at the luncheon, pointed out that the Community Chest campaign goal "isn't percentages. This is kids. This is hungry people," he said.

By units, the reports yesterday showed the following percentages of quotas: Business No. 1, 49.66 per cent, with 36,367 givers of $886,560.12; Business No. 2, 27.7 per cent, with 2535 givers of $98,641.45; Government, 76.28 per cent, with 157,331 givers of $1,162,907.11; Residential, 53.49 per cent, with 8461 givers of $258,071.95; Alexandria, no new report; Arlington, 23.38 per cent, with 2536 givers of $16,547.07; Fairfax, no new report; Montgomery, 32.77 per cent, with 4125 givers of $52,347.10, and Prince Georges, 26.57 per cent, with 1532 givers of $16,027.68.

Nineteen Metropolitan policemen and firemen will receive valor awards at the second membership meeting of the Washington Board of Trade in the Mayflower at 8 p. m. today.

Presentation of the awards, a biyearly event, will be made by Robert V. Fleming, chairman of the District Commissioners' Committee on Awards, assisted by Commissioners, and police and fire officials.

A discussion of the national election, featuring several radio commentators, and stressing the election's impact on District affairs, will be included in the program.

Spivak Made 'Sneak' Visits To Mrs. Beloff, Court Is Told

A private detective yesterday told District Court how he watched Leon Spivak "sneak" in and out of Mrs. Simon Beloff's home and "duck" into alleys after leaving her house at all hours of day and night.

The detective, Perry Bonner of 311 Lincoln ave., Silver Spring, Md., said he was hired for a $1000 fee by Simon Beloff, 67-year-old real estate dealer, to "spy" on Mrs. Beloff and Spivak. He named four separate dates on which he saw Spivak enter and later leave her home at 1351 Spring rd. nw.

Bonner's testimony was given during the fifth day of the trial in which Beloff, who lives at 1611 Decatur st. nw., is seeking a divorce from his 34-year-old wife on grounds of adultery. Spivak, who is 50 and also a real estate man has been named corespondent. Beloff is also seeking custody of his 4-year-old daughter, Sylvia.

Bonner said on February 29, 1948, he saw Mrs. Beloff enter her own home about 2:45 p. m. and Spivak go in about 10 minutes later. Spivak left at 4:30 p. m. and Bonner tried to trail him to his home, the detective said.

"You should try to trail that man. Just as soon as he gets to an alley, he ducks. He can disappear like the earth opened up and swallowed him," Bonner declared, describing how he lost sight of Spivak.

Again on March 23, 1948, Spivak entered Mrs. Beloff's home about 10:30 p. m. and left shortly before 2 a. m., the detective said. There were no lights on in the house during that time, he declared.

He said he saw a man and woman embrace in the house about 10:30 p. m. on April 26. After watching the house steadily for five hours, he saw Spivak leave, he said.

"There was no doubt it was Spivak. You should see the way he walks. He always bent up almost double and sneaked out every time he left there," Bonner asserted.

On May 14, Spivak went in the house at 10:30 p. m. and didn't leave until 6 o'clock the next morning, the detective said, adding that it was the first time since he had been hired on the case that he was able to trail Spivak all the way to the latter's home at 1614 Longfellow st. nw.

Earlier in the day, Spivak took the stand to deny emphatically that he had seen or communicated with Mrs. Beloff at any time since March, 1947. He said he had visited the Beloff home on Decatur st. perhaps four or five times before that month. On two of these occasions, he may have seen Mrs. Beloff alone but it was on business matters, he declared.

He said he had taken Mrs. Beloff out in either his own or her husband's car several times, but that had been to give her driving instructions at the invitation of Beloff.

Asked if he was at her home at 11:30 a. m. on April 2, 1947, when a former housemaid testified she saw him sitting on Mrs. Beloff's bed, Spivak shouted:

"That's an unmitigated lie."

He said he is "decidedly not" in love with Mrs. Beloff and is not even fond of her. He knows her only as the wife of a business associate, he declared. Asked by Beloff's attorney, John Alexander, whether he would marry Mrs. Beloff if they both were free, Spivak countered with:

"Can you tell what you would do five years from now?"

Court Dismisses Suit Against Newspaper Guild

Judge Jennings Bailey of District Court yesterday dismissed a $15,000 damage suit against the American Newspaper Guild brought by Mary Carter Roberts, former book reviewer for The Washington Star Newspaper Co.

Miss Roberts contended that she was dismissed wrongfully and in addition to the WNG, sued the Washington Newspaper Guild for $10,000 and The Star for $7000.

Judge Bailey refused to grant the plaintiff a court order at this time requiring the guild to arbitrate her case. He took a motion to dismiss the complaint against the WNG under advisement, a motion for judgment on the pleadings as to The Star under advisement and ordered the plaintiff to post security for costs.

Clerk Robbed of $9 In Ice Cream Store

A holdup man, who held his hand in his side pocket as though armed, about 9 o'clock last night robbed a clerk in the High Ice Cream Store, at 321 15th st. ne. of $9.

A police lookout was broadcast for a Negro, 23 to 24 years old, 5 feet 5 inches, wearing a brown hat and black and white checked raincoat.

Elderly Woman Rescued as Fire Wrecks House

An elderly bed-ridden woman was removed from a two story brick house at 401 Richardson pl. nw. yesterday shortly before its interior became gutted by flames.

The woman, treated for shock at Gallinger Hospital, was listed there as Annie Saunders. Her age was not given.

The blaze was caused by an exploding oil stove in the living room, according to Battalion Chief Fred Literal. Eight pieces of apparatus responded. The fire destroyed all contents of the four-room structure and badly damaged the house itself.

School Child Tooth Drive Is Approved

A program of the District Health Department and the Public Health Service to apply sodium fluoride to the teeth of 3000 school children was approved yesterday by the Board of Education.

A fluorine demonstration unit, consisting of a dentist; two dental hygienists and a clerk, will visit nine elementary schools starting about the middle of the month. The unit will clean the teeth of the children and then apply sodium fluoride, a colorless and odorless liquid, to the teeth in four applications at one week intervals.

The board said that written consent of the parents will be required before the children can participate.

Other Developments

In other actions yesterday the board:

Abolished 27 teaching positions not now filled in order to conform to the 1949 Appropriations Act which cut by $100,000 funds available for teachers' salaries.

Approved closing of night schools Wednesday, November 24, and December 23, the last school nights before Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Appointed Vance Shiflet, teacher of history at Eastern High School, to the position of history instructor at Wilson Teachers College.

Added to Lunch Program

Added Macfarland Junior High School to schools participating in the school lunch program.

Approved schools joining in a "Street and Highway Safety Editorial Contest" sponsored by the American Automobile Association, and participation of school newspapers in a contest sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, on "What we should know about tuberculosis, and how our community fights tuberculosis."

Approved having a selected number of high school students attend a concert of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in New York and take part in a broadcast.

Coroner's Jury Clears Wife In Fatal Stabbing

The jury held that the stabbing of Mathew W. Jones, 24, by his wife Vivian, 25, during a fight at their home, 518 Columbia rd. nw., Tuesday, was justifiable.

According to police, the argument started when Mrs. Jones refused a demand from her husband that she call the Bureau of Engraving and Printing where he worked, and tell them he wouldn't be in.

Police said, Jones then attacked his wife with a knife, dropped it in the melee, and started beating her with a chair. Mrs. Jones retrieved the knife and stabbed him. Jones died in Freedmen's Hospital at 8:40 a. m. yesterday several hours after Mrs. Jones had surrendered to police.

District to Get New Lineup of 'Hill' Managers

Election Also Gives Chance for Some Form of Self-Government

Out of the election, Washington gets a new line-up of congressional managers for District municipal affairs. It also gets a slimmer but still present chance for some form of home rule that would let residents here manage their own local affairs.

A new District home-rule bill will be up in the next Congress. Representative Auchincloss (R., N. J.) said yesterday he will introduce it. An open question is what will be the effect upon the home-rule bill of these three facts:

1. President Truman has voiced support for District suffrage in both local and national affairs.

2. The Democratic Party campaign platform this year said: "We favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

3. The Republican campaign platform said: "We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

Will Restore McMillan

The election overturn that gave the House back to the Democrats will restore Representative McMillan (D., S. C.) to his place as chairman of the House District Committee. He held the post in the Seventy-ninth Congress. He said he will confer with Auchincloss about home rule, although he fought the bill this year.

Democratic capture of the Senate puts Senator Johnston (D., S. C.) in line to be chairman of the Senate District Committee. Or he could be chairman of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee. He said yesterday he had not yet decided which to take.

Senator Holland (D., Fla.) would be next in line to be Senate District Committee chairman if Johnston turns it down. Holland favored home rule; Johnston opposed it.

Thoroughly Riddled

The Republican side of the Senate District Committee was thoroughly riddled by the election. Of the seven Republican members, all four who were up for reelection lost. Defeated were Chairman Buck (R., Del.), Senators Ball (R., Minn.), Cooper (R., Ky) and Dworshak (R, Idaho).

A fifth, Senator Capper (R., Kans.), longtime advocate of giving District residents suffrage in national affairs, did not stand for reelection.

Senator Dworshak was also chairman of the Senate District Appropriation Subcommittee.

One of the other two members, Senator Cain (R., Wash.) is almost sure to go off the District Committee. Present rules prevent members of the Senate minority party from serving on more than two committees—members of the majority party can serve on two major committees plus the District Committee—and Cain would likely choose to keep his memberships on the Banking and Currency Committee and the Public Works Committee.

That would leave only Senator Kem (R., Mo.) as the only experienced Republican member of the Senate District Committee. He has but one other committee assignment now, Agriculture and Forestry.

Cain Chief Handler

Cain has been the Senate's chief handler of District tax legislation. He led the drive this year for approval of a 2 per cent retail sales tax for the District.

While the tax is still a cornerstone of the District Commissioners' financial planning for next year, the proposal would have extremely slim chances with Johnston in as Senate District chairman. He led the fight against the sales tax this year, and succeeded in blocking passage.

Besides Johnston and Holland, three other Democrats could continue to serve on the District Committee. They are Senators Sparkman (D., Ala.), McGrath (D., R. I.) and Stennis (D., Miss.). Only

Headquarters Of Chaplains Is Dedicated

New headquarters of the General Commission on Chaplains at 122 Maryland ave., ne., was dedicated at a service in the chaplains' memorial chapel yesterday.

A tablet bearing the names of 134 Protestant chaplains who died in service in World Wars I and II was unveiled by Secretary of National Defense James V. Forrestal during the service.

Forrestal paid tribute to the "potent and deep" influence of chaplains upon men in the service, and declared the "need for Christian faith was never more striking than today."

The General Commission on Chaplains represents 46 denominations and religious bodies in their work with the chaplains corps of the Army, Navy, and Veterans Administration.

The new $125,000 building, former home of Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, was bought and furnished with funds donated by individuals, denominations, and organizations. T. A. Rymer, director, said the building is debt free.

The chapel, which contains the tablet containing the names of the 134 dead chaplains was a special gift of the Presbyterian Church in the USA, Rymer stated.

Dr. Joseph C. Hazen, chairman of the General Commission, presided at the semiannual business meeting, which also was held yesterday.

Anne Beers Playground Fund Sought

Comdr. W. D. Thompson gave an "off the record" talk on European conditions as viewed through the eyes of an American traveler.

Flames Destroy Four-Room House At Morningside

A four-room frame house at 4901 Allentown rd., near Morningside, Md., burned almost to the ground shortly after noon yesterday.

The occupants, Mary Lee, and her son, Leon Lee, were not at home at the time the blaze was discovered by Halla Dull, assistant fire warden at Morningside, who lives about a quarter-mile away.

Dull said he called in an alarm and firemen from Boulevard Heights, Forestville, Morningside, Silver Hill and the Andrews Air Force base responded. They could not save the house.

The blaze was apparently caused by the explosion of a kerosene stove, firemen said. Mrs. Lee and her son lost all their possessions.

Area News in Brief

Barrett Commends Schoolboy Rescuer

A modest schoolboy patrol lieutenant was commended yesterday by Maj. Robert A. Barrett, superintendent of police, for snatching a 6-year-old boy safely from the path of a speeding truck.

He is 12-year-old Richard S. Lawrenson, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lawrenson, 3302 7th st. ne., a student at the Brookland School.

He is credited with saving the life of William Schneckenburger, a schoolmate, of 609 Monroe st. ne., on October 21 at 7th and Monroe sts. ne. But Richard told no one about it.

Mrs. Helen Lyman, principal of the school, heard about the rescue from Pvt. William J. Couperthwaite of the Twelfth Precinct, who was investigating a report about the speeding truck.

"I only did what Mrs. Lyman told me to do in time of danger," Richard commented. "When I saw the truck turning the corner, I ran out, grabbed the boy by the neck and the seat of his pants, and rushed him out of the street."

Phone System Clogged

News that Governor Dewey had conceded the election yesterday produced a flood of telephone calls that resulted in a temporary state of paralysis for part of the city's telephone system.

"Too many people were trying to make calls at the same time," said a telephone company official. "The dial equipment couldn't take it."

Normal service was restored in about 15 minutes. A similar interruption took place on April 12, 1945, when first word of President Roosevelt's death was flashed.

Real Estate Man Fined

Rudolph Behrend, real estate man of 715 7th st. nw., was fined $25 yesterday for safety violations at the Interocean Building, 512 9th st. nw.

Behrend stated he has repaired the building, which according to Building Inspector Charles O'Connell, in August had a rusted grill over the sidewalk, a broken plate glass window, loosely hanging awning rods, a rusted fire escape and three unsafe steel bars over the alley.

According to police, Behrend has been found guilty 60 times for violations of building, health, fire and rodent control violations since 1930. The sentencing judge yesterday was John P. McMahon of Municipal Court.

A survey of District public school auditoriums, cafeterias and gymnasiums was ordered yesterday by Commissioner Guy Mason to determine what changes would be required to make them conform with egress regulations.

Col. Jackson Fined $50

Col. Irving W. Jackson, 39, of 5900 Utah ave. nw., was fined $50 in Municipal Court by Judge Ellen T. Raedy on a charge of leaving after colliding.

Stackelbergs Entertain In Honor of Portrait Artist

By Marie McNair

Alexander Clayton, whose portrait of Mrs. Constantine Stackelberg was on view yesterday, is such a quiet, modest little man that he was soon swallowed up in the throng that came to Mr. and Mrs. Stackelberg's party in his honor.

But, from the sidelines, he was bound to hear the paeans of praise heaped upon his work—a beautiful likeness of Garnett Stackelberg in a magnetic blue gown with her white shoulders uncovered, her hair arranged high and upswept from a long and graceful neck.

This portrait was hung on the pale green drawing room walls, and another by the same artist in the library adjoining was of Mrs. Jamshed Vesugar, American wife of the Indian Purchasing Agent.

Mrs. Vesugar herself was there, wearing a flaring black taffeta frock and, as seemed the vogue yesterday, no hat, on her light brown hair.

Mrs. Stackelberg's frock was a deep plum color made with slim waist and a skirt which fell in folds at her ankles, and was almost solidly dotted with sequins in matching shade. A purple orchid pinned to her shoulder gave just the needed touch.

It was a day of post-mortem politics yesterday and with Leslie Biffle and Mrs. Biffle and the Leon Hendersons there, the only subject of conversation was what happened on Tuesday. Glade Biffle was tired, she admitted, having been up all night on Tuesday getting home at 9 a. m. yesterday, and still no sleep. Leon and Myrlie Henderson were jubilant and Col. Robert Guggenheim, who'd been backing Dewey, looked around, seemed to find the room suddenly full of Democrats.

Not touched by politics were the Portuguese Ambassador, Pedro Theotonio Pereira, who came early and stayed late; and the Ecuadorian Ambassador, Augusto Dillon, and Senora de Dillon, whose little black velvet bonnet was tied in fetching fashion with narrow black velvet ribbons just under her ear. The Chilean Ambassador, Felix Nieto del Rio, was there with Senora de Nieto del Rio, a Latin beauty, who wore a black frock with collar and cuffs of powder blue embroidered in silver and a black hat feather trimmed.

Gala Embassy Reception Marks Panama's National Holiday

By Elizabeth Maguire

Panama's National Day yesterday was celebrated here with a gala reception at the embassy. The occasion marked independence gained from Colombia on November 3, 1904. Members of the Panamanian colony and State Department officials were received by the Ambassador and Senora de Vallarino in the drawing room of the embassy between 6 and 8 o'clock.

A bar was set up in the library, where Latin American dance music issued forth from the radio, and buffet supper was served in the dining room.

Gastronomically, the Panamanian Embassy is tops. Various delicacies are arranged with imagination and cooked with inspiration. Placed on a lace cloth centered with masses of yellow flowers yesterday were platters of salmon in aspic, turkeys, baked ham, roast puerco, miniature meat balls dipped in wine, green jello, heart-shaped salads surrounded with slices of red tomatoes, plantins dipped in honey, and ices with little cakes called suspiros or sighs.

Pretty daughters of embassy staff members donned native costumes worn on festive occasions such as yesterday. Senorita Analida Vallarino, daughter of the Ambassador, was there in the "montuna" costume of the peasant, and Senorita Felicia Pardinf wore the "pollera," which is the garb of the aristocrat. Most effective part of the pollera is the headdress, a rich gold filigree of flowers, spiders, scorpions and anything fanciful. One headdress included a pair of silver peacocks.

After cocktails and supper the tamborita and the punto, favorites of Panama, were danced in the drawing room by eight different girls in costume. An interested spectator was Mrs. Francisco Arias, a house guest of the Ambassador and Senora de Vallarino. Mrs. Arias is the aunt of Miss Hilda Vallarino, daughter of the former Panamanian Ambassador. On Tuesday Hilda phoned her aunt to say that her father, a political prisoner, was out of jail as of that day.

Julio Ernesto Heurtematte, Commercial Counselor of the Panamanian Embassy, was at the reception with Julio Ernesto Heurtematte, jr., who lives up extremely well to the tradition of good looks in the family. Senora de Heurtematte is in New York shopping for a few days.

Earlier in the day, at 11 a. m., a ceremony took place at the Embassy, in which the Ambassador conferred the Order of Balboa on Brig. Gen. Lemuel Matthewson and Rear Admiral John S. Shafroth for their service in the United States Government in Panama. After the ceremony, toasts were made in Spanish.

Eight Women Elected to House Seats

Eight women, four Democrats and four Republicans, were elected to the House in Tuesday's balloting, unofficial returns disclosed last night.

A ninth race was still undecided, but in that contest Mrs. Marcella F. Killen, a Minnesota Democrat, was trailing veteran incumbent Representative Walter H. Judd, a Republican.

The eight House victories assured women voters of holding at least nine seats in the Eighty-first Congress—two more than their total in the outgoing Congress. In addition to the House victors, Representative Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) was elected to the Senate on September 13.

Five of the victors yesterday were incumbents seeking reelection, one sought to regain the seat she lost in 1946 and two were newcomers to Capitol Hill. The victorious newcomers were:

Reva Beck Bosone of Utah, a pretty red-haired Salt Lake City police judge, who overwhelmed incumbent Republican Representative William A. Dawson.

Mrs. Cecil M. Harden of Covington, Ind., a 53-year-old former school teacher who withstood the Democratic trend in her State to eke out a narrow victory over her Democratic opponent, Jack J. O'Grady, for the seat now held by Representative Nobel Johnson, a Republican.

The successful comeback was staged by Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse of Connecticut. Mrs. Woodhouse, a Democrat who served in the Seventy-seventh Congress, defeated incumbent Representative Horace Seely-Brown, jr., a Republican.

Incumbents who were successful in their bids for reelection included Representatives Mary T. Norton, D., N. J.; Helen Gahagan Douglas, D., Calif.; Edith Nourse Rogers, R., Mass.; Frances P. Bolton, R., Ohio, and Katharine St. George, R., N. Y.

Zonta Club Hears Dr. Young

The United Nations has not had a chance to function as it was intended since it was designed as an organization to keep the peace, not to make it, Dr. Louise Young said yesterday. Dr. Young, who spoke before members of the Zonta Club at a luncheon meeting on "The United Nations and Me," was introduced by Miss Vera Londquist.

Commenting on the elections, Dr. Young said she felt the critical election spots had gone to President Truman because he had shown himself to be the man to go all out of our present foreign policy.

The election news was probably more disturbing to the men in the Kremlin, Dr. Young said, since they could not plan their strategy if a democracy was so unpredictable.

Special guests at the luncheon were Mrs. G. P. Iversen, Mrs. George Tunis and Miss Elsie Jones.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Home From Five Consecutive Years' Naval Service, Man Is Viciously Inconsiderate Of His Model Daughter, 7; How Help Them?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: There is friction in our home which began when my husband returned from five years' Navy duty in the Pacific. He went to sea when our daughter, Delia, was 20 months old, and all she knew of him was his picture.

She learned to idolize his picture and loved the man I would tell her about; thus when Randall finally came home she was the happiest child you ever saw, but Randall didn't know how to get along with the "young lady" who had been a baby when he last saw her.

She is nearly seven, large for her age, and has the intelligence of a 10-year-old. All her grandparents, also our friends, and I myself think she is a well-brought-up, obedient child; but Randall doesn't think so. He is nasty with her and seems to be always yelling at her. She can't please him.

Mother Expects Another Child

HE DOESN'T punish her, except by "cussing her out" in pretty ugly language; but he brings complaints to me and expects me to punish her, when I wasn't even there when the offense (if any) took place; and I don't think that's right. Also he tells me I should strike her when asking her to do something; and I disagree with that. In brief, he doesn't seem to want her around.

Delia watches with tears in her eyes when her father plays with other children, and she never listens to a favorite radio program nor asks permission to nowadays, unless he's out—because he swore and jibed so much about it. At first I hopefully explained to Delia that she must give daddy time to get used to her; but alas, I'm still explaining.

It's got so that she wouldn't mind his going back into the Navy, except that she'd miss having him around and she knows I would miss him terribly; and as it happens, we are expecting another child in January. Can you help us in any way; or show me how to help Delia understand her father better? S. C.

Man's Sloughed Off Civilized Attitudes

DEAR S. C.: This is a very large problem to grapple with in my limited space, but if Randall's mind is open to help, as yours seems to be, perhaps we can do something about it—in the way of lighting up trouble factors and seeing how to dissolve them.

The friction has its rise (1) not only in Randall's callous general disorientation to family life, a penalty for having spent five consecutive years in rough-tough Navy service; but also (2) in his coming home to find that Delia has become (he feels) the apple of your eye in his absence, and that you seem to expect him to share and echo your effulgent prideful appreciation of her charming precocity.

More than that (3) you and Delia were changed out of all recognition, as to appearance, doings and interests, compared to his dream-images of wife and child; just as he (4) has scant resemblance, in behaviorism, to the "ideal father" you'd been selling to Delia in glowing terms.

And to boot (5) Randall's return was cued, unconsciously on his part, to expectation of being received and enshrined as hero-lover forever after in your routine; whereas you and Delia were poised to incorporate in your scheme of things a manly companion-protector who doted on hearthside pastimes and sympathetically adored his "young lady" daughter.

He Is Childishly Rejecting a "Rival"

SO, IN EFFECT, it was a case of strangers (more or less) converging; but whereas you and Delia rapidly rallied from initial shock and were disposed to be infinitely plastic in trying to work out a comfortable three-way adjustment on the basis of realism,

Mrs. Law to Aid Italy's Women Plan Citizenship Education

Mrs. Marc Law of Northbrook, Ill., sailed yesterday from New York for a four months visit to Italy as a representative of the League of Women Voters of the United States. A former vice president of the league, she is being sent under the auspices of the league's Carrie Chapman Catt Memorial Fund, according to Miss Anna Lord Strauss, league president.

MRS. LAW

The fund was set up by the league last year in response to the numerous requests made by foreign women to the organization for their guidance and help in working to educate citizens.

"It is not the purpose of the fund to establish Leagues of Women Voters or any new organizations in the countries visited," Miss Strauss said. "The representatives of the fund will share with the women of the foreign countries the 28 years of league experience in citizenship education, particularly among women."

Mrs. Law is the first representative of the fund to be sent abroad. She will spend four months in Italy, mainly in Rome, Genoa, Milan and Naples. There are in Italy three important woman's organizations concerned with the political education of women, and the leaders of each of these three groups have requested the kind of assistance Mrs. Law will give.

Ballad for the G.O.P.

After the Victory Bawl— With Many Hearts Broken Ere the Break of Day

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

STARTING around 10:30 Tuesday evening, red faces became de rigeuer in our fancier fashionable, as well as intellectual, circles. At that hour what promised to be a frenzied Republican victory party at the Statler was beginning to dissolve into exceedingly thin and chilly air. Instead of bright lights and whoopee, like Mickey Mouses scurrying from a burning building, sober Republicans exited from the side door in a steady stream. Turning up collars, tightening furs against damp, not as much as a dimple was shown, there wasn't a smile in a carload.

Upstairs suite after suite was semifilled with stunned Deweyites. The largest room, equipped like a theater, offered television, a ceiling-high blackboard for chalking up returns. As the audience began to melt a brace of pretty girls stepped to the microphone, launched a round of songs. The audience responded lukewarmly, voices quavering unhappily off key.

In the corridors radio men set up shop, sitting on sofas, murmuring confidentially into their mikes. When one signed off, the chief broadcaster linked his office: "No, no, no, NO! We've given you everything we've got. We don't know any more than you!" he snarled sourly.

Intruders were barred from a door marked "Press." "We're not serving drinks," snapped the distrait guardian.

In smaller rooms where important Dewey workers beehived, radios droned unheeded, talk rippled low "Illinois, California, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio" ran the mumbled refrain. Small groups huddled, searching some out, balancing electoral, popular votes like overloaded jugglers. Gloom was a physical fact, you could practically lay hold of it, touch it with a finger.

The Happy Side

AS THE NEWS wildfired, newly enthusiastic Democrats, ignoring elevators in their haste, Indian filed to second floor headquarters in the Ring Building. Like at all Democrat shindigs the crowds milled happily, seemingly without purpose. Bourbon, the Democrat comfort, jiggled warmly in hundreds of paper cups. There were few bigshots, most of them had planned to meet defeat quietly at home, but those on hand wormed through tight-packed bodies, faces split wide with grins.

There was Mrs. Kenneth Royall, shaking hands as she was shoved along; the Secretary of Agriculture Brannan and his smart politically, on tiptoe wife; the Leslie Biffles. Leslie, his face splotched with congratulatory dabs of lipstick, his eyes half shut with fatigue, was greeting people half dozen at a time. Mrs. Biffle, Mrs. Brannan commuted between headquarters and the Women's National Democratic Club where high, though refined, jinks were in full flower and such stapch Democrats as the Assistant of the Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown came in for some resounding back thumping. Not until 3 a. m. did the final punch-drunk Democrat waft away from the shambles which was once orderly headquarters.

Intriguing Complications

IN THE MORNING the new situation burgeoned with intriguing complications. Real estate agents were first mourners. They had counted on a Republican turnover to boost trade. On a tough spot were foreign journalists who, like everyone else, had predicted a Dewey landslide.

One British newsman's wife groaned she had to start work arranging a dinner for 16, all guests invited on the premise of happy Republican victory. Her husband countered "Work on a dinner for 16? I've got to start work undoing all the work I've done in the past two months!"

Arthur Schlesinger, jr., the distinguished historian, wisecracked from New York "I never thought Orson Welles could outstrip me in imagination."

But imagine what's going on in New York—the Winthrop Aldrichs, the Harold Talbotts, who had been slated for Cabinet and ambassadorial posts and had rearranged their lives from January 20, 1949, accordingly.

What's going to happen to the smart Dewey avant guarde who slipped into Washington, plucked some of the nicest houses? The Republicans already established here who have enlarged and done over their homes in smug anticipation of bigger jobs, of a flood of GOP entertaining?

What's going to happen to those in Truman's immediate entourage who staked out plush jobs in private industry? Those who hustled to the Republican convention scouting for plums?

Smartest hostess was Perle Mesta. She rented no house, steered clear of Washington campaign time, not wasting money or energy entertaining optimistic Republicans or discouraged Democrats. Come January she can come back with a whoosh, bank account undented, for another round of Mesta parties.

Local AAUW To Occupy New Quarters

By Genevieve Reynolds

The American Association of University Women and the Washington Branch amicably split their housing partnership this week when the local group of the national organization moved its furniture and fixtures from 1634 I st. nw., to 1515 New Hampshire ave. nw. Actual occupancy by the branch membership, however, will be delayed due to necessary changes in construction.

When the Washington Branch announced that it would set up separate headquarters, rumors flew that the move was promoted by the recent dispute with the mother organization over the readmission of Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, prominent Negro leader, to branch membership. Local members of the branch insisted that they had a right to bar Negroes if a majority adopted such a policy. But the National Board of AAUW contended that no qualified college woman could be barred from membership due to race, color or creed, and that the Washington Branch should conform to national AAUW policy or get out. A decision of the District Court sided with the local group's stand.

Both local and national spokesmen declared yesterday that the Washington Branch's decision to establish separate headquarters was not prompted or influenced by the membership squabble.

Miss Ruth Tyron, editor of the AAUW's official national magazine, said, "The History of the Association (AAUW), published in 1931 predicted that the time would come when the headquarters building would not be sufficiently large to share with one of its branches. Due to an increased 7000 membership in the national organization, plus a large increase in the Washington Branch's membership, the building space was too small for joint occupancy. AAUW headquarters building will be used as an administrative unit and a national-international center. Provision will be made for space for alumnae and national members to meet."

The AAUW editor said that the problem of inadequate spacing has been considered from time to time since 1936. Another national staff member asserted, "Separate headquarters were not prompted by the membership argument. At best it may have speeded up the decision of the Washington Branch to find a new clubhouse."

Dr. Elizabeth Conrad, president, Washington Branch, confirmed the statements of national AAUW heads.

In lieu of a tea, the Washington Branch has scheduled a regular business meeting for Monday, November 8, 7:30 p. m., in the All States Hotel. Until 1515 New Hampshire ave. has been made fireproof and renovated, study groups will hold their gatherings at members' homes.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Randall isn't so flexible; and worse yet, he isn't facing the fact that his "maladjusted veteran" peeve at imperfections of civilian life calls for thoughtful assessment and purposeful effort to retain himself to more wholesome attitudes, in fairness to his family.

Randall's treatment of Delia is vile; that is, "low, mean, worthless, base; highly objectionable for any reason." In a masked vicious way, he is rejecting the child, for being ascendant in the family trinity, he feels. And a father who treats his small daughter that way is preparing her for delinquency. So it's preposterous to ask Delia to "understand" him or try to appease his infantile petulant disapprobation.

Randall needs psychological reeducation for parenthood, if he expects to remain, or is to be tolerated, in harness as a father; and it's your duty to sternly acquaint him with that truth, instead of kowtowing further to his ill humors. As a start, give him Dr. Margaret Ribble's book, "The Rights of Infants" (Columbia University Press) to read; and if he scorns it, go yourself to a psychiatric counsellor in family relations for further advice. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

By Norma Lanum

There are really very few "new looks" in the fashion world. It's all a matter of adaptation—whether it be from grandma's wardrobe or from styles of our neighbors in other countries.

That was the general theme of the benefit fashion show given yesterday by the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hamilton Hotel.

The styles shown there—all the way from the flowing drape skirts to the plaid sport costumes—had their counterparts in costumes from foreign countries or from the "old days."

One especially elegant gown was a black flowing evening dress worn with gold sandals. The origin of this gown was illustrated with an authentic Indian costume of the same lines and general style.

Old Costume Modelled

The most exquisite old fashioned costumes modeled were two late eighteenth century dresses from the Goodwill Industries collection. One was a whale-boned Parisian gown by Worth. It was fashioned from plum colored faille and velvet and had splatterings of jet beads across the lace bodice.

The other was an off-the-shoulder gown of fuchsia and white silk brocade with wide paneled skirt ending in a short train.

Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, president of the federation, welcomed the guests and then introduced Mrs. Benjamin Schoenfeld who was general chairman of the show. Mrs. E. Morgan Pryse in turn presented each of the committee chairmen.

Noted Guests Attend

Among the special guests there were Mrs. Charles Franklin Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador; Senora de Ferreyros, wife of the Peruvian Ambassador; Princess Wan Waithayakon, wife of the Siamese Ambassador; Lady Berendsen, wife of the Minister of New Zealand; Mrs. Emilio Abello, wife of the Philippines Minister; Mrs. H. T. Andrews, wife of the Minister of the Union of South Africa; Mme. Jutila, wife of the Minister of Finland; Mrs. Hans Olav, wife of the Norwegian Counselor; Mme. Henri A. Helb, wife of the Netherlands Counselor; Mrs. Rolf Westerberg, wife of the Assistant Air Attache of the Swedish Embassy; Lady Jellicoe, wife of the Second Secretary of the British Embassy, and Mme. Sulo Enkio, wife of the Military Attache of the Embassy of Finland.

Proceeds of the luncheon will be directed to the Federation's various philanthropic projects including cancer research, Children's Hospital, Florence Crittenton Home, Police Boys Club and the Symphony Orchestra.

Railroad Nets Up 185 Million In Nine Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net income of Class One railroads for the first nine months this year is estimated at 502 million dollars, against 317 million in the same 1947 period.

This was disclosed yesterday by the Association of American Railroads which added that estimated net of the carriers in September was about four times that of the same month last year. The figures were 82 million for September, against 20.7 million last year.

Net railway operating income, which does not include deductions for interest and rentals, was $110,848,571 in September compared with $48,314,731 for September, 1947.

The AAR emphasized that both net operating income and net income were "sharply reduced" in September, 1947, by a general increase in wages which became effective that month. Freight rates were not adjusted until much later in the year.

For the 12 months ended September 30, the carriers' rate of return on property investment averaged 4.22 per cent, compared with a 3.6 per cent return for the previous 12-month period.

AIRLINE NETS: The 16 domestic trunk airlines reported to the Civil Aeronautics Board a net operating income of $3,262,837 in the second quarter this year. This was an increase over the $2,754,724 in the same 1947 period. For the 12 months ended June 30, the 16 airlines reported net operating loss of $15,494,310, compared with net operating loss of $22,435,489 for the year ended June 30, 1947.

ODD LOTS: L. Harold Sothoron, Maryland State senator, last night was elected a director of the Citizens Bank of Riverdale, succeeding the late William A. Carson. At the same time, the nearby Maryland bank announced that $90,000 in Christmas Club savings will be distributed on November 15 . . . O. H. Ritenour, Washington Gas Light Co. comptroller, is the new chairman of the Controllers Institute committee on Government cooperation . . . Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price ndex yesterday declined to $8.36, a new low for this year and the bottom level since June 24, 1947.

SOTHORON

REALTY BONDS UP: The Amott-Baker real estate bond index in October scored the sharpest rise this year. The index, which includes four Washington issues, advanced to $795 per $1000 bond at the end of October, compared with $787 at the end of September and $783 at the end of 1947.

FIDUCIARIES MEET: Technical aspects of how the 1948 Revenue Act affected estate planning were explained by Robert L. Cudd of Chase National Bank, at the fall meeting of the fiduciaries section of the District Bankers Association. B. Bruce Frantz, section chairman, presided. More than 75 local bankers attended.

SALES IDEA: Using pieces of cloth as bait, a Boston clothier reports "tremendous response" in the way of sales. For the last month, the Richard Clothing Co. has been hanging out bolts of cloth from five windows. Passers-by are urged to snip swatches off woolens and worsteds. The firm provides firmly anchored scissors for that purpose. For the information of possible copiers, the company warns that it has applied for a patent on the sales-boosting idea.

EARNINGS: Potomac Edison Co. reported net income of $2,033,208 for the first nine months this year, compared with $1,644,721 in the same 1947 period. Other earnings statemepts:

National City Bank Maps Capital Boost

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Directors of the National City Bank of New York propose to transfer funds from surplus to increase its capital to 124 million dollars, thus restoring the amount existing prior to 1934. Present capital is $77,500,000.

Stockholders will be asked at the annual meeting January 11, 1949, to approve the proposal. On September 30 the bank's surplus was $162,500,000 and undivided profits $36,329,781.73. Total assets were $4,912,440,812.54.

Directors plan to leave the number of stock shares at 6,200,000, but issue new certificates eliminating reference to a $12.50 par value. The new capital would in effect increase the shares' par value to $20.

Gain in Loans Levels

Business loans by Federal Reserve member banks in the Nation's leading cities rose 35 million dollars to a new record high of $15,409,000,000 for the week ended October 27, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday. The rise was somewhat smaller than that in recent weeks.

One on the Aisle—

A Dane Creates Remarkable Film

By Richard L. Coe

ONE OF THE MOST fascinating qualities of a successful movie is an ability to take one completely into another time, another place. The result is eerie, harrowing even, and the spell such a film casts is likely to linger long.

Such a picture is "Day of Wrath," a Danish film (with perfectly adequate English subtitles) at the Dupont. Here you live for a time with some superstitious Danes of the seventeenth century. Their customs are alien, their mores strange, yet the passions of these people are compellingly real. Pictorially they are of another world, yet they come to life with startling vitality.

The film was directed by a remarkable man, Carl Dreyer, whose best known picture is "The Passion of Joan of Arc," which he made 20 years ago in France. Since 1931 Dreyer has worked in comparative oblivion as a newspaper reporter in his native Denmark. During the war he was asked to evolve a film from Wiers Jenssens' novel, "Anne Podersdotter," a picture begun during the Nazi occupation and received in New York some months ago with sharply mixed reactions.

Largely because of this uncanny ability to take its watchers into so shadowy a time and place and at the same time to make them part of the picture's very atmosphere, it seems to me "Day of Wrath" is pretty close to a masterpiece of its peculiar genre.

"DAY OF WRATH." A Danish film produced and directed by Carl Dreyer. Screen play by Dreyer, Mogens Skot-Hansen and Paul Knudsen from the novel, "Anne Pedersdotter," by Wiers Jenssens. Music by Poul Schierbeck. Settings by Erik Ages. With English subtitles. At the Dupont.

THE CAST

Absalon Pedersson.....Thirkild Roose
Anne, his wife.....Lisbeth Movin
Merete, his mother....Sigrid Neiiendam
Martin, son by his first marriage
Preben Lerdorff
The Bishop.....Albert Hoeberg
Laurentius.....Olaf Ussing
Herlofs Marte.....Anna Svierkier

The story concerns a pastor who has married a second wife much younger than himself, Anne. His mother, a righteous "mom," despises this young wife and in small ways does all she can to make her daughter-in-law miserable.

The Role of Fate

To the vicarage comes an old crone suspected of being a witch. Thinking of her bitter mother-in-law and recalling the accusations made against her own mother, Anne hides the dame, who is quickly found and sentenced to burn. Before she goes to the pyre, though, the old woman repeatedly reminds the pastor of his leniency to Anne's mother for the same crimes and warns him that she will have her revenge.

The pastor's son has returned to his father's home, a man as young as his own stepmother. These two fall in love and hide their lawless passion until one night Anne tells her husband, the father of her lover, that she wishes he were dead. In a few moments he is dead. This ghastly curse recalls the witch-repute of Anne's mother, and in a gruelling scene before her husband's coffin, Anne confesses that she is a witch.

So harrowing a story acted with somber intensity in settings of bleak righteousness packs a tremendous wallop. Fate here plays much the same role it does in the Grecian tragedies. The atmosphere is cloaked with foreboding darkness from beginning to end, and at the start and finish, with deep chords of gloom from the soundtrack orchestra, the fateful "Dies Irae" is spelled out across the screen in all its awful prophecy of the Day of Judgment.

Disciplined Imagination

Such a picture, too, must stick uncompromisingly to its atmosphere; for the purposes of its stern essay there can be permitted no lessening of the tension, no fleeting pace, no letup in what more audience-hungry films might call monotony or slowness. Dreyer seems to have known exactly what he wanted to do, to have done it and to have said: "There it is."

The players are not familiar, but you'll admire the sincerity with which Lisbeth Movin plays the tragic young wife, the appalled fright with which Anna Svierkier invests the old woman who dies in the flames and the stern perplexity of Thirkild Roose as the pastor.

"Day of Wrath" is not a picture for the fans of Abbott and Costello, but it is a stern, memorable example of what can be done with atmosphere by a film maker of disciplined imagination.

"THE TRUMAN STORY," which was played you know when, is being revived IMMEDIATELY at the Trans-Lux.

IN DANISH FILM: Lisbeth Movin and Preben Lerdorff as the girl and the stepson with whom she falls in love in the Dupont's somber, impressive import, "Day of Wrath"

24 Candy Makers Charged With Unfair Pricing

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday charged 24 candy and confectionery manufacturing companies with price discrimination against small businessmen.

Ten other manufacturers were similarly charged in complaints issued last May.

Woman Loses Suit Over X-Ray Injuries

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—A 30-year-old woman who claimed exposure to X-rays made her sterile, neurotic and unnaturally fat today lost a $200,000 damage suit against the Raybestos-Manhattan Co., Inc., of Passaic, N. J.

Miss Matilda Rakowski, a fluroscope operator at the Raybestos plant from 1943 to 1946, contended the firm was negligent in protection from X-rays.

Judge Alexander M. McLeod directed the verdict.

Sun Spots Block Returns

What to Do About Paint on Windows

I would like to know how to reopen windows when they are stuck after being painted.

F. L. W.

Sometimes paint-stuck windows can be loosened by moving the sash frame sideways very slightly. This can be done by laying a block of wood against the glass and along the side of the window frame next to the glass. The block of wood is then tapped lightly with a hammer, holding the hammer in such a way that the head slides along the glass. Sometimes it is necessary to tap it lightly in several places before the frame is loosened enough to move it. If this doesn't loosen it, it may be necessary to remove the strip of molding that holds the window. With the molding off, the hardened paint can be removed with a thin-bladed or putty knife.

What can I put in the water so that my towels will not be so stiff when washed in the machine? They dry very hard, not soft and fluffy as I'd like them.

S. H.

Using a water softener in the wash water will help to soften the towels. Also, wringing the towels as dry as possible and then shaking them vigorously before hanging them will do much to soften them.

Would you advise me what I can do with this window arrangement? There are three large windows flanked on both sides by two short square windows. The tops of the small windows are level with the tops of the long ones. So far have had Venetian blinds made for the three large ones. The woodwork is very dark kelly green. The walls being a gray green with chintz wallpaper in green with gold figures on the opposite side of the windows. C. C. L.

I would suggest that you treat the three long windows as one, placing one rod over the three and using glass curtains or one pair of very full ruffled curtains. If you wish, you could use drapes with the glass curtains. For the tiny windows on either side, use only glass curtains if you use them on the large window. Or, if you use a ruffled curtain on the large window, use either a straight or ruffled curtain of the same material for the small windows. The most pleasing and least spotty effect would be one where the small windows are treated as inconspicuously as possible. With your dark woodwork and walls I would suggest you choose a light curtain. Chintz wallpaper suggests white ruffled curtains, unless the gold and green design is Chinese in feeling. Then just the glass curtains with plain drapes would be nice.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Recently at the beach I saw a grandmother trying to entertain her 18-month-old grandson by flying a kite. For a few moments he was fascinated by the kite soaring into the air. Then he wanted to hold the string, but soon dropped it to his grandmother's expressed disgust. She continued to try to interest him but he would have none of it, and what started out to be a pleasant time turned into a very unpleasant one. Another episode concerned a father who suggested to his active 4-year-old daughter that she should watch a game of tennis so that she could learn what it was all about.

The 18-month-old boy would have spent a lot of time happily digging with grandmother in the sand that was all around. The 4-year-old would have enjoyed a walk or a romp with her dad.

But the grown-ups didn't always understand. There's no simple rule for determining what sort of play is suitable for a child of any particular age. The best guide is to watch one's own child. Too complicated play will leave him indifferent and restless. There's no point in pushing his interest beyond his age development. We only cause confusion for him and unhappiness for both of us.

Horace Was a Hick, But Not a Fool

Horace may have been a hick, and just in from the country, but he was nobody's fool.

When the streetcar conductor growled, "Hey, put out that cigarette—don't you see the 'No Smoking' sign?" Horace replied:

"Sure, and I also see the one next to it, that says 'Wear Grip-Tite Corsets.' But I don't pay any attention to either of them."

HOUSING SITUATION GOING TO THE DOGS

Perhaps you noticed this message in our want ad columns the other day:

"Fierce kitten and placid dog need part in nw. section; prefer one with 1-bedroom unfurn. apt. for the two girls they own. Taylor 3399 after 7 p. m."

The ad was placed by J. Davidson of 5522 13th st. nw. who explains:

MAIL BAG

The things that turn up in my morning mail are a source of never-ending amazement — and amusement.

Yesterday, for example, I got four tokens for Children's Hospital. The donor was our old friend "Anonymous." But the paper in which the tokens were wrapped would make a wonderful clew for a detective determined to establish the sender's identity.

The paper turned out to be a memo slip, on which somebody had neatly listed:

1. Buy two eyebrow pencils.
2. Buy lipstick.
3. Cash check.
4. Meet Shirley at the Palace at 5:45 Wednesday, October 20.
5. Send tokens (Bill Gold, Washington Post).

Each of the items was carefully crossed out except the last. So I crossed that one off, and forwarded the tokens.

MISCELLANY

Don Sage of 4325 N. Pershing dr., Arlington, Va., is back from a trip to New Mexico, and is singing the praises of the wide open spaces, where his "front porch" was 65 miles long and 55 miles wide . . . Ed Gallagher of 2201 42d st. nw. says that anybody who is interested in skiing should come to the Palisades Field House the first Thursday of any month (8 p. m.) "if they're armchair skiers. The more active followers of the sport can try the Wednesday night sessions at Central High School" . . . And for further information you can call Pete Hart of 5414 41st st. nw. or Lieut. Col. Maurice M. Osborne of 2800 O st. nw. (Decatur 4633) . . . Mrs. Charles B. Duff of 200 Raymond st., Chevy Chase, Md., tells me that the next meeting of the Potomac Craftsmen (1:30 p. m. Saturday, Room 43, National Museum) will feature a weaving exhibit and lecture. Visitors are welcome, as usual . . . Clifford M. Reuter, jr., of 811 Quincy st. nw. says there are two good reasons why there should be a good turnout for the V. F. W. Armistice Day Ball (Wardman Park, Wednesday, 10 p. m.). Number 1: Miss Washington will be queen of the ball; Number 2: You can sleep late on Armistice Day . . . A. M. KING-SIZED HEADACHE

Beside the parking meter ahead was a new Cadillac; beside the meter behind was a Packard limousine.

I finally squeezed my car into the empty space between them, and made straight for a telephone to call Traffic Director Keneipp.

"These new cars are getting longer and longer," I wailed. "But we're still getting the same 20 feet of space for our nickels. Parking is becoming a major problem."

"I know," he countered. "We're 'way ahead of you. Our new installations are allowing 2 extra feet between meters—and if the new cars continue to get longer, I suppose some day we'll have to rip out the old meters and reset them."

"Well, I'm glad to hear that you're on the ball and know about this problem," I said.

"Oh, I can't help but know about it," replied Keneipp glumly. "I've got a new Hudson. One of the big ones. I had to saw off a couple of two-by-fours in my garage before I could close the doors with the car inside."

"Okay," I said. "Just as you're suffering, too, I'm satisfied."

"A LITTLE LEARNING"

Mrs. Laura J. Jackson of 3817 N. 23d st., Arlington, Va., thinks she can guess two interesting subjects studied at school by the 6-year-old daughter of a friend.

The little girl came bouncing into the house the other afternoon and her first words were:

"Mommy, will you take me to Africa and get me some Mexican jumping beans?"

OLD BUT STILL GOOD

"She looked like she'd been poured into her dress and forgot to say 'when.'"

NEW YORK.—George Cukor, who recently directed the film version of "Edward, My Son" in England, in describing the effect of the long years of austere rationing, said, "People in England speak of their old friends as if they were dead or in jail."

Messmore Kendall gave a supper party at his home atop the Capitol Theater on Friday night. Throughout the night Kendall kept picking up coins he found on the floor, and putting them into his pocket. "I never knew it was so easy to make money," he said, stooping again to pick up a coin. Then he discovered the coins were his—he had a hole in his pocket . . . Virginia Leigh, the debutante-columnist, told Bernard M. Baruch about her political aspirations. "Then stand up straight," said Baruch. "The first thing you've got to do, to be a politician, is stand up as straight as you can."

Prof. L. A. Greenberg of Yale, who successfully demonstrated his alcometer—a mechanical test for drunkenness—before the State beer wholesalers at the New Yorker a few days ago, told them, "This machine is foolproof. But for the home, however, a wife's nose is still the most practical testing device" . . . Tilly Losch, the dancer-painter, has been signed to do her dance specialties for movie shorts to be used in television . . . Clem McCarthy, the horse-race commentator, went to the Gamecock Cafe after Saturday's race. He told his friends there: "Nowadays there's nothing certain but death and taxes and Citation."

Last Thursday almost every Broadway star appeared at a benefit at the Plaza, for the Press Agents Union, and not a word of publicity about it appeared in the press . . . A dress-salesman, carrying a strange looking package, went to S. Klein's for two weeks. He refused to show the package to anyone except the president, Phil Harris. He finally was admitted, opened the package, took out a saxophone and played an audition. He explained to the merchant that he thought he was Phil Harris, the bandleader.

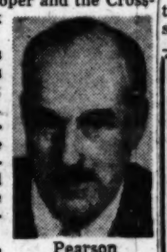
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman His Own Best Pollster

By Drew Pearson

Harry Truman, it's now conceded, was his own best pollster. He made the faces of Dr. Gallup, Elmo Roper and the Crossley people look very red.



Pearson

Talking to his friend Morris Ernst a short time ago, Mr. Truman remarked that the political pollsters would blush on the day after election.

Ernst, though one of the few who really expected Truman to win, half jokingly asked the President what he would do after he was defeated.

"I'm not going to be defeated," replied Truman. "But if I should be, I would go into the poll business and put Dr. Gallup and the others out of business."

Why Truman Won

Here are this columnist's ideas on why Harry Truman won out over Thomas E. Dewey in the modern amazing version of the race between the tortoise and the hare:

1. The American people admire a man with courage even though they don't always agree with him. Truman didn't duck a single issue, though some of them were so tough they caused bitter rebellion inside his party. Dewey sidestepped most thorny issues, tried to please both wings of his party.

2. The American people side with the underdog, don't like to see the powerful guy kick the little fellow around. Up until midnight November 2, Truman was underdog in this race.

3. A man can win with labor against him, or the farmers, or the housewives. But he can't win, with a large section of labor and the farmers and the housewives—all against him.

4. Dewey didn't alienate these three groups, but the Eightieth Congress did. The American public in 1946 had been honestly, hungrily wanting a change; so they voted the Eightieth Congress in. But a two-year glimpse of that GOP-controlled, lobby-ridden Congress made most people shudder.

The American people are smart. And here are some of the things about the Eightieth Congress that turned their stomachs:

Lobbies Helped Truman

The Big Tax Lobby—How Republicans on the Ways and Means Committee put Wall Street lawyers on a special committee to write the new tax laws—in favor of the big bracket boys.

The Big Grain Lobby—How three Argentine and European grain combines hired a Kansas City former Congressman to sabotage government grain storage and government grain purchases in the new farm bill.

The Manufacturers' Lobby—How the Reciprocal Trade Act, the Teachers' Pay Act, and especially all attempts at price control were killed by the big business boys. How Representative Charley Halleck, GOP Leader in the House, constantly consorted with the National Association of Manufacturers.

The Real Estate Lobby—How with millions of people pounding the pavements looking for homes, the lobby cleverly and repeatedly blocked public housing, but put across Government subsidies for its own real estate ventures.

The Parnell Thomas Grab Bag—How the man who called on others to be good Americans stooped to the un-American practice of keeping soldiers out of combat for campaign contributions and required clerks and stenographers to kick back their salaries to his pocket.

Spare Yourself and Probe Your Enemies—How various GOP leaders, including Senator Jenner of Indiana and Ferguson of Michigan, grabbed headlines probing others, but ran for cover when somebody put the bee on them.

Then there was the shameless tidelands oil lobby, the liquor lobby, the steel lobby, and various lesser lobbies, all in a rush to "get theirs" and all brazenly welcomed to the bosom of the Eightieth Congress.

Deserted the Ship

They probably won't be around the White House any more:

Bernard Baruch—The elder statesman got an appeal from Truman to serve on a committee to help the Democratic Party, but declined. Truman wrote back a stinging letter reminding Bernie that he had appointed his brother as Ambassador, always listened to his advice and that friendship was a two-way street.

Kenneth Royall—The hulking Secretary of the Army, sometimes called "Dumbo," went out of his way in an interview to describe Truman's election as not necessary to national defense.

John L. Sullivan—The handsome Secretary of the Navy's contribution to the political campaign was largely playing golf at the Burning Tree Country Club. While the "Chief" was making dozens of speeches daily, Sullivan, Royall, and Forrestal basked in the October sunshine on the golf course.

James Forrestal—Some time ago Forrestal decided that Dewey was going to win, and from that point on lifted no finger to help Harry Truman.

SHEER MAGIC, WE CALL IT! Curtains that sweep into hundreds of tiny pleats in 30 seconds flat. No fuss! No bother! No endless hours of arranging and re-arranging! The most exciting news in curtains we've heard of in a long time! The secret? A sewn-in shirring tape. Just pull it . . . and swoosh! Shir-backs cascade around your window in yards of shimmering loveliness. The ruffles full and fresh. The tie-backs at decorator-approved height. They stay that way, too . . . despite wind and dusting. See them at The Hecht Co. in your favorite ivory-toned fabric with an affinity for soap 'n' suds. Let Jules Adler, Cameo Stylist, show you the magic of "Shir-Backs" . . . solve all your window problems. He'll be at our Washington Store Thursday and Saturday, at Silver Spring Friday.
